29 Red Planes Downed Or Damaged

American Jets And B-29s Bag At Least Eight

Enemy Withdrawal Puzzles Officers

TOKYO, Friday, April 13 (AP)—Twenty-nine Russian-type enemy planes were reported shot down or damaged over Northwest Korea yesterday in History's greatest jet and bomber air battles.

The fighting between enemy and American jets and B-29 bombers developed several hours after President Truman warned of a step-up in Red air power to be turned loose from Manchuria bases.

It also came at a time when the Chinese Reds made a puzzling withdrawal in West-Central Korea but kept up the resistance elsewhere.

Enemy jets pressed their attack on a B-29 bridge-bombing mission with unprecedented fury and determination but there were no reports of American plane losses.

The American jets and B-29s were credited by the Far East Air Force today with destroying eight enemy planes, probably destroying six and crippling 15 in the Thursday fighting.

B-29 Gunners Bag Four

The Air Force said a recheck of reports thus far showed the B-29 gunners knocked down four enemy jets, probably got four others and damaged one. U. S. jets were credited with four destroyed, two probables and 14 damaged.

Neither the B-29s nor the American jets had ever before made such a score for one day's fighting in the jet-speed era.

Air Force figures showed at least 65 MIGs were engaged in two separate battles with about 100 U. S. jets and 32 big bombers from Japan and Okinawa bases.

The B-29s hit the massive steel and concrete bridge over the Yalu River at Sinuiju on a main route of Red China's supply line to the Korean battlefronts.

The Air Force said the bombers made "the most concentrated interdiction attack of the war."

The bombing was pressed through on schedule in the thick of swirling dogfights and Red antiaircraft fire.

A flight of 50 or more MIGs swooped on the bmobers at the outset. The enemy planes were jumped in turn by masses of F-84 Thunderjets and F-36 Sabre jets flying cover for the B-29s.

Ridgeway Returns To Korea

The bombers themselves joined the last tactical air battle with their .50-calibre guns shooting at the swishing targets while bombardiers let got the heaviest tonnage of explosives dropped on a bridge during the Korean war.

On the ground, a withdrawal of Red forces in one sector — the west-central front—puzzled officers, because resistance was light to heavy elsewhere.

Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, newly-named top United Nations commander, returned to his Eighth Army headquarters after a brief visit in Tokyo with his predecessor, Gen. MacArthur.

Ridgway said he would return to Tokyo soon to assume his new duties—all of MacArthur's commands, including that as occupation chief in Japan.

At Least 1 Dead In Iran Rioting

TEHRAN, Iran, April 12 (AP) — Premier Hussein Ala said tonight that riots of strikers in the Abadan oil field area broke out today and that one Iranian woman was killed and three Britons were either killed or injured.

Troops and tanks have been sent there, the Premier said, and the situation is believed to be under control.

Poor communications between the capital and the oil center prevented getting exact details of the riots at Abadan and the nearby port, Bandur Mashur.

George Northcroft, field manager for the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, said he was informed by telephone that one Englishman had been injured and two were missing.

Northcroft blamed Communist Tudeh Party's agitation for the sudden outbreak of violence after 24 days of a comparatively peaceful strike of oil workers in the area.

Thomas Backs Truman

ROME, April 12 (AP) — Norman Thomas, veteran U. S. Socialist leader, said tonight he is wholeheartedly behind President Truman in the dismissal of Gen. MacArthur.

Substitute Draft Measure Providing No UMT Turned Down 232 To 140 By House

Administration Bill Approval Due Today

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP) — The House overwhelmingly demonstrated today its support for lowering the draft age and making a survey preparatory to starting universal military training.

By a vote of 232 to 140, it defeated a substitute bill that would have extended the draft law but kept the present minimum induction age at 19 years. The defeated bill made no provision for UMT at any time.

Members were not recorded by name in the voting. Rep. Barden (D-NC) sponsored the bill.

Final Vote Deferred

The House put off until tomorrow a final vote on the administration-backed measure to drop the draft age to 18½, lengthen the period of service to 26 months and create a commission to report to Congress later on UMT. The draft law would be extended until July 1, 1954.

Indications were the administration bill would be passed and sent to the Senate-House conference.

The Senate has passed a bill lowering the draft age to 18, extending the service period to 24 months, putting a top strength of 4,000,000 on military personnel and authorizing the President to induct youths for universal military training after the need for a service draft ends.

Fights In The Offing

The UMT provision of the House bill is almost meaningless since it would take another act of Congress to start actual inductions for training.

The House bill still faces several tests before the final vote but in view of today's one-sided count it seemed unlikely that any major alterations would be made.

In the offing are fights to put a limit on military strength, to prohibit the sending of inductees to Europe without congressional approval, to retain the present induction minimum age at 19 and to permit inductees to have themselves assigned to units in which white men and negroes are segregated.

U. S. Marshal Is Arrested By FBI On Bribe Charge

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP) — The Justice Department announced tonight that Edwin J. Carrigan, United States marshal for the northern district of California, has been arrested on bribery charges.

Attorney Gen. J. Howard McGrath said the charges grew out of solicitation and acceptance of a bribe to prevent the removal of a federal prisoner, Phil Davis, from a prison farm to a federal penitentiary.

The Attorney General also authorized the prosecution of all individuals having any connection with the alleged act of bribery.

Carrigan was taken into custody by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in San Francisco, a spokesman for the Justice Department said.

At San Francisco, Carrigan's chief deputy, John A. Roseen, said he was "stunned" by the report. He said he didn't know Carrigan's immediate whereabouts.

Phil Davis, from whom the Justice Department said Carrigan solicited and received a bribe, is a wealthy Oakland, Calif., automobile dealer. Davis was sentenced to prison after his speed boat on Lake Tahoe severed the legs of a high school girl who was swimming in the lake.

HELD IN KIDNAP PLOT—Pfc. James A. Harvey, 23, Brooklyn, who has been stationed at Mitchel Field, is being held in $5,000 bail in connection with an alleged plot to kidnap a child television actor. Aggressive War On China Is Only Out, Taft Asserts

MacArthur "Feared" Appeasement Policy

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP) — Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) said tonight the prevention of World War III "cannot now be accomplished without an aggressive war against Communist China."

This would mean, Taft said, aid to Nationalist invaders of the mainland plus bombing of military targets in China. In neither case, he added, would it mean a general war in China.

Taft said Gen. MacArthur spoke on foreign policy because of a "justified fear" the United States would end the Korean war by appeasement.

The top leader spoke to an overflow audience of more than 1,000 at a meeting of Yale Engineering Association here, and was cheered and applauded frequently.

President "Inconsistent"

Taft declared:

"If the original sending of American troops to Korea was to prevent World War III — as the President said last night — then that purpose has been long completely lost from sight.

"It cannot now be accomplished without an aggressive war against Communist China and a punishment of the aggressor, as the North Koreans were punished.

"The President's position is completely inconsistent. He justified an active move against Korean aggression as a means of preventing World War III.

Reds' Half Way To Goal

"In the second half of his speech he claims World War III is prevented by a timid war against Communist China, and maintaining a Maginot Line defense against an aggressor which has already accomplished half his purpose.

'He justifies two completely inconsistent courses as means of preventing World War III. I don't suppose there has ever been a more inconsistent justification for vital moves in foreign policy."

Taft said " the firing of Gen. MacArthur has led the world to believe that we are now looking in the direction of appeasement."

Publicity Gag Brings Fine As Shoppers Scream, Faint

BALTIMORE, April 12 (AP) — Women shoppers screamed — several of them fainted — when they saw a man teetering on a sixth-story ledge of a building in the heart of the downtown shopping district today.

Police and firemen were called. They had to push their way through a crowd estimated at 5,000 all craning their necks to get a look at the man. Some said they heard him shouting he was going to jump.

Firemen spread nets, believing a body was about to hurtle down on the intersection.

Two policemen made the sixth-story climb up a fire escape in a driving rain.

They seized the man, who identified himself as Frank Donato, 36-year-old acrobat and master of ceremonies.

It was all a publicity stunt, he explained, for a motion picture playing at a downtown theater. The picture tells the story of efforts to rescue a would-be suicide on a ledge.

As the crowd slowly dispersed and traffic untangled, Donato was taken to a police court and fined $50 and costs for creating a public disturbance.

Wherry Says Truman Puts U. S. In Danger

Senate GOP Leader Praises MacArthur

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—Sen. Wherry (R-Neb) charged tonight that the Truman administration, and not Gen. Douglas MacArthur, is putting the U. S. in grave danger of a terrible new war.

Wherry lashed out at the President, his "bayonet generals' and the "radical clique" declaring in a nationwide broadcast:

"The pygmies can not bring down this giant (MacArthur)—this tower of strength and deserving idol of the American people."

Wherry charged that the "zigzag, inept foreign policy" of the President and Secretary of State Acheson brought the nation "to the brink of another world war"—a land war with Russia that Wherry said would bring "wanton destruction" of untold American lives.

Wherry, the Senate's Republican leader, gave his party's answer to last night's speech in which the President said he fired MacArthur for policies that threatened to start World War III.

This statement, Wherry declared, "is resented by every thinking American familiar with the glorious record of this great statesman, soldier, patriot."

"Compare the monumental record of Gen. MacArthur with that of his accusers," the Nebraskan cried, "with the record of moral decay, greed, corruption, and confusion of these weaklings in the Truman administration. x x x

"The obvious truth is that the ship of state is floundering in a whirlpool of mink coats, paternalism, RFC influence loans, crooked political machines in league with national organizations, class arrayed against class, and a new scandal the order of the day."

Wherry said MacArthur "needs no defense. He will take care of that when he comes home."

The Nebraskan pointed out he had introduced a resolution inviting the deposed Far East commander to address a joint meeting of Congress as soon as he returns to this country.

The Nebraskan said Mr. Truman last night had made a "weak defense of his shabby treatment" of the General.

The Senate GOP leader denied charges made by administration spokesmen in the angry debate of the last two days that MacArthur's policies would have led to an all-out land war in Asia.

"I have seen no statements by Gen. MacArthur that he wants a third world war," the Nebraskan declared. "I have not seen any statement by him that he wants to send American foot soldiers into Manchuria. Certainly he has not suggested an all-out war with China."

Stenog Of Mink Coat Fame Quits White House Job

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—Mrs. Merl Young has left her White House stenographer job, taking her sensation-making mink coat with her.

Presidential Press Secretary Joseph H. Short disclosed under questioning at a news conference today that Monday was the last day Mrs. Young worked. He said she explained she wanted to devote more time to her home duties.

The coat, a $9,540 natural pastel royal mink, came into nationwide prominence in a Senate Banking Subcommittee inquiry into the multi-billion dollar lending activities of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) and others charged that influence and pressure had been brought upon the RFC directors by a group with White House connections.

One person named was E. Merl Young, whose wife Lauretta had the elegant fur coat.

The senators received testimony that Mrs. Young picked out the coat last September at a New York furrier's place. The furrier testified the coat was first charged to her husband and later transferred to the account of Joseph H. Rosenbaum, a Washington attorney who was active representing clients seeking RFC loans.

Young and Rosenbaum testified the lawyer paid for the coat as a personal loan to Young.

Truman Dares Tobey To Attempt To Impeach Him

Senator Is Sorry Incident Occurred

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP) — President Truman, in a new and angry telephone call, has challenged Sen. Tobey to start an impeachment move against him, the New Hampshire Republican reported today.

Tobey told reporters the President called him Tuesday and said in an unfriendly tone:

"I understand you are going to have me impeached."

Tobey said he replied that he intended nothing of the sort, but that Mr. Truman, insisting he had gotten the information from a source in whom he had "the most complete confidence," declared:

"I'll Help You"

"Now let me tell you this, Senator. If you want to have me impeached, you just go right ahead and I'll help you."

Tobey did not interpret what the President may have meant when he said "I'll help you." Tuesday was the day before Mr. Truman dismissed Gen. Douglas MacArthur, however, and there was speculation that perhaps the President had in mind his dismissal order and the controversy it would arouse.

During the storm in Congress over the MacArthur ouster several members have called for the President's impeachment.

But Tobey has not made any public demand for impeachment. He said today he entertains "friendly" feelings for the President and is sorry that the incident occurred.

Meeting Was Closed

Other senators offered an explanation for the President's ire. They reported that Tobey had told a closed meeting of the Senate Banking subcommittee Monday that the President "could be impeached" if he suppressed evidence he once claimed to possess that some members of Congress received fees in connection with RFC loans.

Members of the subcommittee refused to speculate about how Mr. Truman might have obtained a version of Tobey's remarks from a meeting at which all present were pledged to secrecy.

Argentine Senate Votes To Expropriate Paper

BUENOS AIRES, April 12 (AP) — The Argentine Senate tonight voted to expropriate the 82-year-old opposition newspaper La Prensa. The all-Peronistra Senate approved by acclamation a bill passed by the Chamber of Deputies yesterday.

The Senate's action had been considered virtually certain. Yesterdays vote in the lower house to force the sale of the multi-million-dollar paper to the government was 103 to 16. There are no opposition members of the upper house.

ASNE To Hear Truman

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP) — President Truman will address the American Society of Newspaper Editors at its annual session here April 19, the White House announced today.

Edwards Named To Defense Post

WASHINGTON April 12 (AP) — President Truman today appointed Mayor Dan [illegible] Edwards, of Durham, N. C., to be assist secretary of defense.

He will succeed Marx Leva who has resigned.

Edwards, 37, who served in the Army during World War Two, won the Distinguished Service Cross, the Silver Star, the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Air Medal, the Combat Infantry Badge, and the Purple Heart. He rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel and served on the general staff.

Screen Writer Collins Names Red Associates

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP) — Movie Writer Richard J. Collins testified today that Budd ("The Disenchanted") Schulberg and Ring Lardner, Jr., were active Communist Party members in Hollywood 10 years ago.

Collins, who said he was a Communist himself from 1938 until 1947, named about 20 other Hollywood figures as members of the party at one time or another.

He gave his testimony to the House Committee on Un-American Activities, which is investigating Communist penetration into the movie capital.

Collins said one of the screen writers he named as Communists, Paul Jarrico, refused in a conversation 10 days ago to promise he wouldn't help Soviet Russia in the event of war with the United States.

As Collins testified, Jarrico sat in the rear of the hearing room. The committee has called him as a witness tomorrow.

Collins said Schulberg left the party right after publication of his best-selling novel "What Makes Sammy Run?" in 1941. Schulberg has been back on the best-seller list recently with "The Disenchanted," a novel suggested by the career of the late Author F. Scott Fitzgerald.

Collins said Lardner remained a Communist "until 1946 or so—after that, I don't know."

Lardner, also a writer, is one of the 10 Hollywood figures who have been sent to prison for contempt of Congress after refusing to tell the Un-American Activities Committee about their political views.

Vital Materials To Be Doled Out By Government

Meat Price Lids Due Within Week

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—The government intends to put specific ceilings on meat prices shortly, and after July 1 it will resume its World War II practice of alloting scarce materials to defense industries.

These decisions were announced today as the President's new mobilization board wrestled with the problem of re-creating a wage stabilization agency.

After the board's session today, the White House announced that it expected "substantial agreement" between the unions and management on new wage stabilization board by next Tuesday.

Price control authorities said dollars and cents ceilings on meat are due within the next week. This will replace the general freeze to which meat prices are now subject.

Officials said the principal effect may be to bar further rises in price to consumers. No drop in retail prices is expected.

Beef orders are expected first, at slaughtering, wholesale and retail levels. Pork regulations will probably follow.

To dole out scarce materials judiciously to defense industries, the government will re-introduce a "controlled materials plan" July 1. It will guarantee the delivery of three basic munitions metals, steel, copper and aluminum, to defense factories.

What's left after the high priority industries are served will go into civilian goods. CMP, as the plan is called alphabetically, will not provide allocations for automobiles, refrigerators and similar lines. Manufacturers of such goods will buy the "free" supplies, at the same time remaining under present controls.

Manly Fleischmann, head of the National Production Authority, said CMP may bring "temporary hardships" to business, but that it is necessary if the country is to build adequate defenses against the possibility of all-out war.

Miller Heads Doctors

ST. LOUIS, April 12 (AP)—Dr. T. Grier Miller of Philadelphia today was chosen president-elect of the American College of Physicians to take office in 1952.

GI Is Held In Alleged Plot To Kidnap Boy Video Actor

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP)—An Air Force private was arrested today on a charge that he plotted to kidnap a nine-year-old boy television actor unless he received $1,000 from the child's parents.

The FBI identified the prisoner as Pfc. James A. Harvey, 23, Brooklyn. The intended victim of the alleged plot was Stefan Olsen, who has appeared on the Philco Playhouse and Cameo Theater television shows over the NBC network.

Edward Schedit, head of the New York FBI office, said Harvey told authorities he planned to use the money for plastic surgery to change the shape of his nose.

Schedit said Harvey wrote the actor's mother "threatening to take her son from her forever" if she didn't send him $1,000.

A second letter instructed her to prepare a package of $1,000 in small bills and insert an advertisement in a New York paper. Later a telegram informed her the advertisement had been noted.

FBI agents obtained a description of the sender of the telegram from patrons of a bar from which the telegram was sent. They interviewed hundreds of soldiers at Mitchel Air Force base before Harvey was located.

GOP Presses Its Movement To Air Ouster

Debate Boils Up On Capital Hill

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—Republican leaders pressed slam-bang onslaught on the Truman administration tonight as Gen. Douglas MacArthur, deposed Far East commander, prepared to fly to the United States Monday.

While Truman supporters continued to insist that the firing of MacArthur was the only thing to do, Republicans accused the administration of leaning toward "appeasement" of communism and of putting the U. S. in grave danger of a new world war.

Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) declared in a New York speech that as things now stand World War III cannot be prevented "without an aggressive war against Communist China."

Word came from Tokyo tonight that MacArthur will leave Tokyo Monday for Hawaii and San Francisco on his first journey home in 14 years. Flying in his famous Constellation "Scap", MacArthur will make an overnight stop at Hawaii.

Debate Rages In Congress

Where he will go after reaching San Francisco was not stated. But Republicans want him to come here—as soon as possible—and tell his story publicly. They were hoping to put through a resolution to invite him to a joint meeting of Senate and House.

The debate boiled up in the halls of Congress today.

Sen. Welker (R-Idaho) told the Senate Mr. Truman should step out of the White House and give Vice President Barkley a chance "to restore unity and confidence" in the country.

Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) declared Acheson "should resign or be removed by the President" because the American people "no longer have confidence in him."

Sen. Robertson (D-Va) came to the Presidents defense saying MacArthur deliberately forced the issue "of who should be in charge of our foreign policy in the Far East." He said MacArthur knew the meaning of insubordination and had forced Mr. Truman to act.

Sen. Morse (R-Ore) declared the President had a constitutional right to remove MacArthur.

"God help the American people," he said, "if the day ever comes when we do not retain civilian control over the military."

Morse Rebukes Colleagues

Morse rebuked his colleagues who have talked of impeaching Mr. Truman. He said the only grounds for impeachment are treason, bribery and other high crimes or misdemeanors.

"Thank God," he added, "we have not reached the point where guilt is established by accusation."

In Tokyo, a MacArthur advisor said the five-star General will return home and stoutly defend his views on Asia—the views which President Truman said forced him to remove MacArthur.

Republican leaders worked feverishly to bring MacArthur before Congress—a forum in which he could expand on his views.

House Republican Leader Martin of Massachusetts said MacArthur may return to his country next week. But whenever it is, it is certain to be a dramatic homecoming piling fresh fuel on the fires of controversy already raging.

Republican leaders frankly said they want to bring MacArthur back before public reaction to his firing cools off.

It appeared today that administration leaders on Capitol Hill have

Remington-Rand Gets MacArthur

FORT MYERS, Fla. April 12 (AP) — James H. Rand, president of Remington-Rand, Inc., confirmed tonight that Gen. Douglas MacArthur will become an official of the business equipment and typewriter concern.

Rand, aboard his 130-foot yacht, Galaxy, tied up at the Fort Myers Yacht basin, said MacArthur would join the firm within 90 days and take an active part in its affairs.

He issued this statement in confirming reports that MacArthur would take a job with Remington-Rand:

"It is correct that the General will be elected to the board of Remington-Rand and assume an active part in its world-wide affairs within the next 90 days.

"I expect to confer with the General within a few weeks in New York or Washington upon his arrival at which time details will be discussed and worked out."

BALTIMORE, April 12 (AP) — Women shoppers screamed — several of them fainted — when they saw a man teetering on a sixth-story ledge of a building in the heart of the downtown shopping district today.

Police and firemen were called. They had to push their way through a crowd estimated at 5,000 all craning their necks to get a look at the man. Some said they heard him shouting he was going to jump.

Firemen spread nets, believing a body was about to hurtle down on the intersection.

Two policemen made the sixth-story climb up a fire escape in a driving rain.

They seized the man, who identified himself as Frank Donato, 36-year-old acrobat and master of ceremonies.

It was all a publicity stunt, he explained, for a motion picture playing at a downtown theater. The picture tells the story of efforts to rescue a would-be suicide on a ledge.

As the crowd slowly dispersed and traffic untangled, Donato was taken to a police court and fined $50 and costs for creating a public disturbance.

Wherry Says Truman Puts U. S. In Danger

Senate GOP Leader Praises MacArthur

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—Sen. Wherry (R-Neb) charged tonight that the Truman administration, and not Gen. Douglas MacArthur, is putting the U. S. in grave danger of a terrible new war.

Wherry lashed out at the President, his "bayonet generals' and the "radical clique" declaring in a nationwide broadcast:

"The pygmies can not bring down this giant (MacArthur)—this tower of strength and deserving idol of the American people."

Wherry charged that the "zigzag, inept foreign policy" of the President and Secretary of State Acheson brought the nation "to the brink of another world war"—a land war with Russia that Wherry said would bring "wanton destruction" of untold American lives.

Wherry, the Senate's Republican leader, gave his party's answer to last night's speech in which the President said he fired MacArthur for policies that threatened to start World War III.

This statement, Wherry declared, "is resented by every thinking American familiar with the glorious record of this great statesman, soldier, patriot."

"Compare the monumental record of Gen. MacArthur with that of his accusers," the Nebraskan cried, "with the record of moral decay, greed, corruption, and confusion of these weaklings in the Truman administration. x x x

"The obvious truth is that the ship of state is floundering in a whirlpool of mink coats, paternalism, RFC influence loans, crooked political machines in league with national organizations, class arrayed against class, and a new scandal the order of the day."

Wherry said MacArthur "needs no defense. He will take care of that when he comes home."

The Nebraskan pointed out he had introduced a resolution inviting the deposed Far East commander to address a joint meeting of Congress as soon as he returns to this country.

The Nebraskan said Mr. Truman last night had made a "weak defense of his shabby treatment" of the General.

The Senate GOP leader denied charges made by administration spokesmen in the angry debate of the last two days that MacArthur's policies would have led to an all-out land war in Asia.

"I have seen no statements by Gen. MacArthur that he wants a third world war," the Nebraskan declared. "I have not seen any statement by him that he wants to send American foot soldiers into Manchuria. Certainly he has not suggested an all-out war with China."

Stenog Of Mink Coat Fame Quits White House Job

Presidential Press Secretary Joseph H. Short disclosed under questioning at a news conference today that Monday was the last day Mrs. Young worked. He said she explained she wanted to devote more time to her home duties.

The coat, a $9,540 natural pastel royal mink, came into nationwide prominence in a Senate Banking Subcommittee inquiry into the multi-billion dollar lending activities of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) and others charged that influence and pressure had been brought upon the RFC directors by a group with White House connections.

One person named was E. Merl Young, whose wife Lauretta had the elegant fur coat.

The senators received testimony that Mrs. Young picked out the coat last September at a New York furrier's place. The furrier testified the coat was first charged to her husband and later transferred to the account of Joseph H. Rosenbaum, a Washington attorney who was active representing clients seeking RFC loans.

Young and Rosenbaum testified the lawyer paid for the coat as a personal loan to Young.

Truman Dares Tobey To Attempt To Impeach Him

Senator Is Sorry Incident Occurred

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP) — President Truman, in a new and angry telephone call, has challenged Sen. Tobey to start an impeachment move against him, the New Hampshire Republican reported today.

Tobey told reporters the President called him Tuesday and said in an unfriendly tone:

"I understand you are going to have me impeached."

Tobey said he replied that he intended nothing of the sort, but that Mr. Truman, insisting he had gotten the information from a source in whom he had "the most complete confidence," declared:

"I'll Help You"

"Now let me tell you this, Senator. If you want to have me impeached, you just go right ahead and I'll help you."

Tobey did not interpret what the President may have meant when he said "I'll help you." Tuesday was the day before Mr. Truman dismissed Gen. Douglas MacArthur, however, and there was speculation that perhaps the President had in mind his dismissal order and the controversy it would arouse.

During the storm in Congress over the MacArthur ouster several members have called for the President's impeachment.

But Tobey has not made any public demand for impeachment. He said today he entertains "friendly" feelings for the President and is sorry that the incident occurred.

Meeting Was Closed

Other senators offered an explanation for the President's ire. They reported that Tobey had told a closed meeting of the Senate Banking subcommittee Monday that the President "could be impeached" if he suppressed evidence he once claimed to possess that some members of Congress received fees in connection with RFC loans.

Members of the subcommittee refused to speculate about how Mr. Truman might have obtained a version of Tobey's remarks from a meeting at which all present were pledged to secrecy.

Argentine Senate Votes To Expropriate Paper

BUENOS AIRES, April 12 (AP) — The Argentine Senate tonight voted to expropriate the 82-year-old opposition newspaper La Prensa. The all-Peronistra Senate approved by acclamation a bill passed by the Chamber of Deputies yesterday.

The Senate's action had been considered virtually certain. Yesterdays vote in the lower house to force the sale of the multi-million-dollar paper to the government was 103 to 16. There are no opposition members of the upper house.

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP) — President Truman will address the American Society of Newspaper Editors at its annual session here April 19, the White House announced today.

Edwards Named To Defense Post

WASHINGTON April 12 (AP) — President Truman today appointed Mayor Dan Kramer Edwards, of Durham, N. C., to be assist secretary of defense.

He will succeed Marx Leva who has resigned.

Edwards, 37, who served in the Army during World War Two, won the Distinguished Service Cross, the Silver Star, the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Air Medal, the Combat Infantry Badge, and the Purple Heart. He rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel and served on the general staff.

Screen Writer Collins Names Red Associates

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP) — Movie Writer Richard J. Collins testified today that Budd ("The Disenchanted") Schulberg and Ring Lardner, Jr., were active Communist Party members in Hollywood 10 years ago.

Collins, who said he was a Communist himself from 1938 until 1947, named about 20 other Hollywood figures as members of the party at one time or another.

He gave his testimony to the House Committee on Un-American Activities, which is investigating Communist penetration into the movie capital.

Collins said one of the screen writers he named as Communists, Paul Jarrico, refused in a conversation 10 days ago to promise he wouldn't help Soviet Russia in the event of war with the United States.

As Collins testified, Jarrico sat in the rear of the hearing room. The committee has called him as a witness tomorrow.

Collins said Schulberg left the party right after publication of his best-selling novel "What Makes Sammy Run?" in 1941. Schulberg has been back on the best-seller list recently with "The Disenchanted," a novel suggested by the career of the late Author F. Scott Fitzgerald.

Collins said Lardner remained a Communist "until 1946 or so—after that, I don't know."

Lardner, also a writer, is one of the 10 Hollywood figures who have been sent to prison for contempt of Congress after refusing to tell the Un-American Activities Committee about their political views.

GI Is Held In Alleged Plot To Kidnap Boy Video Actor

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP)—An Air Force private was arrested today on a charge that he plotted to kidnap a nine-year-old boy television actor unless he received $1,000 from the child's parents.

The FBI identified the prisoner as Pfc. James A. Harvey, 23, Brooklyn. The intended victim of the alleged plot was Stefan Olsen, who has appeared on the Philco Playhouse and Cameo Theater television shows over the NBC network.

Edward Schedit, head of the New York FBI office, said Harvey told authorities he planned to use the money for plastic surgery to change the shape of his nose.

Schedit said Harvey wrote the actor's mother "threatening to take her son from her forever" if she didn't send him $1,000.

A second letter instructed her to prepare a package of $1,000 in small bills and insert an advertisement in a New York paper. Later a telegram informed her the advertisement had been noted.

FBI agents obtained a description of the sender of the telegram from patrons of a bar from which the telegram was sent. They interviewed hundreds of soldiers at Mitchel Air Force base before Harvey was located.

Vital Materials To Be Doled Out By Government

Meat Price Lids Due Within Week

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—The government intends to put specific ceilings on meat prices shortly, and after July 1 it will resume its World War II practice of alloting scarce materials to defense industries.

These decisions were announced today as the President's new mobilization board wrestled with the problem of re-creating a wage stabilization agency.

After the board's session today, the White House announced that it expected "substantial agreement" between the unions and management on new wage stabilization board by next Tuesday.

Price control authorities said dollars and cents ceilings on meat are due within the next week. This will replace the general freeze to which meat prices are now subject.

Officials said the principal effect may be to bar further rises in price to consumers. No drop in retail prices is expected.

Beef orders are expected first, at slaughtering, wholesale and retail levels. Pork regulations will probably follow.

To dole out scarce materials judiciously to defense industries, the government will re-introduce a "controlled materials plan" July 1. It will guarantee the delivery of three basic munitions metals, steel, copper and aluminum, to defense factories.

What's left after the high priority industries are served will go into civilian goods. CMP, as the plan is called alphabetically, will not provide allocations for automobiles, refrigerators and similar lines. Manufacturers of such goods will buy the "free" supplies, at the same time remaining under present controls.

Manly Fleischmann, head of the National Production Authority, said CMP may bring "temporary hardships" to business, but that it is necessary if the country is to build adequate defenses against the possibility of all-out war.

GOP Presses Its Movement To Air Ouster

Debate Boils Up On Capital Hill

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—Republican leaders pressed slam-bang onslaught on the Truman administration tonight as Gen. Douglas MacArthur, deposed Far East commander, prepared to fly to the United States Monday.

While Truman supporters continued to insist that the firing of MacArthur was the only thing to do, Republicans accused the administration of leaning toward "appeasement" of communism and of putting the U. S. in grave danger of a new world war.

Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) declared in a New York speech that as things now stand World War III cannot be prevented "without an aggressive war against Communist China."

Word came from Tokyo tonight that MacArthur will leave Tokyo Monday for Hawaii and San Francisco on his first journey home in 14 years. Flying in his famous Constellation "Scap", MacArthur will make an overnight stop at Hawaii.

Debate Rages In Congress

Where he will go after reaching San Francisco was not stated. But Republicans want him to come here—as soon as possible—and tell his story publicly. They were hoping to put through a resolution to invite him to a joint meeting of Senate and House.

The debate boiled up in the halls of Congress today.

Sen. Welker (R-Idaho) told the Senate Mr. Truman should step out of the White House and give Vice President Barkley a chance "to restore unity and confidence" in the country.

Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) declared Acheson "should resign or be removed by the President" because the American people "no longer have confidence in him."

Sen. Robertson (D-Va) came to the Presidents defense saying MacArthur deliberately forced the issue "of who should be in charge of our foreign policy in the Far East." He said MacArthur knew the meaning of insubordination and had forced Mr. Truman to act.

Sen. Morse (R-Ore) declared the President had a constitutional right to remove MacArthur.

"God help the American people," he said, "if the day ever comes when we do not retain civilian control over the military."

Morse Rebukes Colleagues

Morse rebuked his colleagues who have talked of impeaching Mr. Truman. He said the only grounds for impeachment are treason, bribery and other high crimes or misdemeanors.

"Thank God," he added, "we have not reached the point where guilt is established by accusation."

In Tokyo, a MacArthur advisor said the five-star General will return home and stoutly defend his views on Asia—the views which President Truman said forced him to remove MacArthur.

Republican leaders worked feverishly to bring MacArthur before Congress—a forum in which he could expand on his views.

House Republican Leader Martin of Massachusetts said MacArthur may return to his country next week. But whenever it is, it is certain to be a dramatic homecoming piling fresh fuel on the fires of controversy already raging.

Republican leaders frankly said they want to bring MacArthur back before public reaction to his firing cools off.

It appeared today that administration leaders on Capitol Hill have

Remington-Rand Gets MacArthur

FORT MYERS, Fla. April 12 (AP) — James H. Rand, president of Remington-Rand, Inc., confirmed tonight that Gen. Douglas MacArthur will become an official of the business equipment and typewriter concern.

Rand, aboard his 130-foot yacht, Galaxy, tied up at the Fort Myers Yacht basin, said MacArthur would join the firm within 90 days and take an active part in its affairs.

He issued this statement in confirming reports that MacArthur would take a job with Remington-Rand:

"It is correct that the General will be elected to the board of Remington-Rand and assume an active part in its world-wide affairs within the next 90 days.

"I expect to confer with the General within a few weeks in New York or Washington upon his arrival at which time details will be discussed and worked out."

M'ARTHUR TO FLY HOME MONDAY

29 Red Planes Downed Or Damaged

American Jets And B-29s Bag At Least Eight

Enemy Withdrawal Puzzles Officers

TOKYO, Friday, April 13 (AP)—Twenty-nine Russian-type enemy planes were reported shot down or damaged over Northwest Korea yesterday in History's greatest jet and bomber air battles.

The fighting between enemy and American jets and B-29 bombers developed several hours after President Truman warned of a step-up in Red air power to be turned loose from Manchuria bases.

It also came at a time when the Chinese Reds made a puzzling withdrawal in West-Central Korea but kept up the resistance elsewhere.

Enemy jets pressed their attack on a B-29 bridge-bombing mission with unprecedented fury and determination but there were no reports of American plane losses.

The American jets and B-29s were credited by the Far East Air Force today with destroying eight enemy planes, probably destroying six and crippling 15 in the Thursday fighting.

B-29 Gunners Bag Four

The Air Force said a recheck of reports thus far showed the B-29 gunners knocked down four enemy jets, probably got four others and damaged one. U. S. jets were credited with four destroyed, two probables and 14 damaged.

Neither the B-29s nor the American jets had ever before made such a score for one day's fighting in the jet-speed era.

Air Force figures showed at least 65 MIGs were engaged in two separate battles with about 100 U. S. jets and 32 big bombers from Japan and Okinawa bases.

The B-29s hit the massive steel and concrete bridge over the Yalu River at Sinuiju on a main route of Red China's supply line to the Korean battlefronts.

The Air Force said the bombers made "the most concentrated interdiction attack of the war."

The bombing was pressed through on schedule in the thick of swirling dogfights and Red antiaircraft fire.

A flight of 50 or more MIGs swooped on the bmobers at the outset. The enemy planes were jumped in turn by masses of F-84 Thunderjets and F-86 Sabre jets flying cover for the B-29s.

Ridgeway Returns To Korea

The bombers themselves joined the last tactical air battle with their .50-calibre guns shooting at the swishing targets while bombardiers let got the heaviest tonnage of explosives dropped on a bridge during the Korean war.

On the ground, a withdrawal of Red forces in one sector — the west-central front—puzzled officers, because resistance was light to heavy elsewhere.

Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, newly-named top United Nations commander, returned to his Eighth Army headquarters after a brief visit in Tokyo with his predecessor, Gen. MacArthur.

Ridgway said he would return to Tokyo soon to assume his new duties—all of MacArthur's commands, including that as occupation chief in Japan.

At Least 1 Dead In Iran Rioting

TEHRAN, Iran, April 12 (AP) — Premier Hussein Ala said tonight that riots of strikers in the Abadan oil field area broke out today and that one Iranian woman was killed and three Britons were either killed or injured.

Troops and tanks have been sent there, the Premier said, and the situation is believed to be under control.

Poor communications between the capital and the oil center prevented getting exact details of the riots at Abadan and the nearby port, Bandur Mashur.

George Northcroft, field manager for the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, said he was informed by telephone that one Englishman had been injured and two were missing.

Northcroft blamed Communist Tudeh Party's agitation for the sudden outbreak of violence after 24 days of a comparatively peaceful strike of oil workers in the area.

ROME, April 12 (AP) — Norman Thomas, veteran U. S. Socialist leader, said tonight he is wholeheartedly behind President Truman in the dismissal of Gen. MacArthur.

Substitute Draft Measure Providing No UMT Turned Down 232 To 140 By House

Administration Bill Approval Due Today

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP) — The House overwhelmingly demonstrated today its support for lowering the draft age and making a survey preparatory to starting universal military training.

By a vote of 232 to 140, it defeated a substitute bill that would have extended the draft law but kept the present minimum induction age at 19 years. The defeated bill made no provision for UMT at any time.

Members were not recorded by name in the voting. Rep. Barden (D-NC) sponsored the bill.

Final Vote Deferred

The House put off until tomorrow a final vote on the administration-backed measure to drop the draft age to 18½, lengthen the period of service to 26 months and create a commission to report to Congress later on UMT. The draft law would be extended until July 1, 1954.

Indications were the administration bill would be passed and sent to the Senate-House conference.

The Senate has passed a bill lowering the draft age to 18, extending the service period to 24 months, putting a top strength of 4,000,000 on military personnel and authorizing the President to induct youths for universal military training after the need for a service draft ends.

Fights In The Offing

The UMT provision of the House bill is almost meaningless since it would take another act of Congress to start actual inductions for training.

The House bill still faces several tests before the final vote but in view of today's one-sided count it seemed unlikely that any major alterations would be made.

In the offing are fights to put a limit on military strength, to prohibit the sending of inductees to Europe without congressional approval, to retain the present induction minimum age at 19 and to permit inductees to have themselves assigned to units in which white men and negroes are segregated.

U. S. Marshal Is Arrested By FBI On Bribe Charge

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP) — The Justice Department announced tonight that Edwin J. Carrigan, United States marshal for the northern district of California, has been arrested on bribery charges.

Attorney Gen. J. Howard McGrath said the charges grew out of solicitation and acceptance of a bribe to prevent the removal of a federal prisoner, Phil Davis, from a prison farm to a federal penitentiary.

The Attorney General also authorized the prosecution of all individuals having any connection with the alleged act of bribery.

Carrigan was taken into custody by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in San Francisco, a spokesman for the Justice Department said.

At San Francisco, Carrigan's chief deputy, John A. Roseen, said he was "stunned" by the report. He said he didn't know Carrigan's immediate whereabouts.

Phil Davis, from whom the Justice Department said Carrigan solicited and received a bribe, is a wealthy Oakland, Calif., automobile dealer. Davis was sentenced to prison after his speed boat on Lake Tahoe severed the legs of a high school girl who was swimming in the lake.

Aggressive War On China Is Only Out, Taft Asserts

MacArthur "Feared" Appeasement Policy

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP) — Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) said tonight the prevention of World War III "cannot now be accomplished without an aggressive war against Communist China."

This would mean, Taft said, aid to Nationalist invaders of the mainland plus bombing of military targets in China. In neither case, he added, would it mean a general war in China.

Taft said Gen. MacArthur spoke on foreign policy because of a "justified fear" the United States would end the Korean war by appeasement.

The top leader spoke to an overflow audience of more than 1,000 at a meeting of Yale Engineering Association here, and was cheered and applauded frequently.

President "Inconsistent"

Taft declared:

"If the original sending of American troops to Korea was to prevent World War III — as the President said last night — then that purpose has been long completely lost from sight.

"It cannot now be accomplished without an aggressive war against Communist China and a punishment of the aggressor, as the North Koreans were punished.

"The President's position is completely inconsistent. He justified an active move against Korean aggression as a means of preventing World War III.

Reds' Half Way To Goal

"In the second half of his speech he claims World War III is prevented by a timid war against Communist China, and maintaining a Maginot Line defense against an aggressor which has already accomplished half his purpose.

"He justifies two completely inconsistent courses as means of preventing World War III. I don't suppose there has ever been a more inconsistent justification for vital moves in foreign policy."

Taft said " the firing of Gen. MacArthur has led the world to believe that we are now looking in the direction of appeasement."

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP)—An Air Force private was arrested today on a charge that he plotted to kidnap a nine-year-old boy television actor unless he received $1,000 from the child's parents.

The FBI identified the prisoner as Pfc. James A. Harvey, 23, Brooklyn. The intended victim of the alleged plot was Stefan Olsen, who has appeared on the Philco Playhouse and Cameo Theater television shows over the NBC network.

Edward Schedit, head of the New York FBI office, said Harvey told authorities he planned to use the money for plastic surgery to change the shape of his nose.

Schedit said Harvey wrote the actor's mother "threatening to take her son from her forever" if she didn't send him $1,000.

A second letter instructed her to prepare a package of $1,000 in small bills and insert an advertisement in a New York paper. Later a telegram informed her the advertisement had been noted.

FBI agents obtained a description of the sender of the telegram from patrons of a bar from which the telegram was sent. They interviewed hundreds of soldiers at Mitchel Air Force base before Harvey was located.

Vital Materials To Be Doled Out By Government

Meat Price Lids Due Within Week

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—The government intends to put specific ceilings on meat prices shortly, and after July 1 it will resume its World War II practice of alloting scarce materials to defense industries.

These decisions were announced today as the President's new mobilization board wrestled with the problem of re-creating a wage stabilization agency.

After the board's session today, the White House announced that it expected "substantial agreement" between the unions and management on new wage stabilization board by next Tuesday.

Price control authorities said dollars and cents ceilings on meat are due within the next week. This will replace the general freeze to which meat prices are now subject.

Officials said the principal effect may be to bar further rises in price to consumers. No drop in retail prices is expected.

Beef orders are expected first, at slaughtering, wholesale and retail levels. Pork regulations will probably follow.

To dole out scarce materials judiciously to defense industries, the government will re-introduce a "controlled materials plan" July 1. It will guarantee the delivery of three basic munitions metals, steel, copper and aluminum, to defense factories.

What's left after the high priority industries are served will go into civilian goods. CMP, as the plan is called alphabetically, will not provide allocations for automobiles, refrigerators and similar lines. Manufacturers of such goods will buy the "free" supplies, at the same time remaining under present controls.

Manly Fleischmann, head of the National Production Authority, said CMP may bring "temporary hardships" to business, but that it is necessary if the country is to build adequate defenses against the possibility of all-out war.

GOP Presses Its Movement To Air Ouster

Debate Boils Up On Capital Hill

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—Republican leaders pressed slam-bang onslaught on the Truman administration tonight as Gen. Douglas MacArthur, deposed Far East commander, prepared to fly to the United States Monday.

While Truman supporters continued to insist that the firing of MacArthur was the only thing to do, Republicans accused the administration of leaning toward "appeasement" of communism and of putting the U. S. in grave danger of a new world war.

Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) declared in a New York speech that as things now stand World War III cannot be prevented "without an aggressive war against Communist China."

Word came from Tokyo tonight that MacArthur will leave Tokyo Monday for Hawaii and San Francisco on his first journey home in 14 years. Flying in his famous Constellation "Scap", MacArthur will make an overnight stop at Hawaii.

Debate Rages In Congress

Where he will go after reaching San Francisco was not stated. But Republicans want him to come here—as soon as possible—and tell his story publicly. They were hoping to put through a resolution to invite him to a joint meeting of Senate and House.

The debate boiled up in the halls of Congress today.

Sen. Welker (R-Idaho) told the Senate Mr. Truman should step out of the White House and give Vice President Barkley a chance "to restore unity and confidence" in the country.

Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) declared Acheson "should resign or be removed by the President" because the American people "no longer have confidence in him."

Sen. Robertson (D-Va) came to the Presidents defense saying MacArthur deliberately forced the issue "of who should be in charge of our foreign policy in the Far East." He said MacArthur knew the meaning of insubordination and had forced Mr. Truman to act.

Sen. Morse (R-Ore) declared the President had a constitutional right to remove MacArthur.

"God help the American people," he said, "if the day ever comes when we do not retain civilian control over the military."

Morse Rebukes Colleagues

Morse rebuked his colleagues who have talked of impeaching Mr. Truman. He said the only grounds for impeachment are treason, bribery and other high crimes or misdemeanors.

"Thank God," he added, "we have not reached the point where guilt is established by accusation."

In Tokyo, a MacArthur advisor said the five-star General will return home and stoutly defend his views on Asia—the views which President Truman said forced him to remove MacArthur.

Republican leaders worked feverishly to bring MacArthur before Congress—a forum in which he could expand on his views.

House Republican Leader Martin of Massachusetts said MacArthur may return to his country next week. But whenever it is, it is certain to be a dramatic homecoming piling fresh fuel on the fires of controversy already raging.

Republican leaders frankly said they want to bring MacArthur back before public reaction to his firing cools off.

It appeared today that administration leaders on Capitol Hill have

Remington-Rand Gets MacArthur

FORT MYERS, Fla. April 12 (AP) — James H. Rand, president of Remington-Rand, Inc., confirmed tonight that Gen. Douglas MacArthur will become an official of the business equipment and typewriter concern.

Rand, aboard his 130-foot yacht, Galaxy, tied up at the Fort Myers Yacht basin, said MacArthur would join the firm within 90 days and take an active part in its affairs.

He issued this statement in confirming reports that MacArthur would take a job with Remington-Rand:

"It is correct that the General will be elected to the board of Remington-Rand and assume an active part in its world-wide affairs within the next 90 days.

"I expect to confer with the General within a few weeks in New York or Washington upon his arrival at which time details will be discussed and worked out."

Oath Section Of Ober Law Upheld By Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—The Supreme Court today upheld the right of states to bar from the ballot candidates for state and city offices who refuse to swear they are not involved in an attempt to overthrow government by violence.

Unanimously, the highest tribunal approved a section of Maryland's anti-subversive act—known as the Ober law—which requires such oaths.

Lawyers speculated that the decision might mean high court approval of the Federal Smith Act. Under the Smith Act the top American Communists were convicted of conspiracy. Their appeal is awaiting Supreme Court action now.

Some lawyers said that since the court has held a state can thus protect itself from an attempt at forceful overthrow of government, it is likely to rule that the federal government can take somewhat similar steps.

The Smith Act makes it a crime to advocate or teach overthrow of government by violence. The 11 Communists were convicted of conspiring to do this. Each faces a prison term of the high court upholds the convictions.

The Communists contend that the Smith Act violates constitutional guaranties of free speech.

The validity of the oath section of the Maryland law was contested by Mrs. Thelma Gerende of Baltimore. She sought to run for the Baltimore City Council on the Progressive Party ticket but refused to sign the oath.

Pullman Requests Rate Hike Authority

CHICAGO, April 12 (AP) — The Pullman Company today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington for authority to boost its sleeping car and parlor car rates by 15 per cent.

Carroll R. Harding, president of Pullman, said expenses have increased by more than $26,000,000 since 1947. Labor costs account for $19,000,000 of this amount, he said.

Harding said Pullman's 1951 costs will go up $15,000,000 over 1950 because of a recent wage increase of 12½ cents an hour, cost of living clauses in contracts and higher materials prices.

Deaths Of Two Women Probed

NANTUCKET, Mass., April 12 (AP) —The bodies of Mrs. Gladys Crawford, former wife of a Yale University official, and her daughter, Barbara, were found today in their home. Police began an investigation of the deaths.

Mrs. Crawford, who was about 50, was slumped beside a kitchen gas range with all jets turned on. Her daughter, 31, was found in her bedroom.

A physician said the mother died of gas fumes but withheld a verdict on the daughter's death since windows in the bedroom were wide open.

Mrs. Crawford was the daughter of the late Vice Adm. and Mrs. Harley H. Christy. The Admiral died about a year ago. She was the former wife of Albert C. Crawford, director of student appointments at Yale.

A neighbor's attempt to telephone Mrs. Crawford resulted in discovery of the bodies.

B. & O. Works To Repair Harpers Ferry Bridge

HARPER'S FERRY, W. Va., April 12 (AP)—Baltimore and Ohio Railroad officials said today they expected to have the fire-damaged Harper's Ferry bridge across the Potomac River back in operation by midnight tonight.

The bridge, over which all mainline traffic between Washington and the Midwest must travel, was put out of operation by a fire which was discovered shortly after 10 p. m. last night.

Traffic was delayed an hour and a half to two hours until about 2:30 p. m. today because trains had to be rerouted via Weverton, Hagerstown and Cherry Run over B. and O. and Western Maryland tracks.

The House Rules Committee cancelled a meeting tomorrow to consider a Republican resolution inviting MacArthur before a joint session of the Senate and House. There were reports the meeting was cancelled to give Democratic leaders a chance to talk over the problem.

Contempt Case Won By Lewis

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP) — The government's appeal from a decision acquitting John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers of contempt was thrown out today by the U. S. Court of Appeals.

Decision on whether to carry the case to the Supreme Court was withheld by the Justice Department. It has 90 days in which to file an appeal.

In a decision March 2, 1950, U. S. District Judge Richmond B. Keech cleared Lewis and his mine workers of both civil and criminal contempt charges.

The charges grew out of a strike of Lewis' 370,000 soft coal miners, and the issuance by Judge Keech of a back-to-work order Feb. 11.

The government argued Lewis had given only "sham" compliance to the order in directing the miners to return to work. The miners ignored the Lewis order. The government claimed that was according to Lewis' plan also.

Unable to appeal the acquittal of criminal contempt, the government asked the Court of Appeals to reverse Judge Keech on his civil contempt ruling.

McKeldin Opposes U. S. Public Recreation Aid

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 12 (AP) — Gov. McKeldin today begged the federal government "please, please" to keep its hand out of public recreation.

"Let us have no goose-stepping on the village green," the Governor said.

He addressed a sharp letter to the Federal Inter-Agency Committee on Recreation. George E. Dickie, its executive secretary, had asked all governors to comment on a draft of policy for the government in connection with public recreation.

Police Car Rams Jeep To Nab AWOL Soldier

FORT MEADE, Md., April 12 (AP) — A state police car deliberately rammed a speeding jeep today, troopers reported, in order to nab a young soldier who had escaped from a work detail at Fort Meade.

The jeep rolled over several times on the Washington Boulevard and then skidded 50 feet on its top before it came to a halt.

The soldier, although pinned under the wreckage, was only slightly injured.

Police identified him as 17-year-old Pvt. William J. Aberman of Philadelphia. They said he had been picked up for being AWOL from Fort Hood, Texas, and was under arrest at Fort Meade.

"Mothers March" Helps Set Polio Fund Record

BALTIMORE, April 12 (AP) — The Maryland 1951 March of Dimes has netted more than half a million dollars, thanks in part to a "mothers march" during a January snowstorm.

George L. Radcliffe, state chairman of the polio fund campaign, said today receipts total over $500,000, a record for Maryland.

He said $82,299 of the sum was collected by mothers who solicited in Baltimore City on Jan. 31, a very stormy night. Baltimore city's contribution of $229,020 compared with $150,000 in 1950.

CHICAGO, April 12 (AP) — The Pullman Company today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington for authority to boost its sleeping car and parlor car rates by 15 per cent.

Carroll R. Harding, president of Pullman, said expenses have increased by more than $26,000,000 since 1947. Labor costs account for $19,000,000 of this amount, he said.

Harding said Pullman's 1951 costs will go up $15,000,000 over 1950 because of a recent wage increase of 12½ cents an hour, cost of living clauses in contracts and higher materials prices.

Flash Flood In D. C.

WASHINGTON April 12 (AP) — A flash flood in Rock Creek this afternoon marooned a sedan containing three people at a ford and it took firemen battling a 20-mile-an-hour current more than an hour to free them.

Deaths Of Two Women Probed

NANTUCKET, Mass., April 12 (AP) —The bodies of Mrs. Gladys Crawford, former wife of a Yale University official, and her daughter, Barbara, were found today in their home. Police began an investigation of the deaths.

Mrs. Crawford, who was about 50, was slumped beside a kitchen gas range with all jets turned on. Her daughter, 31, was found in her bedroom.

A physician said the mother died of gas fumes but withheld a verdict on the daughter's death since windows in the bedroom were wide open.

Mrs. Crawford was the daughter of the late Vice Adm. and Mrs. Harley H. Christy. The Admiral died about a year ago. She was the former wife of Albert C. Crawford, director of student appointments at Yale.

A neighbor's attempt to telephone Mrs. Crawford resulted in discovery of the bodies.

Queuille May Quit

PARIS, April 12 (AP) — Premier Henri Queuille threatened today to resign and dissolve his month-old middle-of-the-road cabinet unless the National Assembly votes support of his tax-raising and election policies.

B. & O. Works To Repair Harpers Ferry Bridge

HARPER'S FERRY, W. Va., April 12 (AP)—Baltimore and Ohio Railroad officials said today they expected to have the fire-damaged Harper's Ferry bridge across the Potomac River back in operation by midnight tonight.

The bridge, over which all main-line traffic between Washington and the Midwest must travel, was put out of operation by a fire which was discovered shortly after 10 p. m. last night.

Traffic was delayed an hour and a half to two hours until about 2:30 p. m. today because trains had to be rerouted via Weverton, Hagerstown and Cherry Run over B. and O. and Western Maryland tracks.

not yet decided what stand they will take on inviting MacArthur to come before Congress.

The House Rules Committee cancelled a meeting tomorrow to consider a Republican resolution inviting MacArthur before a joint session of the Senate and House. There were reports the meeting was cancelled to give Democratic leaders a chance to talk over the problem.

The House Republican Policy Committee issued a statement during the day declaring the Truman administration "has proved its inability to either attain peace or wage war."

Contempt Case Won By Lewis

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP) — The government's appeal from a decision acquitting John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers of contempt was thrown out today by the U. S. Court of Appeals.

Decision on whether to carry the case to the Supreme Court was withheld by the Justice Department. It has 90 days in which to file an appeal.

In a decision March 2, 1950, U. S. District Judge Richmond B. Keech cleared Lewis and his mine workers of both civil and criminal contempt charges.

The charges grew out of a strike of Lewis' 370,000 soft coal miners, and the issuance by Judge Keech of a back-to-work order Feb. 11.

The government argued Lewis had given only "sham" compliance to the order in directing the miners to return to work. The miners ignored the Lewis order. The government claimed that was according to Lewis' plan also.

Unable to appeal the acquittal of criminal contempt, the government asked the Court of Appeals to reverse Judge Keech on his civil contempt ruling.

Painter Dies In Fall

BOWIE, Md., April 12 (AP)—Elbert Allen Mahan, 44, Laurel, Md., painter, was killed today when he fell 70 feet from a scaffold while painting a new standpipe.

McKeldin Opposes U. S. Public Recreation Aid

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 12 (AP) — Gov. McKeldin today begged the federal government "please, please" to keep its hand out of public recreation.

"Let us have no goose-stepping on the village green," the Governor said.

He addressed a sharp letter to the Federal Inter-Agency Committee on Recreation. George E. Dickie, its executive secretary, had asked all governors to comment on a draft of policy for the government in connection with public recreation.

Police Car Rams Jeep To Nab AWOL Soldier

FORT MEADE, Md., April 12 (AP) — A state police car deliberately rammed a speeding jeep today, troopers reported, in order to nab a young soldier who had escaped from a work detail at Fort Meade.

The jeep rolled over several times on the Washington Boulevard and then skidded 50 feet on its top before it came to a halt.

The soldier, although pinned under the wreckage, was only slightly injured.

Police identified him as 17-year-old Pvt. William J. Aberman of Philadelphia. They said he had been picked up for being AWOL from Fort Hood, Texas, and was under arrest at Fort Meade.

"Mothers March" Helps Set Polio Fund Record

BALTIMORE, April 12 (AP) — The Maryland 1951 March of Dimes has netted more than half a million dollars, thanks in part to a "mothers march" during a January snowstorm.

George L. Radcliffe, state chairman of the polio fund campaign, said today receipts total over $500,000, a record for Maryland.

He said $82,299 of the sum was collected by mothers who solicited in Baltimore City on Jan. 31, a very stormy night. Baltimore city's contribution of $229,020 compared with $150,000 in 1950.

Home Gardening Adds Mileage To Food Budget

By R. J. HASKELL

(First of a series of four articles)

WASHINGTON (INS)—If your family food budget just won't stretch far enough to provide all the leafy green and yellow vegetables your family requires for a nutritious, well-balanced diet, a solution is a home garden—now.

Aside from the actual cash-value of a home garden there are other benefits, satisfactory compensation for the hours of hard work involved.

"The value of home garden production in improved diets and health of our people, particularly those families with limited food budgets, is especially important under present conditions," Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan said recently in calling for renewed emphasis and orderly expansion of home gardening and home food preservation this year.

"A home garden can help to overcome the poor food habits and lack of knowledge of good nutrition among families that have ample funds to spend for food."

Fruits and vegetables supply nearly all of the vitamin C and two-thirds of the vitamin A value of our national diet. They furnish about one-fifth of the iron and thiamine, nearly one-fifth of the niacin and one-eighth of the calcium and riboflavin necessary in the diet.

The defense production effort is greatly taxing the available supply of railroad transportation equipment. More home gardening would relieve the nation's transportation system of a portion of its food delivery responsibilities, and release badly needed cars for transportation of other goods.

Home gardening and food preserving this year is a way to add mileage to the family food dollar. For those who cannot garden the economy of buying from commercial producers in quantity and freezing or canning is a proven way to cut food costs.

Tender, succulent, garden vegetables taste better, eaten fresh, frozen or canned.

Grow your own or purchase in quantity for home freezing or canning and eat better—save money. Plan a garden now!

In The Jungle

When the British explorer, Col. P. H. Fawcett, went to Brazil with his son, Jack, and a friend, to explore in 1925, he went to a land that is 65 times the size of England, the largest of the South American countries. Colonel Fawcett believed that in the Matto Grosso region he would find gold and diamonds in some fabulous lost metropolis, or, that failing, at least the site of the Garden of Eden.

Nowhere else in the world are found forests equal in extent to those of Brazil. Of these, some of the deepest are to be found in one of the least explored and least populated Brazilian states, Matto Grosso. In the jungles of Matto Grosso's lowlands are some 25,000 Indians of still uncivilized tribes.

In the spring of 1925 Colonel Fawcett, his son and his companion disappeared. Search for them has been hitherto vain. But now the leader of a Brazilian government expedition reports that he has found a skull and bones which he believes to be those of Colonel Fawcett, although he failed to find the skeletons of the Englishman's two companions because of the "strong desire of the Indians to leave the location." It was the Indians who led him to his grim find.

Whether the remains of Colonel Fawcett have, in fact, been found is still to be proved. Brazilian authorities have long believed that the Indians killed him and his two fellow explorers. News of the supposed solution of this human riddle comes at a time when representatives of the 21 American republics are conferring in Washington on problems of defense and other mutual interests.

It is a reminder that large areas of the Western Hemisphere are still unknown and unused.

Novelty For Congress

In taking up a bill reported out by the House Appropriations Committee in response to President Truman's request for an additional $843,000,000 to cover non-military defense spending, the House of Representatives has a novel experience. The bill would allow only $479,000,000 for these purposes.

Seldom, if ever, has the committee cut thus deeply a major Administration appropriations bill. Usually it is lucky to end up whittling 10 per cent from a measure sent up by the White House—and this time it has reduced the figure requested by 43 per cent. A story was widely circulated in Washington during the late President Roosevelt's Administration that a 10 per cent cut made by Congress in one of his requests for money surprised him no end. He had added more than that to the request in anticipation of a deeper slash.

An increasing reluctance to just go ahead and vote funds on demand had a great deal to do with the result. It is especially heartening to note that the committee took a dim view of the tendency on the part of government departments to expand because they are given defense jobs to handle. What they should do, according to the committee, is shuffle their staffs so that present personnel can handle these activities.

That's a novel idea. It probably doesn't sound very attractive to most government bureaucrats and some legislators may not be too enthusiastic over it. But an emergency as costly as this one is destined to be should produce some new and more efficient ways of doing things.

He Never Found Out

Until it is examined in detail, the story of Alexander Ector Orr Munsell of New York has a romantic ring that the most acquisitive find fascinating. Mr. Munsell, first glance indicates, started out to prove the truth of that ancient cliche: money cannot buy happiness.

Whether he proved it or not is uncertain. However, it is known that he inherited more than $1,000,000 from his grandfather and an aunt, but grew weary of wealth. Sixteen years ago he settled half of his fortune on his wife and children and gave the remainder away. He wanted, he said, "to experience the reality of being poor."

He is back in the news because he has inherited again. This time the jackpot is for $650,000. From friends and relatives comes word that he may keep it, apparently having grown weary of being weary of wealth. But Mr. Munsell's experience has fulfilled the requirements neither of reality nor poverty as it is endured by the truly poor.

He lived for a time on dried prunes in a cheap furnished room, but the available evidence does not indicate that he ever worked. And in recent years he has lived a pleasant life devoted to his books, his family and charity. The explanation, as discovered by reporters, of how he managed to live like the lilies of the field is simple. His relatives, including his mother who has now left him another fortune, were "generous" to him.

With a rich and "generous" mother, who has to worry about such bothersome problems of poverty as earning a living? Who, with rich relatives scattered all over the map, can know what its like to be poor? Mr. Munsell, if his friends have the straight dope, has given up trying to find out.

Mr. Munsell's first wife divorced him in 1936, after he distributed his wealth. He was, she said, suffering from "delayed adolescence."

The Housewife's Power

There are signs that the purchasing public is taking present inflated prices into its own hands. This statement is not a rough guess. It comes from an authoritative source—Charles E. Wilson, head of the Office of Defense Mobilization.

Mr. Wilson told a congressional "watchdog" committee of an industrialist who complains that his products are piling up in warehouses because the public refuses to purchase them at the excessive prices he admits he has fixed. "In order to overcome this stoppage of sales," reports Mr. Wilson, "the producer has cut his prices 10 per cent and others in the same line are making even deeper cuts."

Consumer resistance will not of itself curb inflation, but it is a powerful weapon. The housewife has it in her power to cut down greed and profiteering at the retail level. As concerns food prices, housewives could exert, through vigilance and resistance, a profound influence against excessive prices—that is, against inflation.

Jefferson And The Medical Profession

TODAY is the 208th anniversary of Thomas Jefferson's birthday, which reminds us that he had little use for the rank and file physician of his day. In this respect he was ahead of his times because colonial medicine, as we now realize was nothing to brag about. Jefferson was a rationalist and took a simple and logical view of sickness and health. He considered the human body too complicated to experiment with and had no patience with the antics of the early 19th century physicians who bled and purged and deranged the system in other ways. He also deplored their lack of factual knowledge of disease.

Jefferson used more judgment in this regard that the modern man who criticizes his physician for seeking the cause of a disorder before treating it. How often a patient will say, "Forget the cause; just give me something to cure it." Jefferson was aware of this tendency and felt that it helped to perpetuate fraud and ignorance. He winced when the medico of that era prescribed potent drugs or even placebos such as "bread pills, drops of colored water, and powders of hickory ashes." He called this therapy "a pious fraud." Oddly enough, he admired Dr. Benjamin Rush and it was here that Jefferson used poor judgment because history has disproved the truth of the majority of Rush's opinions.

But not all fields of medicine were anathema to Jefferson. He approved of the study of anatomy, surgery, and the history of medical practice since the time of Hippocrates. In drawing up plans for the University of Virginia he proposed only a single professorship in anatomy and the history of medicine; vegetable pharmacy was to be part of the botany course and chemical pharmacy was to be taught in the department of minerology and chemistry. Students who were to go on into medicine were to finish the course by clinical observation at the bedside of the sick and in the operating room. This concept also was advanced thinking because at that time men were permitted to practice after "reading" medicine.

At any rate Jefferson, like Benjamin Franklin, drew up and adhered to certain rules of health and conduct. According to the Epicurean standards of our third president, "Happiness is the aim of life." He felt that desire and fear were the two principal diseases of the mind and that, to achieve tranquility, these qualities must be shunned. Adherence to such a plan may have been partly responsible for Jefferson's longevity. He lived to be 83 and the boredom of retirement was avoided by "reacquiring the knack of farming" and his ability to produce. He continued to write voluminously until the end even tho, as he put, "At the age of 82, with one foot in the grave and the other uplifted to follow it, I do not permit myself to take part in any new enterprises." About 10 days before his death, he wrote a letter declining the invitation to attend the celebration of the 50th anniversary of American Independence, because he was failing physically.

Among Jefferson's other rules was: "We never repent of having eaten too little." This is a wise canon as keeping down the waistline will help to keep up the lifeline. Would that more of us practiced this habit. He also believed that "nothing is troublesome that we do willingly" and "how much pain have cost us the evils which never happened." With such principles no doubt he was free from hypertension and stomach ulcers. The same can be said of his advice. "When angry, count 10 before you speak; if very angry, 100."

BURSITIS AND BOWLING

L. G. writes: After acute bursitis is relieved, is it safe to go bowling again?

REPLY

This would be tempting fate because bowling is one of the forms of exercise that lead to bursitis. If the game means a lot to you, you might play again and see what happens.

GLOVES ARE WORN

D. F. writes: Do physicians use rubber gloves when performing an autopsy?

REPLY

Yes, for esthetic reasons and for protection against possible infection. The hands are subject to injury because we use them so much in everyday tasks. If we should cut or lacerate the skin these openings invite bacterial invasion. Protection is important for the pathologist who is working on tissues that may be teeming with organisms.

Mrs. Q. writes: How can a woman distinguish between pregnancy and the menopause?

REPLY

This seldom is a problem but when the question arises pregnancy tests can be made.

GOP Senators Should Decide MacArthur-Truman Controversy By Showdown Congressional Vote; MacArthur Policy Means All-Out War With China

Ed. Note—Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to Senators Taft of Ohio and Wherry of Nebraska, the two top Republican leaders of the Senate, over the crucial issue of General MacArthur's differences with the White House.

To Senators Robert A. Taft and
Kenneth Wherry
United States Senate
Washington, D. C.

Dear Senators:

The nation has been facing an extremely important question as to whether the direction of foreign policy shall be with the President or with General MacArthur.

It is a question which goes to the vitals of our constitutional system, and which may cost or save American lives in the future. It is also a question over which there has been a great deal of political sniping and which, in brief, has gotten out of hand.

Therefore, I respectfully suggest to you, the leaders of the Republican party in the Senate, a means by which this crucial question can be settled.

Last week, Republican leaders won an important, perhaps historic victory by voting that the President of the United States was not to send more than four divisions of American troops to Europe without the consent of Congress. Therefore, I suggest that having established this precedent regarding the direction of military policy, you follow it up by deciding the question now posed by General MacArthur—namely, shall we get involved in war with China?

Debate Is Healthy

It is the role of Congress under our constitutional system to represent the people of the United States. Your mail, your telephone calls, your visitors from back home give you a better gauge of what the people think than the White House; certainly better than a man who is 8,000 miles away in Tokyo and has not been in the United States for 15 years.

Furthermore Congress has the power to declare war. The Constitution provides this, and it is clear under the Constitution that the Congress is to take such a step only after the clash of debate, only after giving the nation an opportunity to listen to that debate and make its views known to its senators and representatives.

Therefore if we are to have war with China, it is vital that there be full, fair and open discussion.

Another Wherry Resolution

Such discussion is also clearly indicated by the no-more-troops resolution passed by the Republican party under your leadership last week.

This resolution, as you, Senator Wherry, announced to the press gallery last week, was the "Wherry Resolution." I suggested therefore that you introduce another Wherry resolution, resolving: "That it be the sense of the Senate that the executive branch of the government adopt the views of General MacArthur and that, as between Europe and the Far East, we meet the threat of communism in the Far East by bombing Chinese cities and using Chiang Kai-Shek's troops without regard to all-out war."

I suggest that you take MacArthur's views exactly as he has written them in his letter to ex-Speaker Joe Martin and put them up for debate. In this letter he states quite clearly that our most important front against communism is the Far East, not Europe, and that he wants an all-out battle on this front.

Such a resolution would give the American public an opportunity to see exactly what this policy means.

The American people, if I know them, are anxious to localize our Far Eastern fighting as much as possible, not spread it. And, during a congressional debate over a second Wherry resolution, they would have a chance to make their views known. They might have some views, for instance, on the Pentagon's belief that, when you start bombing Chinese cities, when you land Chiang Kai-Shek's rival troops on the Chinese mainland, you don't localize war, you spread it.

War with China is something which Japan at the peak of her military power was not able to win. Yet Japan was only a few miles from China. We are 8,000 miles away and already straining our transport lines to keep the relatively localized Korean operation supplied.

Ten-Year War

Military experts all agree that fighting China would be like fighting a sponge. Such a war would last 10 years. We have already seen how cheap Chinese life is, how wave after wave of Communist suicide troops were thrown against our lines in Korea merely to explode mine fields.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The American Assembly

FRED SMITH has sent out a notice of the American Assembly, which is to be held under the auspices of the graduate School of Business of Columbia University in May, depending upon General Eisenhower's European commitments. Fred Smith, be it noted, was one of the public relations counsel of Wendell Willkie during his presidential campaign.

The purpose of the American Assembly is "to discuss and clarify vital national issues," which is laudable, and the subject of the first assembly will be "The Relationship of the United States to Western Europe," which, of course, has been considered in "the great debate" and Congress is now legislating on matters pertaining to it. By May, much of this legislation shall have been passed and the obligations shall have been set. However, there can be no harm in either discussion or clarification, particularly the latter.

The press release for "The First Assembly," as the May meeting is to be called, states:

> "The prime, objective of this assembly is to state and clarify as much as possible the many interrelated questions involved in what we are to do about Western Europe — how far we should go toward protecting Western Europe from communism, the importance of Western Europe to us, and the price we might have to pay for various methods of meeting the situation. If some of the conflicts of opinion on this subject can be resolved, the assembly will have made an important contribution."

I do not think that this goes far enough. I should like to see a discussion on how we got into our present troubles, who got us there, what foundations were laid for them at Teheran, Yalta, and Potsdam. Every public situation that faces us today has its roots in the past.

For it seems to me that nobody can discuss with any intelligence the status of our relations to Western Europe or to communism in May, 1951, without a full grasp of the agreements, stipulations and promises, written and verbal, which underly our present difficulties with Soviet Russia.

For instance, we need to know why when we could have taken Berlin as an American prize, we did not. Why did we delay until the Russians could come up? Why did we establish a tripartite city with no exit or entrance from and to the American zone except through the Russian zone? When we understand the errors we have made, it will be possible for us to assess the full criminality of Russia's action in hurling the world into war again. What is the basis for all the confusion in Korea?

Then the circular says about "The First Assembly":

"It will not be the function of the American Assembly to set forth (sic) a specific way to dispose of this issue, but rather to provide a thorough discussion of all the problems involved, get all the facts before the people, and thereby make it possible for the citizen to exercise his own judgment."

Whenever I see that there is to be a "thorough discussion" to get "all the facts," I like to know who is going to do the discussing. Thus far, I see only these names: General Dwight D. Eisenhower, and Professors Schuyler Wallace, Philip E. Mosely, Leland M. Goodrich, Ragnar Nurkse, Franz Neumann, William T. R. Fox, and L. Gray Cowan. These are all professors, engaged in research, and all are internationalists. This is no reflection upon these men or their ability, but obviously they are of one view. To them is added former Ambassador to Great Britain Lewis W. Douglas and Professor Philip Young, dean of the Graduate School of Business of Columbia University.

Perhaps invitations will be issued to those who are in opposition to the internationalist or, more accurately, the British point of view. The test of the objectivity of this assembly will be when the list of delegates and speakers is published, and I shall comment on it then. It will be interesting to see whether such students of the problem as Herbert Hoover and Robert A. Taft will be invited to speak their minds to the professors or whether only those will be asked who support the British point of view.

In a word, is this a forum or a study group of a propaganda set-up?

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

Truman And MacArthur; The Battle Is Joined

WASHINGTON

EITHER President Truman or Gen MacArthur had to be fired—and a general cannot fire his commander-in-chief. It is really as simple as that. The fact that MacArthur not only violently opposed the Administration's policy, but continued to say so in an endless stream of pronouncements, made a showdown sooner or later inevitable, as MacArthur himself probably recognized. The only real surprise is that Truman decided to dismiss MacArthur immediately rather than taking the easier way of waiting for the signing of the Japanese peace treaty.

The reasons he did so are inherent in his character and outlook. For one thing, Truman is extraordinarily sensitive where his powers as President are concerned, perhaps in part because he knows that he became President by sheer happenchance. For another thing, there is Truman's absolutely rigid code, deriving in part from his days as a machine politician, which demands a relationship of unquestioning political loyalty, given and returned, between "the boss" and his subordinates. With Truman cast in the role of boss and MacArthur in the role of subordinate, this relationship was bound sooner or later to break down. The breaking point came with MacArthur's statement of March 25, which challenged Truman's Presidential authority, and with the Martin letter which in Truman's eyes was the equivalent of trading with the Republican enemy.

Decision Was Triumph

From beginning to end, then, the decision was Truman's, and Truman's alone. In the battle of the titans which is now in prospect, this should be borne in mind. Already MacArthur's dismissal is being described as a triumph for Secretary of State Dean Acheson, and for the views which Acheson is supposed to represent. This is inaccurate on both counts. Acheson was of course consulted, but he played no decisive part. He was not even present at the White House meeting on Tuesday afternoon, attended among others by Chairman of the Joint Chiefs Omar Bradley and Presidential adviser Averill Harriman, when the President finally decided to act.

Moreover, it is odd but true that after the Chinese intervention in Korea, Acheson was the strongest proponent of precisely the course MacArthur now advocates, including bombing the Chinese mainland and using Nationalist troops. He was only dissuaded when it became clear that this course would wreck the Anglo-American alliance, the keystone of American foreign policy.

In fact, the strongest pressure for dismissing MacArthur came, not from the State Department, but from the Pentagon, Secretary of Defense Marshall, Undersecretary Robert Lovett, and all four Joint Chiefs, whose directives MacArthur had consistently disregarded, unanimously favored the move. But the final decision was Truman's and it is Truman who must now play David to MacArthur's Goliath in the great struggle, with its enormous implications for American domestic politics and world strategy, which will now certainly ensue.

Depends On Korea

This is written on the day of MacArthur's dismissal, and the future is even less clear than usual. But it does seem certain that the MacArthur issue will divide the Congress on fairly strict party lines. As of this writing, the Democratic strategy is to go along with the Wherry Resolution inviting MacArthur to address a joint session, but to arrange a joint meeting of the Senate Foreign Affairs and Armed Services Committees beforehand, at which MacArthur can be asked some very pertinent questions. Meanwhile, Truman took the offensive, going on the air to explain his Constitutional and other reasons for dismissing MacArthur.

As for the Republicans, the Taft-Wherry wing of the party clearly sees MacArthur as the ideal rallying point for an all-out attack on Truman and through Truman, on American foreign policy. The results are likely to depend very largely on what actually happens in Korea. For if the American forces suffer a shattering reversal in the expected offensive (as is all too possible, for reasons which will be discussed in a forthcoming report) MacArthur will seem to be triumphantly vindicated. The demand for the bombing of the Manchurian bases will then become almost irresistible, and Truman, who has resisted this demand, will appear as the architect of disaster. It may be that MacArthur himself has been fully aware of this possibility.

Bombing the Chinese mainland might be the prelude to a third world war. But whatever happens, one thing is clear. The basic issue which has now been posed is whether or not the main American effort in peace or war, should be diverted from Europe to Asia. MacArthur himself has repeatedly posed this issue, most recently in his astonishing reported statement that Formosa is more important to the defense of the United States than France. This familiar problem is the real issue, behind all the drama and uproar, and it is as crucial an issue as this country faces. If the United States is not to be left without an ally in the world other than Chiang Kai-shek, it can be decided in the end, as it has been decided before, in only one way.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)

LAST SUMMER in Tokyo Gen. Douglas MacArthur told me, in an unusual private interview in his home, that the historians of the future would regard the democratization of Japan as a more momentous event of the first half of the twentieth century than either world war.

He suggested events would prove that as Japan went so would go Asia's other countless millions. And Japan, he added, was going great.

In five swift years, MacArthur enthused, a nation which had been determined to fight us to the death was now our fastest friend. It had rebuilt itself spiritually, morally, physically. It had come close to balancing its budget for the first time in its long history. Its people were healthier than ever before, sounder emotionally, ready to become the peaceful industrial giant which could stabilize the east.

The man dismissed not only his considerable roles in World War One and Two, but the conflicts themselves in his gifted appraisal of the coming of Anglo-Saxon culture and constitutional thought to the key nation of the east—by way of the GI.

One easily gained the feeling that he was much more intensely proud of his quietly stupendous success as the American re-creator of Japan that of his enormously publicized and hailed military feats.

Korea, he told me, was a battlefield on which a question of civilization and the personal freedom of men was being contested. But it too, he predicted, would be dismissed quickly by the historian of a thousand years hence—in the latter's salute to the democratic metamorphosis of Japan's 84,000,000 people.

The memory of that interview, and the picture of the man's face as he spoke of miraculous changes which were hardly rating a paragraph in the papers, stirred in me when I first read the news that he had been sacked with shocking rudeness.

It is conceivable that MacArthur, the military man, was not irreplaceable in the new war. The U. N. rules under which it is being fought do not call for MacArthur's type of imaginative genius. It is war of attrition and will remain so, with all that type of warfare's exhausting tolls, until MacArthur's plan of destroying Chinese supply bases is adopted.

But MacArthur, the administrator, is to my way of thinking an indispensible man. The President, Acheson and Marshall have cut the legs from under a unique and irreplaceable proconsul. They have done so in a manner that could very well destroy the greatest work of a great American's life.

In the course of shaving the "face" off MacArthur they have struck a grave blow to a huge, tough, friendly nation which was being surely led out of 2,000 years of savage mysticism and into the vital little family of democracies by MacArthur alone.

Of course, MacArthur had a vast staff of economists, specialists in free government, authorities on constitutional procedures and so forth, just as he had colonels, majors, captains, lieutenants and privates carrying out his military commands.

But it was he, personally, who bore the chief burden of administrator. It was he who decided it was better to lead the Japanese than to club them into western ways. Their love and respect for him as an individual, rather than as a symbol, equalled their outlook on the emperor. They knew him as their friend, guardian and adviser from the day, early in the occupation, when he put his arm around a frightened floor-mopper at his Dai Ichi headquarters, and genially shared an elevator ride with him.

Japan without MacArthur as its inspirational administrator is a Japan into which Russia can now filter its hundreds of thousands of indoctrinated Japanese captives. His abrupt removal is an open invitation to submerged Japanese militarism, Communism, socialism and Shintoism cliques to emerge from under their rocks.

MacArthur did not stay in Japan in the postwar years in order to fight a war in Korea. He stayed to shape Japan into the image and likeness of the country he loves and has served faithfully for half a century. But now that enormous work, that dream of ever-increasing substance, is smashed to bits.

In The Jungle

When the British explorer, Col. P. H. Fawcett, went to Brazil with his son, Jack, and a friend, to explore in 1925, he went to a land that is 65 times the size of England, the largest of the South American countries. Colonel Fawcett believed that in the Matto Grosso region he would find gold and diamonds in some fabulous lost metropolis, or, that failing, at least the site of the Garden of Eden.

Nowhere else in the world are found forests equal in extent to those of Brazil. Of these, some of the deepest are to be found in one of the least explored and least populated Brazilian states, Matto Grosso. In the jungles of Matto Grosso's lowlands are some 25,000 Indians of still uncivilized tribes.

In the spring of 1925 Colonel Fawcett, his son and his companion disappeared. Search for them has been hitherto vain. But now the leader of a Brazilian government expedition reports that he has found a skull and bones which he believes to be those of Colonel Fawcett, although he failed to find the skeletons of the Englishman's two companions because of the "strong desire of the Indians to leave the location." It was the Indians who led him to his grim find.

Whether the remains of Colonel Fawcett have, in fact, been found is still to be proved. Brazilian authorities have long believed that the Indians killed him and his two fellow explorers. News of the supposed solution of this human riddle comes at a time when representatives of the 21 American republics are conferring in Washington on problems of defense and other mutual interests.

It is a reminder that large areas of the Western Hemisphere are still unknown and unused.

Novelty For Congress

In taking up a bill reported out by the House Appropriations Committee in response to President Truman's request for an additional $843,000,000 to cover non-military defense spending, the House of Representatives has a novel experience. The bill would allow only $479,000,000 for these purposes.

Seldom, if ever, has the committee cut thus deeply a major Administration appropriations bill. Usually it is lucky to end up whittling 10 per cent from a measure sent up by the White House—and this time it has reduced the figure requested by 43 per cent. A story was widely circulated in Washington during the late President Roosevelt's Administration that a 10 per cent cut made by Congress in one of his requests for money surprised him no end. He had added more than that to the request in anticipation of a deeper slash.

An increasing reluctance to just go ahead and vote funds on demand had a great deal to do with the result. It is especially heartening to note that the committee took a dim view of the tendency on the part of government departments to expand because they are given defense jobs to handle. What they should do, according to the committee, is shuffle their staffs so that present personnel can handle these activities.

That's a novel idea. It probably doesn't sound very attractive to most government bureaucrats and some legislators may not be too enthusiastic over it. But an emergency as costly as this one is destined to be should produce some new and more efficient ways of doing things.

Students who were to go on into medicine were to finish the course by clinical observation at the bedside of the sick and in the operating room. This concept also was advanced thinking because at that time men were permitted to practice after "reading" medicine.

At any rate Jefferson, like Benjamin Franklin, drew up and adhered to certain rules of health and conduct. According to the Epicurean standards of our third president, "Happiness is the aim of life." He felt that desire and fear were the two principal diseases of the mind and that, to achieve tranquility, these qualities must be shunned. Adherence to such a plan may have been partly responsible for Jefferson's longevity. He lived to be 83 and the boredom of retirement was avoided by "reacquiring the knack of farming" and his ability to produce. He continued to write voluminously until the end even tho, as he put, "At the age of 82, with one foot in the grave and the other uplifted to follow it, I do not permit myself to take part in any new enterprises." About 10 days before his death, he wrote a letter declining the invitation to attend the celebration of the 50th anniversary of American Independence, because he was failing physically.

Among Jefferson's other rules was: "We never repent of having eaten too little." This is a wise canon as keeping down the waistline will help to keep up the lifeline. Would that more of us practiced this habit. He also believed that "nothing is troublesome that we do willingly" and "how much pain have cost us the evils which never happened." With such principles no doubt he was free from hypertension and stomach ulcers. The same can be said of his advice. "When angry, count 10 before you speak; if very angry, 100."

BURSITIS AND BOWLING

L. G. writes: After acute bursitis is relieved, is it safe to go bowling again?

REPLY

This would be tempting fate because bowling is one of the forms of exercise that lead to bursitis. If the game means a lot to you, you might play again and see what happens.

GLOVES ARE WORN

D. F. writes: Do physicians use rubber gloves when performing an autopsy?

REPLY

Yes, for esthetic reasons and for protection against possible infection. The hands are subject to injury because we use them so much in everyday tasks. If we should cut or lacerate the skin, these openings invite bacterial invasion. Protection is important for the pathologist who is working on tissues that may be teeming with organisms.

GOP Senators Should Decide MacArthur-Truman Controversy By Showdown Congressional Vote; MacArthur Policy Means All-Out War With China

Ed. Note—Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to Senators Taft of Ohio and Wherry of Nebraska, the two top Republican leaders of the Senate, over the crucial issue of General MacArthur's differences with the White House.

To Senators Robert A. Taft and
Kenneth Wherry
United States Senate
Washington, D. C.

Dear Senators:

The nation has been facing an extremely important question as to whether the direction of foreign policy shall be with the President or with General MacArthur.

It is a question which goes to the vitals of our constitutional system, and which may cost or save American lives in the future. It is also a question over which there has been a great deal of political sniping and which, in brief, has gotten out of hand.

Therefore, I respectfully suggest to you, the leaders of the Republican party in the Senate, a means by which this crucial question can be settled.

Last week, Republican leaders won an important, perhaps historic victory by voting that the President of the United States was not to send more than four divisions of American troops to Europe without the consent of Congress. Therefore, I suggest that having established this precedent regarding the direction of military policy, you follow it up by deciding the question now posed by General MacArthur—namely, shall we get involved in war with China?

Debate Is Healthy

It is the role of Congress under our constitutional system to represent the people of the United States. Your mail, your telephone calls, your visitors from back home give you a better gauge of what the people think than the White House; certainly better than a man who is 8,000 miles away in Tokyo and has not been in the United States for 15 years.

Furthermore Congress has the power to declare war. The Constitution provides this, and it is clear under the Constitution that the Congress is to take such a step only after the clash of debate, only after giving the nation an opportunity to listen to that debate and make its views known to its senators and representatives.

Therefore if we are to have war with China, it is vital that there be full, fair and open discussion.

Another Wherry Resolution

Such discussion is also clearly indicated by the no-more-troops resolution passed by the Republican party under your leadership last week.

This resolution, as you, Senator Wherry, announced to the press gallery last week, was the "Wherry Resolution." I suggested therefore that you introduce another Wherry resolution, resolving: "That it be the sense of the Senate that the executive branch of the government adopt the views of General MacArthur and that, as between Europe and the Far East, we meet the threat of communism in the Far East by bombing Chinese cities and using Chiang Kai-Shek's troops without regard to all-out war."

I suggest that you take MacArthur's views exactly as he has written them in his letter to ex-Speaker Joe Martin and put them up for debate. In this letter he states quite clearly that our most important front against communism is the Far East, not Europe, and that he wants an all-out battle on this front.

Such a resolution would give the American public an opportunity to see exactly what this policy means.

The American people, if I know them, are anxious to localize our Far Eastern fighting as much as possible, not spread it. And, during a congressional debate over a second Wherry resolution, they would have a chance to make their views known. They might have some views, for instance, on the Pentagon's belief that, when you start bombing Chinese cities, when you land Chiang Kai-Shek's rival troops on the Chinese mainland, you don't localize war, you spread it.

War with China is something which Japan at the peak of her military power was not able to win. Yet Japan was only a few miles from China. We are 8,000 miles away and already straining our transport lines to keep the relatively localized Korean operation supplied.

Ten-Year War

Military experts all agree that fighting China would be like fighting a sponge. Such a war would last 10 years. We have already seen how cheap Chinese life is, how wave after wave of Communist suicide troops were thrown against our lines in Korea merely to explode mine fields.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The American Assembly

FRED SMITH has sent out a notice of the American Assembly, which is to be held under the auspices of the graduate School of Business of Columbia University in May, depending upon General Eisenhower's European commitments. Fred Smith, be it noted, was one of the public relations counsel of Wendell Willkie during his presidential campaign.

The purpose of the American Assembly is "to discuss and clarify vital national issues," which is laudable, and the subject of the first assembly will be "The Relationship of the United States to Western Europe," which, of course, has been considered in "the great debate" and Congress is now legislating on matters pertaining to it. By May, much of this legislation shall have been passed and the obligations shall have been set. However, there can be no harm in either discussion or clarification, particularly the latter.

The press release for "The First Assembly," as the May meeting is to be called, states:

> "The prime, objective of this assembly is to state and clarify as much as possible the many interrelated questions involved in what we are to do about Western Europe — how far we should go toward protecting Western Europe from communism, the importance of Western Europe to us, and the price we might have to pay for various methods of meeting the situation. If some of the conflicts of opinion on this subject can be resolved, the assembly will have made an important contribution."

I do not think that this goes far enough. I should like to see a discussion on how we got into our present troubles, who got us there, what foundations were laid for them at Teheran, Yalta, and Potsdam. Every public situation that faces us today has its roots in the past.

For it seems to me that nobody can discuss with any intelligence the status of our relations to Western Europe or to communism in May, 1951, without a full grasp of the agreements, stipulations and promises, written and verbal, which underly our present difficulties with Soviet Russia.

For instance, we need to know why when we could have taken Berlin as an American prize, we did not. Why did we delay until the Russians could come up? Why did we establish a tripartite city with no exit or entrance from and to the American zone except through the Russian zone? When we understand the errors we have made, it will be possible for us to assess the full criminality of Russia's action in hurling the world into war again. What is the basis for all the confusion in Korea?

Then the circular says about "The First Assembly":

"It will not be the function of the American Assembly to set forth (sic) a specific way to dispose of this issue, but rather to provide a thorough discussion of all the problems involved, get all the facts before the people, and thereby make it possible for the citizen to exercise his own judgment."

Whenever I see that there is to be a "thorough discussion" to get "all the facts," I like to know who is going to do the discussing. Thus far, I see only these names: General Dwight D. Eisenhower, and Professors Schuyler Wallace, Philip E. Mosely, Leland M. Goodrich, Ragnar Nurkse, Franz Neumann, William T. R. Fox, and L. Gray Cowan. These are all professors, engaged in research, and all are internationalists. This is no reflection upon these men or their ability, but obviously they are of one view. To them is added former Ambassador to Great Britain Lewis W. Douglas and Professor Philip Young, dean of the Graduate School of Business of Columbia University.

Perhaps invitations will be issued to those who are in opposition to the internationalist or, more accurately, the British point of view. The test of the objectivity of this assembly will be when the list of delegates and speakers is published, and I shall comment on it then. It will be interesting to see whether such students of the problem as Herbert Hoover and Robert A. Taft will be invited to speak their minds to the professors or whether only those will be asked who support the British point of view.

In a word, is this a forum or a study group of a propaganda set-up?

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON

EITHER President Truman or Gen MacArthur had to be fired—and a general cannot fire his commander-in-chief. It is really as simple as that. The fact that MacArthur not only violently opposed the Administration's policy, but continued to say so in an endless stream of pronouncements, made a showdown sooner or later inevitable, as MacArthur himself probably recognized. The only real surprise is that Truman decided to dismiss MacArthur immediately rather than taking the easier way of waiting for the signing of the Japanese peace treaty.

The reasons he did so are inherent in his character and outlook. For one thing, Truman is extraordinarily sensitive where his powers as President are concerned, perhaps in part because he knows that he became President by sheer happenchance. For another thing, there is Truman's absolutely rigid code, deriving in part from his days as a machine politician, which demands a relationship of unquestioning political loyalty, given and returned, between "the boss" and his subordinates. With Truman cast in the role of boss and MacArthur in the role of subordinate, this relationship was bound sooner or later to break down. The breaking point came with MacArthur's statement of March 25, which challenged Truman's Presidential authority, and with the Martin letter which in Truman's eyes was the equivalent of trading with the Republican enemy.

Decision Was Triumph

From beginning to end, then, the decision was Truman's, and Truman's alone. In the battle of the titans which is now in prospect, this should be borne in mind. Already MacArthur's dismissal is being described as a triumph for Secretary of State Dean Acheson, and for the views which Acheson is supposed to represent. This is inaccurate on both counts. Acheson was of course consulted, but he played no decisive part. He was not even present at the White House meeting on Tuesday afternoon, attended among others by Chairman of the Joint Chiefs Omar Bradley and Presidential adviser Averill Harriman, when the President finally decided to act.

Moreover, it is odd but true that after the Chinese intervention in Korea, Acheson was the strongest proponent of precisely the course MacArthur now advocates, including bombing the Chinese mainland and using Nationalist troops. He was only dissuaded when it became clear that this course would wreck the Anglo-American alliance, the keystone of American foreign policy.

In fact, the strongest pressure for dismissing MacArthur came, not from the State Department, but from the Pentagon, Secretary of Defense Marshall, Undersecretary Robert Lovett, and all four Joint Chiefs, whose directives MacArthur had consistently disregarded, unanimously favored the move. But the final decision was Truman's and it is Truman who must now play David to MacArthur's Goliath in the great struggle, with its enormous implications for American domestic politics and world strategy, which will now certainly ensue.

Depends On Korea

This is written on the day of MacArthur's dismissal, and the future is even less clear than usual. But it does seem certain that the MacArthur issue will divide the Congress on fairly strict party lines. As of this writing, the Democratic strategy is to go along with the Wherry Resolution inviting MacArthur to address a joint session, but to arrange a joint meeting of the Senate Foreign Affairs and Armed Services Committees beforehand, at which MacArthur can be asked some very pertinent questions. Meanwhile, Truman took the offensive, going on the air to explain his Constitutional and other reasons for dismissing MacArthur.

As for the Republicans, the Taft-Wherry wing of the party clearly sees MacArthur as the ideal rallying point for an all-out attack on Truman and through Truman, on American foreign policy. The results are likely to depend very largely on what actually happens in Korea. For if the American forces suffer a shattering reversal in the expected offensive (as is all too possible, for reasons which will be discussed in a forthcoming report) MacArthur will seem to be triumphantly vindicated. The demand for the bombing of the Manchurian bases will then become almost irresistible, and Truman, who has resisted this demand, will appear as the architect of disaster. It may be that MacArthur himself has been fully aware of this possibility.

Bombing the Chinese mainland might be the prelude to a third world war. But whatever happens, one thing is clear. The basic issue which has now been posed is whether or not the main American effort in peace or war, should be diverted from Europe to Asia. MacArthur himself has repeatedly posed this issue, most recently in his astonishing reported statement that Formosa is more important to the defense of the United States than France. This familiar problem is the real issue, behind all the drama and uproar, and it is as crucial an issue as this country faces. If the United States is not to be left without an ally in the world other than Chiang Kai-shek, it can be decided in the end, as it has been decided before, in only one way.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)

LAST SUMMER in Tokyo Gen. Douglas MacArthur told me, in an unusual private interview in his home, that the historians of the future would regard the democratization of Japan as a more momentous event of the first half of the twentieth century than either world war.

He suggested events would prove that as Japan went so would go Asia's other countless millions. And Japan, he added, was going great.

In five swift years, MacArthur enthused, a nation which had been determined to fight us to the death was now our fastest friend. It had rebuilt itself spiritually, morally, physically. It had come close to balancing its budget for the first time in its long history. Its people were healthier than ever before, sounder emotionally, ready to become the peaceful industrial giant which could stabilize the east.

The man dismissed not only his considerable roles in World War One and Two, but the conflicts themselves in his gifted appraisal of the coming of Anglo-Saxon culture and constitutional thought to the key nation of the east—by way of the GI.

One easily gained the feeling that he was much more intensely proud of his quietly stupendous success as the American re-creator of Japan that of his enormously publicized and hailed military feats

Korea, he told me, was a battlefield on which a question of civilization and the personal freedom of men was being contested. But it too, he predicted, would be dismissed quickly by the historian of a thousand years hence—in the latter's salute to the democratic metamorphosis of Japan's 84,000,000 people.

The memory of that interview, and the picture of the man's face as he spoke of miraculous changes which were hardly rating a paragraph in the papers, stirred in me when I first read the news that he had been sacked with shocking rudeness.

It is conceivable that MacArthur, the military man, was not irreplaceable in the new war. The U. N. rules under which it is being fought do not call for MacArthur's type of imaginative genius. It is war of attrition and will remain so, with all that type of warfare's exhausting tolls, until MacArthur's plan of destroying Chinese supply bases is adopted.

But MacArthur, the administrator, is to my way of thinking an indispensible man. The President, Acheson and Marshall have cut the legs from under a unique and irreplaceable proconsul. They have done so in a manner that could very well destroy the greatest work of a great American's life.

In the course of shaving the "face" off MacArthur they have struck a grave blow to a huge, tough, friendly nation which was being surely led out of 2,000 years of savage mysticism and into the vital little family of democracies by MacArthur alone.

Of course, MacArthur had a vast staff of economists, specialists in free government, authorities on constitutional procedures and so forth, just as he had colonels, majors, captains, lieutenants and privates carrying out his military commands.

But it was he, personally, who bore the chief burden of administrator. It was he who decided it was better to lead the Japanese than to club them into western ways. Their love and respect for him as an individual, rather than as a symbol, equalled their outlook on the emperor. They knew him as their friend, guardian and adviser from the day, early in the occupation, when he put his arm around a frightened floor-mopper at his Dai Ichi headquarters, and genially shared an elevator ride with him.

Japan without MacArthur as its inspirational administrator is a Japan into which Russia can now filter its hundreds of thousands of indoctrinated Japanese captives. His abrupt removal is an open invitation to submerged Japanese militarism, Communism, socialism and Shintoism cliques to emerge from under their rocks.

MacArthur did not stay in Japan in the postwar years in order to fight a war in Korea. He stayed to shape Japan into the image and likeness of the country he loves and has served faithfully for half a century. But now that enormous work, that dream of ever-increasing substance, is smashed to bits.

In The Jungle

When the British explorer, Col. P. H. Fawcett, went to Brazil with his son, Jack, and a friend, to explore in 1925, he went to a land that is 65 times the size of England, the largest of the South American countries. Colonel Fawcett believed that in the Matto Grosso region he would find gold and diamonds in some fabulous lost metropolis, or, that failing, at least the site of the Garden of Eden.

Nowhere else in the world are found forests equal in extent to those of Brazil. Of these, some of the deepest are to be found in one of the least explored and least populated Brazilian states, Matto Grosso. In the jungles of Matto Grosso's lowlands are some 25,000 Indians of still uncivilized tribes.

In the spring of 1925 Colonel Fawcett, his son and his companion disappeared. Search for them has been hitherto vain. But now the leader of a Brazilian government expedition reports that he has found a skull and bones which he believes to be those of Colonel Fawcett, although he failed to find the skeletons of the Englishman's two companions because of the "strong desire of the Indians to leave the location." It was the Indians who led him to his grim find.

Whether the remains of Colonel Fawcett have, in fact, been found is still to be proved. Brazilian authorities have long believed that the Indians killed him and his two fellow explorers. News of the supposed solution of this human riddle comes at a time when representatives of the 21 American republics are conferring in Washington on problems of defense and other mutual interests.

It is a reminder that large areas of the Western Hemisphere are still unknown and unused.

Novelty For Congress

In taking up a bill reported out by the House Appropriations Committee in response to President Truman's request for an additional $843,000,000 to cover non-military defense spending, the House of Representatives has a novel experience. The bill would allow only $479,000,000 for these purposes.

Seldom, if ever, has the committee cut thus deeply a major Administration appropriations bill. Usually it is lucky to end up whittling 10 per cent from a measure sent up by the White House—and this time it has reduced the figure requested by 43 per cent. A story was widely circulated in Washington during the late President Roosevelt's Administration that a 10 per cent cut made by Congress in one of his requests for money surprised him no end. He had added more than that to the request in anticipation of a deeper slash.

An increasing reluctance to just go ahead and vote funds on demand had a great deal to do with the result. It is especially heartening to note that the committee took a dim view of the tendency on the part of government departments to expand because they are given defense jobs to handle. What they should do, according to the committee, is shuffle their staffs so that present personnel can handle these activities.

That's a novel idea. It probably doesn't sound very attractive to most government bureaucrats and some legislators may not be too enthusiastic over it. But an emergency as costly as this one is destined to be should produce some new and more efficient ways of doing things.

He Never Found Out

Until it is examined in detail, the story of Alexander Ector Orr Munsell of New York has a romantic ring that the most acquisitive find fascinating. Mr. Munsell, first glance indicates, started out to prove the truth of that ancient cliche: money cannot buy happiness.

Whether he proved it or not is uncertain. However, it is known that he inherited more than $1,000,000 from his grandfather and an aunt, but grew weary of wealth. Sixteen years ago he settled half of his fortune on his wife and children and gave the remainder away. He wanted, he said, "to experience the reality of being poor."

He is back in the news because he has inherited again. This time the jackpot is for $650,000. From friends and relatives comes word that he may keep it, apparently having grown weary of being weary of wealth. But Mr. Munsell's experience has fulfilled the requirements neither of reality nor poverty as it is endured by the truly poor.

He lived for a time on dried prunes in a cheap furnished room, but the available evidence does not indicate that he ever worked. And in recent years he has lived a pleasant life devoted to his books, his family and charity. The explanation, as discovered by reporters, of how he managed to live like the lilies of the field is simple. His relatives, including his mother who has now left him another fortune, were "generous" to him.

With a rich and "generous" mother, who has to worry about such bothersome problems of poverty as earning a living? Who, with rich relatives scattered all over the map, can know what its like to be poor? Mr. Munsell, if his friends have the straight dope, has given up trying to find out.

Mr. Munsell's first wife divorced him in 1936, after he distributed his wealth. He was, she said, suffering from "delayed adolescence."

The Housewife's Power

There are signs that the purchasing public is taking present inflated prices into its own hands. This statement is not a rough guess. It comes from an authoritative source—Charles E. Wilson, head of the Office of Defense Mobilization.

Mr. Wilson told a congressional "watchdog" committee of an industrialist who complains that his products are piling up in warehouses because the public refuses to purchase them at the excessive prices he admits he has fixed. "In order to overcome this stoppage of sales," reports Mr. Wilson, "the producer has cut his prices 10 per cent and others in the same line are making even deeper cuts."

Consumer resistance will not of itself curb inflation, but it is a powerful weapon. The housewife has it in her power to cut down greed and profiteering at the retail level. As concerns food prices, housewives could exert, through vigilance and resistance, a profound influence against excessive prices—that is, against inflation.

Jefferson And The Medical Profession

TODAY is the 208th anniversary of Thomas Jefferson's birthday, which reminds us that he had little use for the rank and file physician of his day. In this respect he was ahead of his times because colonial medicine, as we now realize was nothing to brag about. Jefferson was a rationalist and took a simple and logical view of sickness and health. He considered the human body too complicated to experiment with and had no patience with the antics of the early 19th century physicians who bled and purged and deranged the system in other ways. He also deplored their lack of factual knowledge of disease.

Jefferson used more judgment in this regard that the modern man who criticizes his physician for seeking the cause of a disorder before treating it. How often a patient will say, "Forget the cause; just give me something to cure it." Jefferson was aware of this tendency and felt that it helped to perpetuate fraud and ignorance. He winced when the medico of that era prescribed potent drugs or even placebos such as "bread pills, drops of colored water, and powders of hickory ashes." He called this therapy "a pious fraud." Oddly enough, he admired Dr. Benjamin Rush and it was here that Jefferson used poor judgment because history has disproved the truth of the majority of Rush's opinions.

But not all fields of medicine were anathema to Jefferson. He approved of the study of anatomy, surgery, and the history of medical practice since the time of Hippocrates. In drawing up plans for the University of Virginia he proposed only a single professorship in anatomy and the history of medicine; vegetable pharmacy was to be part of the botany course and chemical pharmacy was to be taught in the department of minerology and chemistry. Students who were to go on into medicine were to finish the course by clinical observation at the bedside of the sick and in the operating room. This concept also was advanced thinking because at that time men were permitted to practice after "reading" medicine.

At any rate Jefferson, like Benjamin Franklin, drew up and adhered to certain rules of health and conduct. According to the Epicurean standards of our third president, "Happiness is the aim of life." He felt that desire and fear were the two principal diseases of the mind and that, to achieve tranquility, these qualities must be shunned. Adherence to such a plan may have been partly responsible for Jefferson's longevity. He lived to be 83 and the boredom of retirement was avoided by "reacquiring the knack of farming" and his ability to produce. He continued to write voluminously until the end even tho, as he put, "At the age of 82, with one foot in the grave and the other uplifted to follow it, I do not permit myself to take part in any new enterprises." About 10 days before his death, he wrote a letter declining the invitation to attend the celebration of the 50th anniversary of American Independence, because he was failing physically.

Among Jefferson's other rules was: "We never repent of having eaten too little." This is a wise canon as keeping down the waistline will help to keep up the lifeline. Would that more of us practiced this habit. He also believed that "nothing is troublesome that we do willingly" and "how much pain have cost us the evils which never happened." With such principles no doubt he was free from hypertension and stomach ulcers. The same can be said of his advice. "When angry, count 10 before you speak; if very angry, 100."

GOP Senators Should Decide MacArthur-Truman Controversy By Showdown Congressional Vote; MacArthur Policy Means All-Out War With China

Ed. Note—Drew Pearson's column today takes the form of a letter to Senators Taft of Ohio and Wherry of Nebraska, the two top Republican leaders of the Senate, over the crucial issue of General MacArthur's differences with the White House.

To Senators Robert A. Taft and
Kenneth Wherry
United States Senate
Washington, D. C.

Dear Senators:

The nation has been facing an extremely important question as to whether the direction of foreign policy shall be with the President or with General MacArthur.

It is a question which goes to the vitals of our constitutional system, and which may cost or save American lives in the future. It is also a question over which there has been a great deal of political sniping and which, in brief, has gotten out of hand.

Therefore, I respectfully suggest to you, the leaders of the Republican party in the Senate, a means by which this crucial question can be settled.

Last week, Republican leaders won an important, perhaps historic victory by voting that the President of the United States was not to send more than four divisions of American troops to Europe without the consent of Congress. Therefore, I suggest that having established this precedent regarding the direction of military policy, you follow it up by deciding the question now posed by General MacArthur—namely, shall we get involved in war with China?

Debate Is Healthy

It is the role of Congress under our constitutional system to represent the people of the United States. Your mail, your telephone calls, your visitors from back home give you a better gauge of what the people think than the White House; certainly better than a man who is 8,000 miles away in Tokyo and has not been in the United States for 15 years.

Furthermore Congress has the power to declare war. The Constitution provides this, and it is clear under the Constitution that the Congress is to take such a step only after the clash of debate, only after giving the nation an opportunity to listen to that debate and make its views known to its senators and representatives.

Therefore if we are to have war with China, it is vital that there be full, fair and open discussion.

Another Wherry Resolution

Such discussion is also clearly indicated by the no-more-troops resolution passed by the Republican party under your leadership last week.

This resolution, as you, Senator Wherry, announced to the press gallery last week, was the "Wherry Resolution." I suggested therefore that you introduce another Wherry resolution, resolving: "That it be the sense of the Senate that the executive branch of the government adopt the views of General MacArthur and that, as between Europe and the Far East, we meet the threat of communism in the Far East by bombing Chinese cities and using Chiang Kai-Shek's troops without regard to all-out war."

I suggest that you take MacArthur's views exactly as he has written them in his letter to ex-Speaker Joe Martin and put them up for debate. In this letter he states quite clearly that our most important front against communism is the Far East, not Europe, and that he wants an all-out battle on this front.

Such a resolution would give the American public an opportunity to see exactly what this policy means.

The American people, if I know them, are anxious to localize our Far Eastern fighting as much as possible, not spread it. And, during a congressional debate over a second Wherry resolution, they would have a chance to make their views known. They might have some views, for instance, on the Pentagon's belief that, when you start bombing Chinese cities, when you land Chiang Kai-Shek's rival troops on the Chinese mainland, you don't localize war, you spread it.

War with China is something which Japan at the peak of her military power was not able to win. Yet Japan was only a few miles from China. We are 8,000 miles away and already straining our transport lines to keep the relatively localized Korean operation supplied.

Ten-Year War

Military experts all agree that fighting China would be like fighting a sponge. Such a war would last 10 years. We have already seen how cheap Chinese life is, how wave after wave of Communist suicide troops were thrown against our lines in Korea merely to explode mine fields.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The American Assembly

FRED SMITH has sent out a notice of the American Assembly, which is to be held under the auspices of the graduate School of Business of Columbia University in May, depending upon General Eisenhower's European commitments. Fred Smith, be it noted, was one of the public relations counsel of Wendell Willkie during his presidential campaign.

The purpose of the American Assembly is "to discuss and clarify vital national issues," which is laudable, and the subject of the first assembly will be "The Relationship of the United States to Western Europe," which, of course, has been considered in "the great debate" and Congress is now legislating on matters pertaining to it. By May, much of this legislation shall have been passed and the obligations shall have been set. However, there can be no harm in either discussion or clarification, particularly the latter.

The press release for "The First Assembly," as the May meeting is to be called, states:

> "The prime, objective of this assembly is to state and clarify as much as possible the many interrelated questions involved in what we are to do about Western Europe — how far we should go toward protecting Western Europe from communism, the importance of Western Europe to us, and the price we might have to pay for various methods of meeting the situation. If some of the conflicts of opinion on this subject can be resolved, the assembly will have made an important contribution."

I do not think that this goes far enough. I should like to see a discussion on how we got into our present troubles, who got us there, what foundations were laid for them at Teheran, Yalta, and Potsdam. Every public situation that faces us today has its roots in the past.

For it seems to me that nobody can discuss with any intelligence the status of our relations to Western Europe or to communism in May, 1951, without a full grasp of the agreements, stipulations and promises, written and verbal, which underly our present difficulties with Soviet Russia.

For instance, we need to know why when we could have taken Berlin as an American prize, we did not. Why did we delay until the Russians could come up? Why did we establish a tripartite city with no exit or entrance from and to the American zone except through the Russian zone? When we understand the errors we have made, it will be possible for us to assess the full criminality of Russia's action in hurling the world into war again. What is the basis for all the confusion in Korea?

Then the circular says about "The First Assembly":

"It will not be the function of the American Assembly to set forth (sic) a specific way to dispose of this issue, but rather to provide a thorough discussion of all the problems involved, get all the facts before the people, and thereby make it possible for the citizen to exercise his own judgment."

Whenever I see that there is to be a "thorough discussion" to get "all the facts," I like to know who is going to do the discussing. Thus far, I see only these names: General Dwight D. Eisenhower, and Professors Schuyler Wallace, Philip E. Mosely, Leland M. Goodrich, Ragnar Nurkse, Franz Neumann, William T. R. Fox, and L. Gray Cowan. These are all professors, engaged in research, and all are internationalists. This is no reflection upon these men or their ability, but obviously they are of one view. To them is added former Ambassador to Great Britain Lewis W. Douglas and Professor Philip Young, dean of the Graduate School of Business of Columbia University.

Perhaps invitations will be issued to those who are in opposition to the internationalist or, more accurately, the British point of view. The test of the objectivity of this assembly will be when the list of delegates and speakers is published, and I shall comment on it then. It will be interesting to see whether such students of the problem as Herbert Hoover and Robert A. Taft will be invited to speak their minds to the professors or whether only those will be asked who support the British point of view.

In a word, is this a forum or a study group of a propaganda setup?

Matter Of Fact

By STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON

EITHER President Truman or Gen MacArthur had to be fired—and a general cannot fire his commander-in-chief. It is really as simple as that. The fact that MacArthur not only violently opposed the Administration's policy, but continued to say so in an endless stream of pronouncements, made a showdown sooner or later inevitable, as MacArthur himself probably recognized. The only real surprise is that Truman decided to dismiss MacArthur immediately rather than taking the easier way of waiting for the signing of the Japanese peace treaty.

The reasons he did so are inherent in his character and outlook. For one thing, Truman is extraordinarily sensitive where his powers as President are concerned, perhaps in part because he knows that he became President by sheer happenchance. For another thing, there is Truman's absolutely rigid code, deriving in part from his days as a machine politician, which demands a relationship of unquestioning political loyalty, given and returned, between "the boss" and his subordinates. With Truman cast in the role of boss and MacArthur in the role of subordinate, this relationship was bound sooner or later to break down. The breaking point came with MacArthur's statement of March 25, which challenged Truman's Presidential authority, and with the Martin letter which in Truman's eyes was the equivalent of trading with the Republican enemy.

Decision Was Triumph

From beginning to end, then, the decision was Truman's, and Truman's alone. In the battle of the titans which is now in prospect, this should be borne in mind. Already MacArthur's dismissal is being described as a triumph for Secretary of State Dean Acheson, and for the views which Acheson is supposed to represent. This is inaccurate on both counts. Acheson was of course consulted, but he played no decisive part. He was not even present at the White House meeting on Tuesday afternoon, attended among others by Chairman of the Joint Chiefs Omar Bradley and Presidential adviser Averill Harriman, when the President finally decided to act.

Moreover, it is odd but true that after the Chinese intervention in Korea, Acheson was the strongest proponent of precisely the course MacArthur now advocates, including bombing the Chinese mainland and using Nationalist troops. He was only dissuaded when it became clear that this course would wreck the Anglo-American alliance, the keystone of American foreign policy.

In fact, the strongest pressure for dismissing MacArthur came, not from the State Department, but from the Pentagon, Secretary of Defense Marshall, Undersecretary Robert Lovett, and all four Joint Chiefs, whose directives MacArthur had consistently disregarded, unanimously favored the move. But the final decision was Truman's and it is Truman who must now play David to MacArthur's Goliath in the great struggle, with its enormous implications for American domestic politics and world strategy, which will now certainly ensue.

Depends On Korea

This is written on the day of MacArthur's dismissal, and the future is even less clear than usual. But it does seem certain that the MacArthur issue will divide the Congress on fairly strict party lines. As of this writing, the Democratic strategy is to go along with the Wherry Resolution inviting MacArthur to address a joint session, but to arrange a joint meeting of the Senate Foreign Affairs and Armed Services Committees beforehand, at which MacArthur can be asked some very pertinent questions. Meanwhile, Truman took the offensive, going on the air to explain his Constitutional and other reasons for dismissing MacArthur.

As for the Republicans, the Taft-Wherry wing of the party clearly sees MacArthur as the ideal rallying point for an all-out attack on Truman and through Truman, on American foreign policy. The results are likely to depend very largely on what actually happens in Korea. For if the American forces suffer a shattering reversal in the expected offensive (as is all too possible, for reasons which will be discussed in a forthcoming report) MacArthur will seem to be triumphantly vindicated. The demand for the bombing of the Manchurian bases will then become almost irresistible, and Truman, who has resisted this demand, will appear as the architect of disaster. It may be that MacArthur himself has been fully aware of this possibility.

Bombing the Chinese mainland might be the prelude to a third world war. But whatever happens, one thing is clear. The basic issue which has now been posed is whether or not the main American effort in peace or war, should be diverted from Europe to Asia. MacArthur himself has repeatedly posed this issue, most recently in his astonishing reported statement that Formosa is more important to the defense of the United States than France. This familiar problem is the real issue, behind all the drama and uproar, and it is as crucial an issue as this country faces. If the United States is not to be left without an ally in the world other than Chiang Kai-shek, it can be decided in the end, as it has been decided before, in only one way.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)

LAST SUMMER in Tokyo Gen. Douglas MacArthur told me, in an unusual private interview in his home, that the historians of the future would regard the democratization of Japan as a more momentous event of the first half of the twentieth century than either world war.

He suggested events would prove that as Japan went so would go Asia's other countless millions. And Japan, he added, was going great.

In five swift years, MacArthur enthused, a nation which had been determined to fight us to the death was now our fastest friend. It had rebuilt itself spiritually, morally, physically. It had come close to balancing its budget for the first time in its long history. Its people were healthier than ever before, sounder emotionally, ready to become the peaceful industrial giant which could stabilize the east.

The man dismissed not only his considerable roles in World War One and Two, but the conflicts themselves in his gifted appraisal of the coming of Anglo-Saxon culture and constitutional thought to the key nation of the east—by way of the GI.

One easily gained the feeling that he was much more intensely proud of his quietly stupendous success as the American re-creator of Japan that of his enormously publicized and hailed military feats

Korea, he told me, was a battlefield on which a question of civilization and the personal freedom of men was being contested. But it too, he predicted, would be dismissed quickly by the historian of a thousand years hence—in the latter's salute to the democratic metamorphosis of Japan's 84,000,000 people.

The memory of that interview, and the picture of the man's face as he spoke of miraculous changes which were hardly rating a paragraph in the papers, stirred in me when I first read the news that he had been sacked with shocking rudeness.

It is conceivable that MacArthur, the military man, was not irreplaceable in the new war. The U. N. rules under which it is being fought do not call for MacArthur's type of imaginative genius. It is war of attrition and will remain so, with all that type of warfare's exhausting tolls, until MacArthur's plan of destroying Chinese supply bases is adopted.

But MacArthur, the administrator, is to my way of thinking an indispensible man. The President, Acheson and Marshall have cut the legs from under a unique and irreplaceable proconsul. They have done so in a manner that could very well destroy the greatest work of a great American's life.

In the course of shaving the "face" off MacArthur they have struck a grave blow to a huge, tough, friendly nation which was being surely led out of 2,000 years of savage mysticism and into the vital little family of democracies by MacArthur alone.

Of course, MacArthur had a vast staff of economists, specialists in free government, authorities on constitutional procedures and so forth, just as he had colonels, majors, captains, lieutenants and privates carrying out his military commands.

But it was he, personally, who bore the chief burden of administrator. It was he who decided it was better to lead the Japanese than to club them into western ways. Their love and respect for him as an individual, rather than as a symbol, equalled their outlook on the emperor. They knew him as their friend, guardian and adviser from the day, early in the occupation, when he put his arm around a frightened floor-mopper at his Dai Ichi headquarters, and genially shared an elevator ride with him.

Japan without MacArthur as its inspirational administrator is a Japan into which Russia can now filter its hundreds of thousands of indoctrinated Japanese captives. His abrupt removal is an open invitation to submerged Japanese militarism, Communism, socialism and Shintoism cliques to emerge from under their rocks.

MacArthur did not stay in Japan in the postwar years in order to fight a war in Korea. He stayed to shape Japan into the image and likeness of the country he loves and has served faithfully for half a century. But now that enormous work, that dream of ever-increasing substance, is smashed to bits.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A pupil of Rossini, notes George Marek, brought the master a composition and said, "Maestro, I wrote this march in honor of Beethoven's death. What do you think of it?" Rossini studied the composition carefully and sighed, "If only you had died and Beethoven had written the march!"

Collegians in various sections of the country have come up with these suggestions for amendments to the definitions in standard dictionaries:

COMMUTER: Traveler occasionally seen at his home or office.

COMPLIMENT: The applause that refreshes.

FORGER: A scoundrel who gives a check a bad name.

GOBLET: A small sailor.

INTUITION: Something that tells a woman she is right whether she is or not.

MASS PSYCHOLOGY: Doing it the herd way.

PICKPOCKET: A gent who believes that every crowd has a silver lining.

TITIAN: The color a red-headed salesgirl's hair becomes the day after her father strikes oil.

UNDERFLATE: Seven.

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

Archie—The Ambidextrous Man

WHEN we lived at Ardsley-on-the-Hudson, a hyphenated suburb of New York, my wife decided what we needed was a chauffeur-butler, and that's how Archie came into our lives. He was brunet all over and formerly had been a truck driver, but the missus decided she could train him, so she got a book by Emily Post and went to work.

First we bought him a chauffeur's suit which he wore in the daytime and mostly at night, too, unless we had company. Then she took my number two dinner coat and had the moth holes patched and cut to fit our new employe by a good tailor named Schneider. We could hardly wait to try him out, so we invited some relatives to dinner to avoid embarrassment in case he made any mistakes. It worked fine, and this was the beginning of a long period of association, part of it involuntary, since Archie was a tough guy to discharge. You could fire him and pay him off one day, and the next morning he would show up as if nothing had happened.

We took an apartment in New York a short time later, and Archie moved with us. He was an interesting character with a certain appeal. For example, he used to enjoy punching doormen who think they are cops and order you around in front of hotels and apartment houses. Some uniformed stuffed shirt would tell him he couldn't park where he drew up, probably saving the place for a favorite and liberal customer, when Archie would be on the curbstone and more than likely the doorman would shortly be on his back. Of course, this habit led to certain complications and occasional contacts with the police, but I must admit I turned my blind eye, since these officious boys are tempting targets.

We had a Sealyham dog named Rex, and for five years until he died, he always barked at our ambidextrous chauffeur-butler. In fact, it was only necessary to say one word—"Archie"—even when he was absent, and it set Rex off like touching a match to a firecracker. My daughter and some of her young friends got up a mystery show, and the whole plot was built around the idea that the villain was called Archie, although on the surface a very smooth guy. Of course, Rex was the canine Sherlock Holmes who gave tongue whenever the jerk's name was mentioned with the result the tangle was finally unsnarled and the cad wound up in handcuffs. They kept the real Archie constantly in the wings to inspire Rex.

Since my friend John Golden, the producer, had told me all comedies are built around a single idea, this one seemed worth submitting to him. He listened patiently and remarked skeptically,

"Yes, I invest $75,000 or $100,000 in a show with scenery and everything and then the dog catches laryngitis or something and don't bark. Or suppose he gets to like Archie?"

"We could have Archie take a bone away from him every day and be mean to him generally."

By JOHN N. WHEELER

Archie—The Ambidextrous Man

WHEN we lived at Ardsley-on-the-Hudson, a hyphenated suburb of New York, my wife decided what we needed was a chauffeur-butler, and that's how Archie came into our lives. He was brunet all over and formerly had been a truck driver, but the missus decided she could train him, so she got a book by Emily Post and went to work.

First we bought him a chauffeur's suit which he wore in the daytime and mostly at night, too, unless we had company. Then she took my number two dinner coat and had the moth holes patched and cut to fit our new employe by a good tailor named Schneider. We could hardly wait to try him out, so we invited some relatives to dinner to avoid embarrassment in case he made any mistakes. It worked fine, and this was the beginning of a long period of association, part of it involuntary, since Archie was a tough guy to discharge. You could fire him and pay him off one day, and the next morning he would show up as if nothing had happened.

We took an apartment in New York a short time later, and Archie moved with us. He was an interesting character with a certain appeal. For example, he used to enjoy punching doormen who think they are cops and order you around in front of hotels and apartment houses. Some uniformed stuffed shirt would tell him he couldn't park where he drew up, probably saving the place for a favorite and liberal customer, when Archie would be on the curbstone and more than likely the doorman would shortly be on his back. Of course, this habit led to certain complications and occasional contacts with the police, but I must admit I turned my blind eye, since these officious boys are tempting targets.

We had a Sealyham dog named Rex, and for five years until he died, he always barked at our ambidextrous chauffeur-butler. In fact, it was only necessary to say one word—"Archie"—even when he was absent, and it set Rex off like touching a match to a firecracker. My daughter and some of her young friends got up a mystery show, and the whole plot was built around the idea that the villain was called Archie, although on the surface a very smooth guy. Of course, Rex was the canine Sherlock Holmes who gave tongue whenever the jerk's name was mentioned with the result the tangle was finally unsnarled and the cad wound up in handcuffs. They kept the real Archie constantly in the wings to inspire Rex.

Since my friend John Golden, the producer, had told me all comedies are built around a single idea, this one seemed worth submitting to him. He listened patiently and remarked skeptically,

"Yes, I invest $75,000 or $100,000 in a show with scenery and everything and then the dog catches laryngitis or something and don't bark. Or suppose he gets to like Archie?"

"We could have Archie take a bone away from him every day and be mean to him generally."

OPEN LETTER

F. Joseph Donohue
Commissioner of the District of Columbia
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Donohue:

For some years I have been President of the Dental Cowards Association of America, so I was overjoyed to hear that you have promised to investigate further this business about putting fluorine in the drinking water so that the kids of today will not have cavities tomorrow.

I've just come from the dentist myself—from that grinding, throbbing torture under the drill, so I am in a nasty mood. Mr. Donohue, don't tell me that fluordination costs too much, or I'll bite you with my freshly-filled teeth.

Fluordination is one of those miracles for which men searched for generations, for centuries. Our dentists, the best in the world, some years ago accepted it as the best protection against tooth decay that a child can have.

It was accepted after 15 years of observation by the American dental profession.

In many communities, the forward-looking citizens have already compelled their authorities to put fluorine into drinking water to fortify their young children against tooth decay. The citizens of the District of Columbia now ask for the same benefits.

The Capital of the United States should have been among the first to add fluorine to drinking water. We are already 60 cities behind. Already 60 major cities have spent money wisely to help future generations.

And, believe me, there are hundreds of thousands of mothers and fathers who will fight you tooth and nail (a good figure of speech in this case) 'till they, too, get the best for their children.

You cannot be canned by the voteless District residents—but you can be bombarded with letters, postcards, telegrams and phone calls, asking for this sensible, scientific step ahead.

Your talk about the high cost of the program makes me laugh—thereby showing my poor, old fluorine-neglected teeth. The District water officials estimated it would cost about $200,000 the first year, and $100,000 a year thereafter. So whipping out paper and pencil, I figure that half of the District's 800,000 residents are taxpayers. That would cost each taxpayer 50 cents a year in the first year, and 25 cents a year afterwards. Why 25c a year is nothing! Many families would consider themselves lucky to get off wtih $10 a year in dental bills. To say nothing of the families who can't afford $10 a year or even $5 a year.

So, Mr. Donohue, don't you dare put off fluordination with the excuse that it costs too much. The people in this community won't accept that. Not when they remember that they are spending millions, no billions, around the world to help the British, the French, the Greeks (is there any place we aren't sending money?) for various and sundry causes whose value to future American citizens is questionable.

Before I finish this letter, I challenge you. I challenge you to give me one good reason for delaying a great benefit to our children—and I offer to publish your views in this column.

Sincerely,
AUSTINE

The little girls who begin their beauty education early are the ones who grow up to be beautiful women!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

A girl needs more than beauty at birth to grow up to be a beautiful woman. Most of the beautiful women I have known were directed toward that goal. And it is never too soon to start a little girl off on her beauty education.

At the first awakening of interest in personal appearance, and the realization that she is a person in her own right it is time to begin instilling lifelong beauty habits that will insure her beauty future. With most lasses, this dawning comes in the first year in school, but some are precocious.

The First Step

There's no better way to begin than with a hair-care program. Probably she has already insisted of having her braids cut and realizes that a woman's eternal problem is her tresses. She'll be intrigued if you tell her that her new hair routine is grown-up stuff being used by lovely ladies with extra-fine hair, and by all the smart teens.

In this routine, daily brushing is most important. It dry cleans, distributes the scalp oil and stimulates circulation. Use a medium-stiff bristle brush to avoid scalp irritations and broken hair. Also in order is a weekly shampoo. (Those frequent shower wettings aren't substitutes!) The liquid castiles and lanolin-loaded whips are perfect shampoos for young and delicate-textured hair.

To create a shining halo, a rinse is on the agenda. For dark hair, use a tablespoon of vinegar to a glass of warm water and massage it through the hair. For light brown or blond hair, add a tablespoon of strained lemon juice to a glass of warm water. Saturate the head, then rinse it lightly with clear water.

Gloss And Manageability

After rinsing, wrap the child's head in an absorbent towel for a few minutes. Never rub . . . that only breaks and tangles hair and leaves it dull and lifeless looking. After extracting the excess moisture, allow the hair to dry in the air or use a hand dryer for speed.

As for the arrangement, why ot let the young lady decide? What's a mistake, if she learns to judge what's best for her? Just be sure to seek a trained person for the cutting job. If curls are a must, a pin-curl permanent applied to the ends will do no harm. It will give even the straightest hair a storybook prettiness.

OPEN LETTER

F. Joseph Donohue
Commissioner of the District of Columbia
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Donohue:

For some years I have been President of the Dental Cowards Association of America, so I was overjoyed to hear that you have promised to investigate further this business about putting fluorine in the drinking water so that the kids of today will not have cavities tomorrow.

I've just come from the dentist myself—from that grinding, throbbing torture under the drill, so I am in a nasty mood. Mr. Donohue, don't tell me that fluordination costs too much, or I'll bite you with my freshly-filled teeth.

Fluordination is one of those miracles for which men searched for generations, for centuries. Our dentists, the best in the world, some years ago accepted it as the best protection against tooth decay that a child can have.

It was accepted after 15 years of observation by the American dental profession.

In many communities, the forward-looking citizens have already compelled their authorities to put fluorine into drinking water to fortify their young children against tooth decay. The citizens of the District of Columbia now ask for the same benefits.

The Capital of the United States should have been among the first to add fluorine to drinking water. We are already 60 cities behind. Already 60 major cities have spent money wisely to help future generations.

And, believe me, there are hundreds of thousands of mothers and fathers who will fight you tooth and nail (a good figure of speech in this case) 'till they, too, get the best for their children.

You cannot be canned by the voteless District residents—but you can be bombarded with letters, postcards, telegrams and phone calls, asking for this sensible, scientific step ahead.

Your talk about the high cost of the program makes me laugh—thereby showing my poor, old fluorine-neglected teeth. The District water officials estimated it would cost about $200,000 the first year, and $100,000 a year thereafter. So whipping out paper and pencil, I figure that half of the District's 800,000 residents are taxpayers. That would cost each taxpayer 50 cents a year in the first year, and 25 cents a year afterwards. Why 25c a year is nothing! Many families would consider themselves lucky to get off wtih $10 a year in dental bills. To say nothing of the families who can't afford $10 a year or even $5 a year.

So, Mr. Donohue, don't you dare put off fluordination with the excuse that it costs too much. The people in this community won't accept that. Not when they remember that they are spending millions, no billions, around the world to help the British, the French, the Greeks (is there any place we aren't sending money?) for various and sundry causes whose value to future American citizens is questionable.

Before I finish this letter, I challenge you. I challenge you to give me one good reason for delaying a great benefit to our children—and I offer to publish your views in this column.

Sincerely,
AUSTINE

The little girls who begin their beauty education early are the ones who grow up to be beautiful women!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

A girl needs more than beauty at birth to grow up to be a beautiful woman. Most of the beautiful women I have known were directed toward that goal. And it is never too soon to start a little girl off on her beauty education.

At the first awakening of interest in personal appearance, and the realization that she is a person in her own right it is time to begin instilling lifelong beauty habits that will insure her beauty future. With most lasses, this dawning comes in the first year in school, but some are precocious.

The First Step

There's no better way to begin than with a hair-care program. Probably she has already insisted of having her braids cut and realizes that a woman's eternal problem is her tresses. She'll be intrigued if you tell her that her new hair routine is grown-up stuff being used by lovely ladies with extra-fine hair, and by all the smart teens.

In this routine, daily brushing is most important. It dry cleans, distributes the scalp oil and stimulates circulation. Use a medium-stiff bristle brush to avoid scalp irritations and broken hair. Also in order is a weekly shampoo. (Those frequent shower wettings aren't substitutes!) The liquid castiles and lanolin-loaded whips are perfect shampoos for young and delicate-textured hair.

To create a shining halo, a rinse is on the agenda. For dark hair, use a tablespoon of vinegar to a glass of warm water and massage it through the hair. For light brown or blond hair, add a tablespoon of strained lemon juice to a glass of warm water. Saturate the head, then rinse it lightly with clear water.

Gloss And Manageability

After rinsing, wrap the child's head in an absorbent towel for a few minutes. Never rub . . . that only breaks and tangles hair and leaves it dull and lifeless looking. After extracting the excess moisture, allow the hair to dry in the air or use a hand dryer for speed.

As for the arrangement, why ot let the young lady decide? What's a mistake, if she learns to judge what's best for her? Just be sure to seek a trained person for the cutting job. If curls are a must, a pin-curl permanent applied to the ends will do no harm. It will give even the straightest hair a storybook prettiness.

Jap Government Facing Double Elections Test

TOKYO—(AP)—Voters in occupied Japan ballot twice this month in local elections that are expected to measure public support of Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida's government in handling anticipated Japanese peace treaty negotiations.

Yoshida's Liberal Party has been under fire by a bloc of Socialists and Democrats. In addition many prewar politicians who were purged by occupation authorities until last year will be making their first attempted comeback.

Seats in the Japanese Diet are not at stake in this second election under Japan's postwar democratic constitution. Governors, mayors and local representatives will be elected on April 23 and April 30.

The fight between Yoshidas ruling Liberals and the Socialist-Democrat bloc has captured most of the interest in this election.

The Communist Party has been hard hit by a recent government purge of its top officials although the party has not been outlawed. With the two principal party mouthpieces, the newspapers Akahata and People's Daily, closed down, the Reds are not expected to show much strength.

Campaigning opened April 3 throughout the country. On April 23 the first test will determine 190,457 posts for city, town and village assemblies and councils, village headmen and mayors.

One week later, on April 30, voters will pick governors for 34 prefectures and mayors for 1,352 cities and larger towns.

The selection of governors for Tokyo and Osaka were the two keenest political struggles between the rival parties.

The incumbent liberal governor of Tokyo, Seiichiro Yasui, was believed to hold an edge on Kanju Kato, Socialist candidate and former labor minister.

In Osaka the present governor, Bunzo Akama, Liberal, and Motojiro Sigiyama, Socialist, who was removed from the purge list by Gen. MacArthur's civil government section last year, are reported in for a close fight.

A nationwide poll conducted by the newspaper Ashi sampled support for Yoshida's Liberals and found: 43.4 per cent in favor, 11.4 per cent were undecided.

A second question—what party do you support?—brought Ashi these answers:

Liberals, 36.5 per cent; Democrats, 4.9 per cent; Socialists, 18.1 per cent; Communists 0.4 per cent; Independents 1.27 per cent. Those who did not support any party were 12.1 per cent and 26.3 per cent were undecided.

The survey was conducted by individual interview of 3,000 persons at 294 selected areas on March 23, 24 and 25.

A flight through a heavy rain by a plane equipped with a wooden propeller will eat away several inches of the propeller.

Jap Government Facing Double Elections Test

TOKYO—(AP)—Voters in occupied Japan ballot twice this month in local elections that are expected to measure public support of Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida's government in handling anticipated Japanese peace treaty negotiations.

Yoshida's Liberal Party has been under fire by a bloc of Socialists and Democrats. In addition many prewar politicians who were purged by occupation authorities until last year will be making their first attempted comeback.

Seats in the Japanese Diet are not at stake in this second election under Japan's postwar democratic constitution. Governors, mayors and local representatives will be elected on April 23 and April 30.

The fight between Yoshidas ruling Liberals and the Socialist-Democrat bloc has captured most of the interest in this election.

The Communist Party has been hard hit by a recent government purge of its top officials although the party has not been outlawed. With the two principal party mouthpieces, the newspapers Akahata and People's Daily, closed down, the Reds are not expected to show much strength.

Campaigning opened April 3 throughout the country. On April 23 the first test will determine 190,457 posts for city, town and village assemblies and councils, village headmen and mayors.

One week later, on April 30, voters will pick governors for 34 prefectures and mayors for 1,352 cities and larger towns.

The selection of governors for Tokyo and Osaka were the two keenest political struggles between the rival parties.

The incumbent liberal governor of Tokyo, Seiichiro Yasui, was believed to hold an edge on Kanju Kato, Socialist candidate and former labor minister.

In Osaka the present governor, Bunzo Akama, Liberal, and Motojiro Sigiyama, Socialist, who was removed from the purge list by Gen. MacArthur's civil government section last year, are reported in for a close fight.

A nationwide poll conducted by the newspaper Ashi sampled support for Yoshida's Liberals and found: 43.4 per cent in favor, 11.4 per cent were undecided.

A second question—what party do you support?—brought Ashi these answers:

Liberals, 36.5 per cent; Democrats, 4.9 per cent; Socialists, 18.1 per cent; Communists 0.4 per cent; Independents 1.27 per cent. Those who did not support any party were 12.1 per cent and 26.3 per cent were undecided.

The survey was conducted by individual interview of 3,000 persons at 294 selected areas on March 23, 24 and 25.

A flight through a heavy rain by a plane equipped with a wooden propeller will eat away several inches of the propeller.

Trial Ends

Hughes took the stand in his own behalf yesterday morning to deny that he swerved his truck into a group in an effort to scare them. The defendant made this statement on cross-examination by State's Attorney Fletcher. He testified that he took it for granted the pickets would move out of the way when he drove down the Old Cemetery Road from a mine tipple.

The accused testified that he and his father and two brothers leased a mine from the Georges Creek Coal Company and that on the morning of the mishap he was driving to the tipple to get a check due for coal previously delivered there.

He testified when he came to the road leading to the tipple he was waved down by a picket (whom he said he later learned was John P. Dolphin, this city, a United Mine Workers of America official) and told: "Don't you load any coal from that mine."

Hughes said he drove to the tipple and went into the office. After talking with the two men at the tipple for about an hour he came out and found a board in which six or eight nails had been imbedded. The right rear outside tire of the dual wheels had been punctured by the nails, he testified. He said he removed the board and placed it in his truck cab and intended to notify State Police of the incident.

Going 15 Miles An Hour

Hughes said he started back down the road to his home. He said he shifted into second gear at a curve just before he came to the group of pickets. Hughes estimated he was traveling about 15 miles an hour.

As he approached the pickets he said he saw it was "too close to get through" and he applied the brakes. At this point, just before striking the pickets and a car, he said he noticed the truck "hopped". The brakes did not hold and Hughes testified he believes the right rear wheel went out of line and a stud bolt through the springs broke. This probably broke the hydraulic brake line, he added.

Three Others

Only three other defense witnesses were called to the stand by Edward J. Ryan and Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., attorneys for Hughes. They were Albert S. Paye, Cumberland engineer who drew a map of the scene of the accident; John P. Stevenson, who had talked with Hughes at the tipple before the tragedy, and Leroy Shearer, Midland mechanic, who examined the truck after the accident.

The state rested its case after having Deputy Sheriff Edgar M. Lewis read a sworn statement which Hughes had made about four hours after the accident of last May 3. This statement was read after a legal skirmish. Defense attorneys said the statement had been improperly obtained and he was denied the right to consult with counsel.

William H. Geppert, assistant state's attorney, began the closing argument shortly after court resumed yesterday afternoon. He contended that the state's case was fully and conclusively corroborated by photographs taken within an hour after the accident.

After Geppert finished, Whitworth began the defense's closing argument. He contended that a leaf on the truck springs broke as Hughes was coming down the hill and he lost control of the truck, resulting in the accident. Ryan finished the defense's closing statement. He contended that Hughes had no grudge against anybody and no deside to injure anybody. When he saw the men were not going to get out of his way, he applied the brakes which did not hold.

Finally, Fletcher made the last argument to Judges Mish and Henderson. He said that Hughes had assumed incorrectly that the stick with nails had been imbedded in a truck tire by the pickets. Fletcher asserted that Hughes lost his temper and was going to show the pickets "a thing or two." His actions showed a "reckless disregard of human life," Fletcher added.

BRIDGE TOURNAMENT TROPHIES — These four beautiful gold trophy cups and the wallets, purses, cigaret lighters, necklaces and other gifts will be awarded to winners of the first annual Western Maryland Sectional Bridge tournament to be held Saturday and Sunday at the Cumberland Country Club. The tournament is being sponsored by the Cumberland Duplicate Bridge Club and is sanctioned by the American Contract Bridge League. The trophy at the left will go to the Women's Pair Event winners from S. Russell Minter, local architect and officer of the Cumberland Bridge Club. The large trophy is being awarded by the Cumberland Times-News to the Open Pair winners and must be won three times for permanent possession. The next two trophies are being donated by the S. T. Little Jewelry Company and the Fort Cumberland Hotel and will go to the Men's Pair winners and the Mixed Pair victors respectively. Other prizes will be awarded to the runners-up.

Hughes took the stand in his own behalf yesterday morning to deny that he swerved his truck into a group in an effort to scare them.

The defendant made this statement on cross-examination by State's Attorney Fletcher. He testified that he took it for granted the pickets would move out of the way when he drove down the Old Cemetery Road from a mine tipple.

The accused testified that he and his father and two brothers leased a mine from the Georges Creek Coal Company and that on the morning of the mishap he was driving to the tipple to get a check due for coal previously delivered there.

He testified when he came to the road leading to the tipple he was waved down by a picket (whom he said he later learned was John P. Dolphin, this city, a United Mine Workers of America official) and told: "Don't you load any coal from that mine."

Hughes said he drove to the tipple and went into the office. After talking with the two men at the tipple for about an hour he came out and found a board in which six or eight nails had been imbedded. The right rear outside tire of the dual wheels had been punctured by the nails, he testified. He said he removed the board and placed it in his truck cab and intended to notify State Police of the incident.

Going 15 Miles An Hour

Hughes said he started back down the road to his home. He said he shifted into second gear at a curve just before he came to the group of pickets. Hughes estimated he was traveling about 15 miles an hour.

As he approached the pickets he said he saw it was "too close to get through" and he applied the brakes. At this point, just before striking the pickets and a car, he said he noticed the truck "hopped". The brakes did not hold and Hughes testified he believes the right rear wheel went out of line and a stud bolt through the springs broke. This probably broke the hydraulic brake line, he added.

Three Others

Only three other defense witnesses were called to the stand by Edward J. Ryan and Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., attorneys for Hughes. They were Albert S. Paye, Cumberland engineer who drew a map of the scene of the accident; John P. Stevenson, who had talked with Hughes at the tipple before the tragedy, and Leroy Shearer, Midland mechanic, who examined the truck after the accident.

The state rested its case after having Deputy Sheriff Edgar M. Lewis read a sworn statement which Hughes had made about four hours after the accident of last May 3. This statement was read after a legal skirmish. Defense attorneys said the statement had been improperly obtained and he was denied the right to consult with counsel.

William H. Geppert, assistant state's attorney, began the closing argument shortly after court resumed yesterday afternoon. He contended that the state's case was fully and conclusively corroborated by photographs taken within an hour after the accident.

After Geppert finished, Whitworth began the defense's closing argument. He contended that a leaf on the truck springs broke as Hughes was coming down the hill and he lost control of the truck, resulting in the accident. Ryan finished the defense's closing statement. He contended that Hughes had no grudge against anybody and no deside to injure anybody. When he saw the men were not going to get out of his way, he applied the brakes which did not hold.

Finally, Fletcher made the last argument to Judges Mish and Henderson. He said that Hughes had assumed incorrectly that the stick with nails had been imbedded in a truck tire by the pickets. Fletcher asserted that Hughes lost his temper and was going to show the pickets "a thing or two." His actions showed a "reckless disregard of human life," Fletcher added.

New Theory

Pilots Of Flying Saucers Super-Bees From Mars?

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK—(AP)—A new book speculates that pilots of flying saucers are super-bees from Mars, two inches long and quite beautiful.

The super-smart bees are Gerald Heard's contribution to flying saucer discussion in "Is Another World Watching?" (Harper). He thinks maybe the Martian bees are worried that man will blow up the earth or sun with atomic energy, hurting Mars in the process.

Heard, English-born, lives in California and is a writer and lecturer. He once was editor of the London Realist, a monthly on scientific humanism.

Author of books on religion and social behavior, Heard accepts a lot of reports about the saucers as true. He tries to digest these "facts" into a theory.

For example, one report was that flying saucers travel 18,000 miles an hour, with sudden stops and turns. Heard says no pilot shaped like a human being could withstand the force and pressure of such movement. But insects might—and so maybe the Martians are bees.

"A creature with eyes like brilliant cut diamonds, with a head of sapphire, a thorax of emerald, an abdomen of ruby, wings like opal, legs like topaz—such a body would be worthy of this super-mind."

Heard doesn't say whether the Martian bees have stingers. They've existed on Mars so long that it's presumed they have no enemies, in a world "where intelligence has won total freedom from burial, repressive force," where "life is free to be as beautiful as it cares."

The super-bees have been real gentlemen so far, taking care not to crash into man's airplanes. In fact, "they have behaved with a deportment which shows not merely savoir-faire, but real considerateness.

Why are they spying on us?

The "only sensible answer" is that we're a peril to them, maybe a risk because of the atom bomb with which man may be like a bad boy with matches."

Heard says perhaps the super-bees are worried that man will blow up the earth, creating cosmic dust that would reduce Mars' precious sunshine.

Or, he says, maybe they're worried that atom blasts on earth will somehow trigger off an explosion of the sun, ending life on all planets.

Earth scientists don't foresee either of these dangers, but Heard says the Martian bees know a lot more about science than we do.

East German Papers Read Alike After Class In "House Of Unity"

By BRACK CURRY

FRANKFURT, Germany—(AP)—Every weekday morning a single man hands out orders on what 18,000,000 Germans in the Soviet zone will read in their newspapers.

He is Rudolph Herrnstadt, member of the Politburo of the Socialist Unity (Communist) Party and chief editor of its official organ, Neues Deutschland.

Promptly at 10 a. m., daily leading East German newspaper executive file into a room at the "House of Unity" in East Berlin.

Like a stern schoolmaster, Herrnstadt outlines the main news themes, top stories and editorial treatment.

Grouped before him are not only the editors of the Communist newspapers but also the top men of the non-Communist papers—all listening and taking notes.

These meetings at the "House of Unity" are important links in the chain of command which makes Soviet zone dailies look alike, think alike and talk alike.

"It must be grudgingly admitted that the dominated press is a powerful weapon in the hands of the Communists," says Gardner Cox, Jr., one of the U. S. High Commission's experts on East German affairs.

"The regime's ban on non-Communist literature has been sufficiently effective to give unquestioned first place to the Communist printed word. The result in East Germany is an example of what has happened to the press in all the Soviet satellites—and what would happen in any future satellites.

"Personal intimidation and special economic pressure through licensing and control of newsprint have been used to clamp an unchallengeable Red control, regardless of different party affiliations."

Editor Herrnstadt summed it up in a lecture at the last annual meeting of Communist press officials:

"The party newspaper is not published in order to amuse people or to earn money. It is published in order to make political policy, in order to wage a political fight. Thus it is a political institution which, for practical reasons, has the character of a newspaper."

Most news appearing in Soviet zone newspapers comes from ADN (Allgemeiner Deutcher Nachrichdendienst—general German news service). ADN receives all its directives and special releases from Gerhard Eisler's government information office. Such releasee must be published without alteration.

ADN, particularly for international coverage, is linked with Moscow and the Cominform via the Soviet-operated news service for Germany calld SNB (Sowjetisches Nachrichten Buero — Soviet News Agency).

Despite the similar content of the Communist and non-Communist press, Eisler discriminates between them in a number of ways, Cox explains.

The monopoly distribution agency declines to deliver the Christian Democrat's Neue Zeit and the Liberal Democrats' Der Morgen from East Berlin, where they are published, to newsstands in the Soviet zone.

And the many nationalized industrial concerns seldom, if ever, advertise in a non-Communist newspaper.

The Union of South Africa was formed in 1910.

Potato Is On Plentiful Food List

A headliner on April's list of plentiful foods is the potato. This inexpensive vegetable has been generously endowed by mother nature. Nutrition-wise, kitchen-wise, and table-wise the potato knows no peer in the vegetable kingdom. It has the signal honor of being the one vegetable that can be served daily and yet never lose it's appetite appeal.

French potato pie presents this 4-star performer in stunning new dress for spring tables. The potatoes, stepped up with onion and parsley for added flavor, are cooked to perfection inside a delightfully flaky crust. Fresh, sweet fortified margarine teams up with the potatoes and the pastry to make elegant dish that belies its kitchen economy.

French Potato Pie

6 medium-sized potatoes; 1 teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon pepper; ½ cup chopped onion; 1 teaspoon chopped parsley; 3 tablespoons fortified margarine; 1 cup light cream; 1 recipe Tart Pastry.

Peel potatoes and cut in thin slices. Season with salt and pepper. Mix with onion and parsley. Roll out ½ of the pastry dough about ¼-inch thick to fit 10"x6"x1½" glass baking dish. Drain potatoes and arrange in pastry-lined dish. Dot with bits of margarine. Roll out remaining pastry and place over the potatoes. Roll the pastry edges together so that no juice can escape. Cut a few tiny gashes in the top of the pie to allow for the escape of steam. Brush top of the pastry with a little milk. Bake 1 to 1¼ hours in a 375 degree oven. Cut a small round hole in the top and test potatoes for doneness. If finished cooking, pour the cream into the hot pie through the opening. Let stand 3 to 5 minutes before serving. Yield: 6 servings.

Tart Pastry

½ cup fortified margarine; ½ teaspoon salt; 1 tablespoon sugar. 2 cups sifted enriched flour; 4 tablespoons cold water; 1 egg, beaten.

Cream margarine together with the salt and sugar. Cut in the flour as for pie pastry. Mix together water and egg. Add gradually, using just enough to make a firm dough. (Do not work the dough.) Roll out to fit baking dish.

You Can Fix a Good Breakfast As Fast As a Poor One

"If a thing's worth doing, it's worth doing right," holds plenty of truth when it comes to breakfast. Especially, since you can fix a good breakfast in the time it takes to prepare a poor one!

This was brought out clearly when a group of families—64 in all—participated in a year-long nutrition study, using carefully planned menus, prepared by Pennsylvania State College.

Plan Breakfast

The homemakers compared the time it took them to get the well-balanced breakfasts with the time they had been accustomed to spending. The average showed only 4 minutes more a week—or less than a minute a day—were spent in preparing the good breakfasts.

An easy way for planning your quick breakfasts is to follow a basic breakfast pattern which is widely recommended by nutrition and medical authorities. This pattern consists of five foods: fruit, cereal, milk, bread and butter.

Easy Menu

Today's menu was planned from the pattern. Wheat flakes with sliced bananas and milk form a two-courses-in-one main dish. Bran muffins with butter, and cocoa complete the meal.

Here are some short cuts for this breakfast. Slice your bananas with a pastry blender; two or three plunges of the blender does the job. For cocoa, use a prepared mix, or make your own chocolate syrup the day before and keep in the refrigerator. All you need do in the morning is add milk. The night before, too, measure the dry ingredients for your bran muffins.

Prepare menu Early, Enjoy Company

Here's a springtime dinner menu that can be planned ahead, whipped into shape at a moment's notice. A wonderful menu for a supper where the hostess can enjoy extra minutes with her company.

Wash the salad fixings and store in crisp pan. Make the cranberry taffies, arrange in a shallow pan, place in refrigerator until ¾ hour before serving. Slip the pan of taffies into the oven for ½-hour so they'll be hot and bubbly when the dinner's served. As taffies are heating, the creamed meat filling can be reheated and the beans cooked.

French Potato Pie

6 medium-sized potatoes; 1 teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon pepper; ½ cup chopped onion; 1 teaspoon chopped parsley; 3 tablespoons fortified margarine; 1 cup light cream; 1 recipe Tart Pastry.

Peel potatoes and cut in thin slices. Season with salt and pepper. Mix with onion and parsley. Roll out ½ of the pastry dough about ¼-inch thick to fit 10"x6"x1½" glass baking dish. Drain potatoes and arrange in pastry-lined dish. Dot with bits of margarine. Roll out remaining pastry and place over the potatoes. Roll the pastry edges together so that no juice can escape. Cut a few tiny gashes in the top of the pie to allow for the escape of steam. Brush top of the pastry with a little milk. Bake 1 to 1¼ hours in a 375 degree oven. Cut a small round hole in the top and test potatoes for doneness. If finished cooking, pour the cream into the hot pie through the opening. Let stand 3 to 5 minutes before serving. Yield: 6 servings.

Tart Pastry

½ cup fortified margarine; ½ teaspoon salt; 1 tablespoon sugar. 2 cups sifted enriched flour; 4 tablespoons cold water; 1 egg, beaten.

Cream margarine together with the salt and sugar. Cut in the flour as for pie pastry. Mix together water and egg. Add gradually, using just enough to make a firm dough. (Do not work the dough.) Roll out to fit baking dish.

Valencia Oranges Extra Juicy

Valencias are the big-easy-to-section oranges prized for their juice and flavor, and since their season is not too long they should be enjoyed to the full during the next few weeks. When you buy oranges for juice, get enough extras so that you can use them in cooking.

Florida Chiffin Pie

1 envelope unflavored gelatine; 1¼ cups Florida orange juice; 2-3 cup sugar; 1 tablespon flour; 1 tablespoon grated Florida orange rind; 2 tablespoons Florida lime juice; 1 cup heavy cream, whipped, or 2-3 cup thoroughly chilled evaporated milk, whipped; 1 9-1inch *Chocolate Crumb Crust or 9 baked tart shells.

Soften gelatin in ¾ cup cold orange juice in saucepan. Blend sugar, flour and salt; add to softened gelatine; mix thoroughly: Place over medium heat; stir constantly until gelatine is dissolved and mixture is slightly thickened. Remove from heat; add orange rind and remaining ½ cup orange juice, and lime juice. Chill until the mixture is slightly thicker than the consistency of unbeaten egg white. Fold into whipped cream or whipped evaporated milk. Turn into pie crust or tart shells and chill until firm. If desired, garnish with whipped cream, Florida orange sections and shaved chocolate. YIELD: 1 9-inch pie.

*Chocolate Crumb Crust

1¼ cups finely crushed chocolate cookies; ¼ cup sugar; ¼ cup softened butter or margarine.

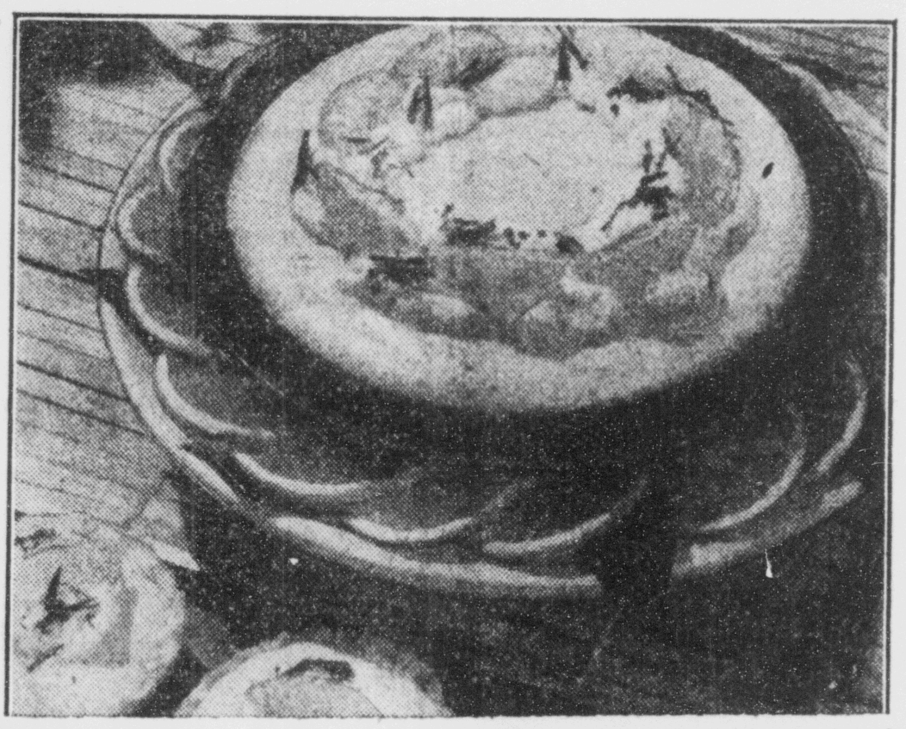
Orange Chiffon Pie Tastes Like Spring



THIS time of year foods should be as light and bright as spring itself, and one of the best ingredients you'll find for achieving such results are the juicy, extra-sweet Valencia oranges now coming into market from Florida. This Orange Chiffon Pie is one that requires little cooking. Look for the recipe elsewhere on this page.

Asparagus Is Grand Main Dish Vegetable

Whether you buy fresh asparagus in the spring or enjoy the frozen spears so good all through the year, it's always a grand vegetable to choose for a handsome main dish with delicate and intriguing flavor. With an easy to make mayonnaise Hollandaise sauce, it's a gay combination of springlike color and taste, and a dish you'll choose when menus need a lift.

Why not surprise the family today with a tender asparagus main dish, with flavor heightened with deviled ham and luscious mayonnaise Hollandaise?

Surprise Asparagus Benedict

1 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Rounds of bread
Deviled ham
Cooked asparagus spears

Make Hollandaise sauce by placing the mayonnaise in the top of a double boiler, over hot water. Let stand 10 minutes without boiling. Add the lemon juice and mix well.

Toast the bread on one side. Spread the untoasted side of each round with deviled ham and cover with several spears of asparagus. Pour Hollandaise sauce over each portion of asparagus. Serve at once. Serves 4.

Marshmallow Sauce

Boil ½ cup sugar and 1 cup water 10 minutes. Add 24 marshmallows, cut in quarters. Keep over heat until marshmallows begin to dissolve. Remove from heat and beat until smooth. Add ½ teaspoon banana extract. Serve hot over marlow.

The average size of salmon is from 10 to 12 pounds.

Soup Is Good DinnerStarter

If you are the kind who worries about getting your family's everyday meals off to a good start, it is high time you gave yourself a break and used a sure-fire meal starter.

Nutritionists tell us that a bowl of steaming hot soup is the best kind of "setting-up" exercise for any meal. It is a kind of come-on for all the food that follows and seems to make other things taste better.

Today, you can have nourishing soup with the good old fashioned home cooked taste. It costs so little in money and takes only a few minutes to prepare. The soup can be varied for those days when you want to serve something different. Here are two good variations:

Garden Vegetable Soup

2 teaspoons butter or cooking fat; 2 tablespoons chopped onion; 1 tablespoon chopped green pepper; 1 large tomato, chopped; 1 quart boiling water; 1 package noodle soup mix; ½ teaspoon salt.

Melt the butter, add vegetables and cook for 5 minutes. Add water, bring to boil and stir in noodle soup mix. Then cook 7 minutes. Makes 4-6 servings.

Cream of Oyster Soup

1 package noodle soup; 2 cups boiling water; 6 oysters; ½ cup oyster liquor; 1-½ cups medium white sauce.

Add the noodle soup mix to the boiling water and cook for 7 minutes. Stir in oysters (cut into 4 or 6 pieces), oyster liquor and white sauce. Heat, but do not boil. Makes 4-6 servings.

Fruit Marlow

32 marshmallows
2 tablespoons milk
3 cups chopped canned peaches, pineapple or cherries
¼ teaspoon almond flavor
½ pint cream, whiped

Blend marshmallows and milk in saucepan over low heat, folding until marshmallows are almost melted. Remove from heat and fold until mixture is smooth. Cool. Gradually fold in drained fruit and flavoring. Fold mixture into whipped cream. Freeze in refrigerator until firm, stirring once during freezing. Serves 10.

Meat-Vegetable Casserole

The casserole dish is the housewife's helper. Prepared early in the day, then reheated just before mealtime, it can be a short cut both in meal preparation and in cleaning up. Cooked top stove instead of in the oven it also saves cooking time. Besides these obvious virtues, a casserole recipe makes for mighty good eating. Here is one that combines inexpensive but flavorful flank steak with succulent lima beans.

Steak And Lima Casserole

2 tablespoons fat
1 lb. flank steak
1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup minced onion
½ cup water
½ cup tomato sauce
½ teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon chili powder
⅛ teaspoon oregano
2 lbs. fresh lima beans, or 12 oz. pkg. quick-frozen large limas
½ cup sour cream

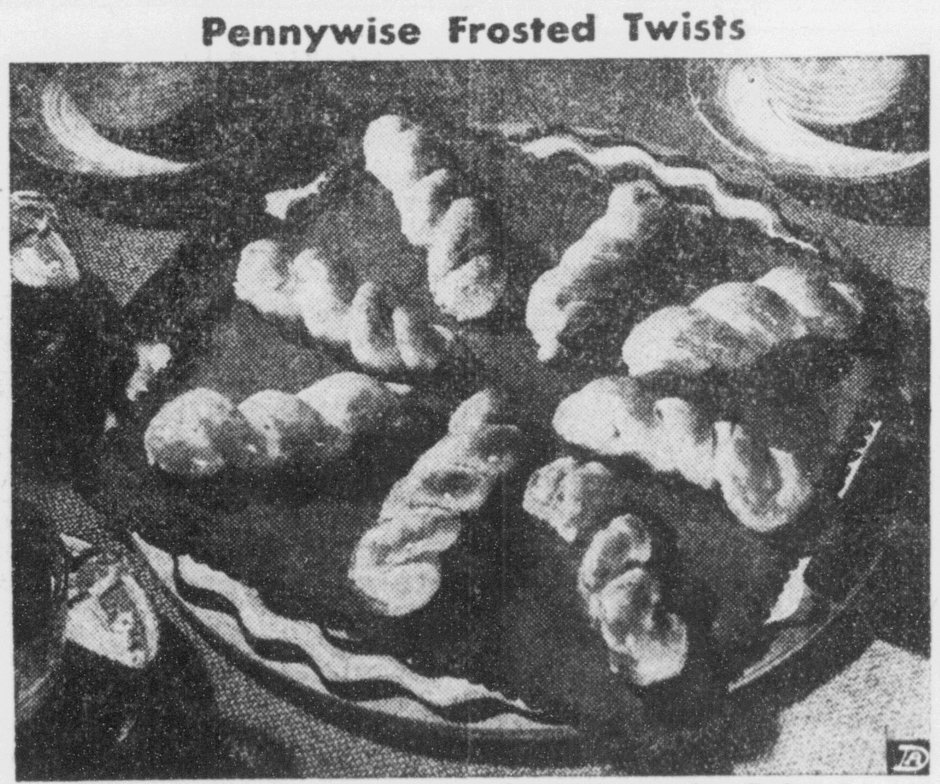
Melt fat in frying pan. Cut meat in thin slivers or strips. Place meat in mixing bowl. Sprinkle with kitchen bouquet and salt. Toss lightly with fork until meat is thoroughly coated. Place in frying pan and cook, uncovered, stirring frequently until meat is brown. Add onion and cook about 5 minutes longer, stirring frequently. Add water, tomato sauce, sugar, chili powder and oregano. Add shelled, or defrosted, lima beans. Cover tightly and cook over low heat until beans are barely tender, about 20 minutes. Stir in sour cream and heat thoroughly. Serve in hot casserole dish.

Yield: 6 servings.

It is estimated that about 200,000 pounds of snuff a day are used in the United States.

Nearly 6,000 Americans were killed in their homes in 1948 by burns, scalds or explosions.

Pennywise Frosted Twists



Would you guess that you can make these tempting Twists for just a cent-and-a-half apiece? Serve them for family meals and coffee hour refreshments.

For a new twist to your "sweets" assortment, make glazed Twists from a kneaded sweet yeast dough. These rolls are a take-off on the popular cruller, but are baked instead of being deep-fat fried.

Use recipe suggested here, or your own favorite sweet yeast roll recipe. If you wish, make one coffee cake and use the rest of the dough to shape Twists. No special equipment is needed. Just fold 8-inch strips of dough in half and roll so the strips twist. If you prefer, cut dough into four-inch strips and twist together by twos. Pinch ends of dough together so the Twists won't uncurl during baking.

When cool glaze with confectioners' sugar icing. Make this by combining three tablespoons milk and one cup confectioners' sugar.

Good nutrition goes hand in hand with economy when you serve these tempting sweet rolls. The enriched flour used in making breads of all kinds provides essential B-vitamins and food iron needed for vitality and good health.

TWISTS

2 cakes yeast, compressed or dry
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 cup milk
¼ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 eggs
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind (if desired)
5 cups sifted enriched flour (about)
Confectioners' Sugar Icing

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add shortening, sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add 2 cups flour. Mix well. Add eggs and lemon rind. Beat well. Add softened yeast. Mix well. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until satiny. Place in greased bowl. Cover and let rise until doubled. When light, punch down. Pinch off portions of dough and roll under hand to ½ inch thickness and 8 inches in length. Fold and roll back on itself, twisting ends around each other. Pinch ends together to seal. Let rise until doubled. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Makes about 3 dozen twists.

One Of First Solid Foods For Baby Is Bananas

National Baby Week, April 28th to May 5th, is a time to consider the great inprovement in scientific lore about babies, and the changes in their modern diet. Babies of today have much greater variety in their food and a better rounded supply of nutritive values.

Babies as young as 6 to 12 weeks now are given solid foods, and one of the first of these is fully ripe bananas. The liking established so young for this tropical fruit seems to last through childhood. For children, bananas are a favorite snack and treat. For the baby of 6 to 12 weeks, bananas are mashed or put through a fine mesh sieve. It is easy to mash bananas. Just slice them into a bowl and mash with a fork or beat with a rotary beater or an electric mixer. By the time baby is 9 to 12 months old, he can have baked or broiled bananas to go with whatever meat and vegetables he is allowed to have.

SELECT FULLY RIPE BANANAS TO GIVE TO CHILDREN

For babies and for children, it is important to select fully ripe bananas, the kind that have yellow peel flecked with brown. If your bananas are green-tipped or all-yellow put them in a fruit bowl at comfortable room temperature and by mother nature's ripening process the starches will be changed into fruit sugars which are highly digestable. Then these brown flecked bananas will have a sweet and mellow flavor which children like. Bananas have excellent nutrition for children with their well-rounded supply of vitamins, essential minerals and quick food energy.

Chocolate Mint Marlow

2 cups milk
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
32 marshmallows
2 or 3 drops peppermint extract
1 cup cream, whipped.

Scald one cup milk. Shave chocolate into milk and stir until melted. Remove from heat and add marshmallows. Stir lightly until nearly melted. Add remaining cup of cold milk and extract. Fold mixture until smooth. Pour into refrigerator tray to chill while whipping cream. Fold in whipped cream and return to refrigerator. Stir once during freezing. Serves 6 to 8.

Cream of Oyster Soup

1 package noodle soup; 2 cups boiling water; 6 oysters; ½ cup oyster liquor; 1-½ cups medium white sauce.

Add the noodle soup mix to the boiling water and cook for 7 minutes. Stir in oysters (cut into 4 or 6 pieces), oyster liquor and white sauce. Heat, but do not boil. Makes 4-6 servings.

Fruit Marlow

32 marshmallows
2 tablespoons milk
3 cups chopped canned peaches, pineapple or cherries
¼ teaspoon almond flavor
½ pint cream, whiped

Blend marshmallows and milk in saucepan over low heat, folding until marshmallows are almost melted. Remove from heat and fold until mixture is smooth. Cool. Gradually fold in drained fruit and flavoring. Fold mixture into whipped cream. Freeze in refrigerator until firm, stirring once during freezing. Serves 10.

Meat-Vegetable Casserole

The casserole dish is the housewife's helper. Prepared early in the day, then reheated just before mealtime, it can be a short cut both in meal preparation and in cleaning up. Cooked top stove instead of in the oven it also saves cooking time. Besides these obvious virtues, a casserole recipe makes for mighty good eating. Here is one that combines inexpensive but flavorful flank steak with succulent lima beans.

Steak And Lima Casserole

2 tablespoons fat
1 lb. flank steak
1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup minced onion
½ cup water
½ cup tomato sauce
½ teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon chili powder
⅛ teaspoon oregano
2 lbs. fresh lima beans, or 12 oz. pkg. quick-frozen large limas
½ cup sour cream

Melt fat in frying pan. Cut meat in thin slivers or strips. Place meat in mixing bowl. Sprinkle with kitchen bouquet and salt. Toss lightly with fork until meat is thoroughly coated. Place in frying pan and cook, uncovered, stirring frequently until meat is brown. Add onion and cook about 5 minutes longer, stirring frequently. Add water, tomato sauce, sugar, chili powder and oregano. Add shelled, or defrosted, lima beans. Cover tightly and cook over low heat until beans are barely tender, about 20 minutes. Stir in sour cream and heat thoroughly. Serve in hot casserole dish.

Yield: 6 servings.

It is estimated that about 200,000 pounds of snuff a day are used in the United States.

Nearly 6,000 Americans were killed in their homes in 1948 by burns, scalds or explosions.

Pennywise Frosted Twists

Would you guess that you can make these tempting Twists for just a cent-and-a-half apiece? Serve them for family meals and coffee hour refreshments.

For a new twist to your "sweets" assortment, make glazed Twists from a kneaded sweet yeast dough. These rolls are a take-off on the popular cruller, but are baked instead of being deep-fat fried.

Use recipe suggested here, or your own favorite sweet yeast roll recipe. If you wish, make one coffee cake and use the rest of the dough to shape Twists. No special equipment is needed. Just fold 8-inch strips of dough in half and roll so the strips twist. If you prefer, cut dough into four-inch strips and twist together by twos. Pinch ends of dough together so the Twists won't uncurl during baking.

When cool glaze with confectioners' sugar icing. Make this by combining three tablespoons milk and one cup confectioners' sugar.

Good nutrition goes hand in hand with economy when you serve these tempting sweet rolls. The enriched flour used in making breads of all kinds provides essential B-vitamins and food iron needed for vitality and good health.

TWISTS

2 cakes yeast, compressed or dry
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 cup milk
¼ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 eggs
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind (if desired)
5 cups sifted enriched flour (about)
Confectioners' Sugar Icing

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add shortening, sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add 2 cups flour. Mix well. Add eggs and lemon rind. Beat well. Add softened yeast. Mix well. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until satiny. Place in greased bowl. Cover and let rise until doubled.

When light, punch down. Pinch off portions of dough and roll under hand to ½ inch thickness and 8 inches in length. Fold and roll back on itself, twisting ends around each other. Pinch ends together to seal. Let rise until doubled. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Makes about 3 dozen twists.

One Of First Solid Foods For Baby Is Bananas

National Baby Week, April 28th to May 5th, is a time to consider the great inprovement in scientific lore about babies, and the changes in their modern diet. Babies of today have much greater variety in their food and a better rounded supply of nutritive values.

Babies as young as 6 to 12 weeks now are given solid foods, and one of the first of these is fully ripe bananas. The liking established so young for this tropical fruit seems to last through childhood. For children, bananas are a favorite snack and treat. For the baby of 6 to 12 weeks, bananas are mashed or put through a fine mesh sieve. It is easy to mash bananas. Just slice them into a bowl and mash with a fork or beat with a rotary beater or an electric mixer. By the time baby is 9 to 12 months old, he can have baked or broiled bananas to go with whatever meat and vegetables he is allowed to have.

SELECT FULLY RIPE BANANAS TO GIVE TO CHILDREN

For babies and for children, it is important to select fully ripe bananas, the kind that have yellow peel flecked with brown. If your bananas are green-tipped or all-yellow put them in a fruit bowl at comfortable room temperature and by mother nature's ripening process the starches will be changed into fruit sugars which are highly digestable. Then these brown flecked bananas will have a sweet and mellow flavor which children like. Bananas have excellent nutrition for children with their well-rounded supply of vitamins, essential minerals and quick food energy.

Chocolate Mint Marlow

2 cups milk
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
32 marshmallows
2 or 3 drops peppermint extract
1 cup cream, whipped.

Scald one cup milk. Shave chocolate into milk and stir until melted. Remove from heat and add marshmallows. Stir lightly until nearly melted. Add remaining cup of cold milk and extract. Fold mixture until smooth. Pour into refrigerator tray to chill while whipping cream. Fold in whipped cream and return to refrigerator. Stir once during freezing. Serves 6 to 8.

Lamb Cuts Tender, Tasty

Breast, Shank Good Choices

Housewives who would insure our meat supply by buying the less known cuts of meat will find delicious choices in lamb. This tender, delicate meat includes a fine selection of cuts other than the well known leg of lamb and loin lamb chops which make delicious and thriftier meals.

Check Your Cuts

How many cuts of lamb do you know? Have you ever served lamb shoulder chops, thriftier than loin or rib, and just as delicious when well cooked? Do you know lamb neck slices for stew, or to braise with vegetables? Have you ever tried braised lamb shanks, each shank resembling a miniature leg of lamb, just right for one hearty serving? Grilled lamb kidney is a gourmet treat and then there is breast of lamb, delicious to fill with your favorite stuffing and bake or braise. Have the meat man cut a pocket in the lamb breast to hold the stuffing.

Lamb neck or shank are excellent, thriftier cuts for stew. Thriftier and less known large roasting cuts include cushion shoulder of lamb and lamb shoulder. Lamb patties made with ground lamb shoulder, breast or neck are delicious to broil.

Lamb Can Be Included In Many Good Dishes

The recipes included with this article prove that it is easy to cook the less known cuts of lamb, and the dishes made with them will add variety as well as thrift to your menus. Now, when it is imperative to conserve our meat supply by wise buying and a wider knowledge of meat cuts and meat cookery, is an excellent time to get acquainted with the less demanded cuts of lamb.

Lamb Shoulder Chops
New Orleans

4 lamb shoulder chops,
  1 inch thick
1 tablespoon lard
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups tomato juice
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup chopped onion

Brown chops in lard until golden brown. Season with salt and pepper. Add tomato juice, green pepper and onion. Cover and simmer 30 minutes or until tender. YIELD: 4 servings.

Braised Lamb Shanks

4 lamb shanks (about 1 lb. each)
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons lard
1 cup water
1 cup pitted cooked dried prunes
1 cup cooked dried apricots
¼ cup corn syrup

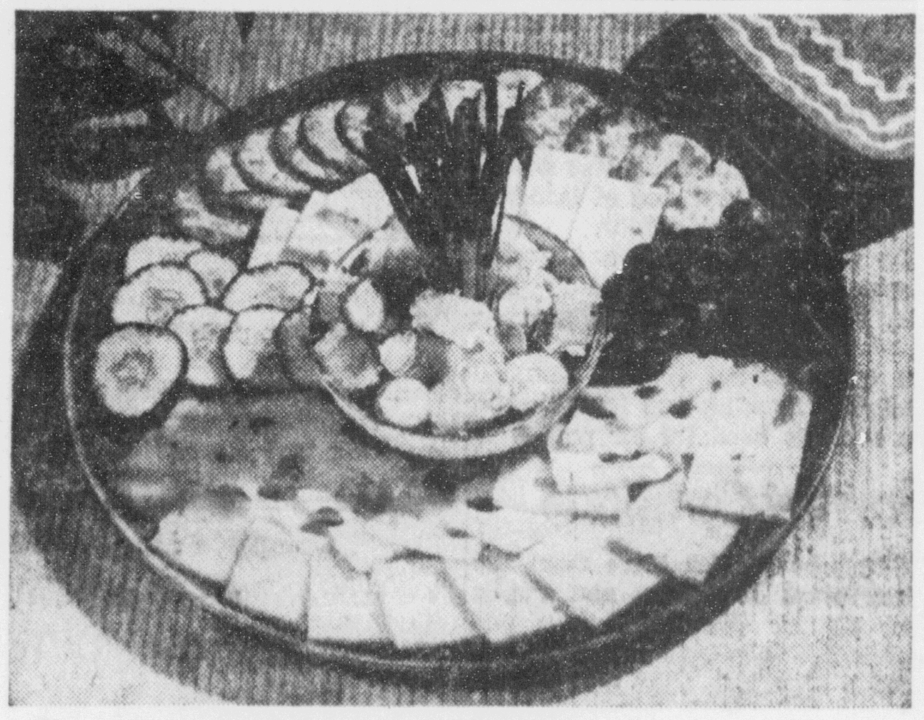
Dredge meat with flour, salt and pepper, combined. Brown shanks slowly in hot lard. Place meat in baking dish. With water rinse out browned particles in pan in which meat was browned, and pour over shanks. Cover meat and cook in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) for about 2 hours or until meat is tender. Meanwhile heat cooked dried prunes and cooked dried apricots in corn syrup. Serve with meat. YIELD: 4 servings.

Stuffed Breast of Lamb

Lamb breast, 2 pounds
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons lard
½ cup water
Dressing:
4 tablespoons minced onion
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 cups soft bread crumbs
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons minced parsley
½ teaspoon sage

Have lamb breast boned and pocket cut in breast from flank end. Season meat with salt and pepper. Make the dressing by sauteing the onion in butter until tender, then adding remaining ingredients and stuff into pocket of lamb. Fasten opening with toothpicks. Brown meat on a rack in pan, add hot water, cover, and cook in slow oven (325 degrees F.) for 1½ hours. YIELD: 4 to 5 servings.

APPEALING WAYS WITH CHEESE



Cheese is excellent company on any occasion at any time. A thick slice of Swiss on rye bread for a midnight snack, a delicately flavored cream cheese spread for tea sandwiches, a generous slice of American topping a wedge of apple pie, a good assortment on an attractive cheese tray—these are but a few of the appealing ways cheese makes its appearance.

Cheese has more to offer than appetite appeal. It is also a nourishing food. Cheese is a concentrated protein food rich in calcium and phosphorus. Milk's vitamins are also present in different amounts, in different kinds of cheese. In whole milk types, as American, and in cream cheese, vitamin A value is high.

Cheese trays, both appetizer and dessert types are becoming more and more popular. A well chosen assortment of cheese served in the comfortable atmosphere of the living room is a relaxing way to either begin or end a meal. Choose your cheese assortment carefully including both sharp and mild flavored cheeses. Then you're assured of pleasing everyone.

Try a vegetable appetizer tray at your next dinner party. Crisp bits of raw vegetables of all kinds are suitable. Make an attractive arrangement of vegetables and several kinds of cheese. With it serve plenty of crisp crackers and tomato juice.

Cheese Vegetable Snack Tray

Set a small low bowl in the center of a large chop plate. Fill bowl with cream cheese-stuffed carrot curls and stand a bunch of green onions upright in the center. On the chop plate arrange slices of Swiss, brick and American cheese, crackers, radishes and cucumber slices.

To make carrot curls, cut peeled large carrots in halves lengthwise and shave off long thin lengthwise slices with a vegetable peeler. Roll around your finger fastening ends securely with a toothpick. Chill in ice water until crisp. Drain and fill centers with cream cheese.

About 75,000,000 acres of land in the United States are barren.

Blue whales often exceed 100 feet in length and 100 tons in weight.

Breast, Shank Good Choices

Housewives who would insure our meat supply by buying the less known cuts of meat will find delicious choices in lamb. This tender, delicate meat includes a fine selection of cuts other than the well known leg of lamb and loin lamb chops which make delicious and thriftier meals.

Check Your Cuts

How many cuts of lamb do you know? Have you ever served lamb shoulder chops, thriftier than loin or rib, and just as delicious when well cooked? Do you know lamb neck slices for stew, or to braise with vegetables? Have you ever tried braised lamb shanks, each shank resembling a miniature leg of lamb, just right for one hearty serving? Grilled lamb kidney is a gourmet treat and then there is breast of lamb, delicious to fill with your favorite stuffing and bake or braise. Have the meat man cut a pocket in the lamb breast to hold the stuffing.

Lamb neck or shank are excellent, thriftier cuts for stew. Thriftier and less known large roasting cuts include cushion shoulder of lamb and lamb shoulder. Lamb patties made with ground lamb shoulder, breast or neck are delicious to broil.

Lamb Can Be Included In Many Good Dishes

The recipes included with this article prove that it is easy to cook the less known cuts of lamb, and the dishes made with them will add variety as well as thrift to your menus. Now, when it is imperative to conserve our meat supply by wise buying and a wider knowledge of meat cuts and meat cookery, is an excellent time to get acquainted with the less demanded cuts of lamb.

Lamb Shoulder Chops New Orleans

4 lamb shoulder chops, 1 inch thick
1 tablespoon lard
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups tomato juice
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup chopped onion

Brown chops in lard until golden brown. Season with salt and pepper. Add tomato juice, green pepper and onion. Cover and simmer 30 minutes or until tender. YIELD: 4 servings.

Braised Lamb Shanks

4 lamb shanks (about 1 lb. each)
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons lard
1 cup water
1 cup pitted cooked dried prunes
1 cup cooked dried apricots
¼ cup corn syrup

Dredge meat with flour, salt and pepper, combined. Brown shanks slowly in hot lard. Place meat in baking dish. With water rinse out browned particles in pan in which meat was browned, and pour over shanks. Cover meat and cook in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) for about 2 hours or until meat is tender. Meanwhile heat cooked dried prunes and cooked dried apricots in corn syrup. Serve with meat. YIELD: 4 servings.

Stuffed Breast of Lamb

Lamb breast, 2 pounds
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons lard
½ cup water
Dressing:
4 tablespoons minced onion
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 cups soft bread crumbs
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons minced parsley
½ teaspoon sage

Have lamb breast boned and pocket cut in breast from flank end. Season meat with salt and pepper. Make the dressing by sauteing the onion in butter until tender, then adding remaining ingredients and stuff into pocket of lamb. Fasten opening with toothpicks. Brown meat on a rack in pan, add hot water, cover, and cook in slow oven (325 degrees F.) for 1½ hours. YIELD: 4 to 5 servings.

APPEALING WAYS WITH CHEESE

Cheese is excellent company on any occasion at any time. A thick slice of Swiss on rye bread for a midnight snack, a delicately flavored cream cheese spread for tea sandwiches, a generous slice of American topping a wedge of apple pie, a good assortment on an attractive cheese tray—these are but a few of the appealing ways cheese makes its appearance.

Cheese has more to offer than appetite appeal. It is also a nourishing food. Cheese is a concentrated protein food rich in calcium and phosphorus. Milk's vitamins are also present in different amounts, in different kinds of cheese. In whole milk types, as American, and in cream cheese, vitamin A value is high.

Cheese trays, both appetizer and dessert types are becoming more and more popular. A well chosen assortment of cheese served in the comfortable atmosphere of the living room is a relaxing way to either begin or end a meal. Choose your cheese assortment carefully including both sharp and mild flavored cheeses. Then you're assured of pleasing everyone.

Try a vegetable appetizer tray at your next dinner party. Crisp bits of raw vegetables of all kinds are suitable. Make an attractive arrangement of vegetables and several kinds of cheese. With it serve plenty of crisp crackers and tomato juice.

Cheese Vegetable Snack Tray

Set a small low bowl in the center of a large chop plate. Fill bowl with cream cheese-stuffed carrot curls and stand a bunch of green onions upright in the center. On the chop plate arrange slices of Swiss, brick and American cheese, crackers, radishes and cucumber slices.

To make carrot curls, cut peeled large carrots in halves lengthwise and shave off long thin lengthwise slices with a vegetable peeler. Roll around your finger fastening ends securely with a toothpick. Chill in ice water until crisp. Drain and fill centers with cream cheese.

About 75,000,000 acres of land in the United States are barren.

Blue whales often exceed 100 feet in length and 100 tons in weight.

History Of U. S. Offers No Exact Parallel To MacArthur's Firing

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

WASHINGTON —(AP)— American history offers no exact parallel to the firing of Gen. MacArthur.

Other high-ranking military men have been removed from command positions but the circumstances were different. MacArthur is the only military leader ever fired for expressed opposition to the government's foreign policy.

Probably the most similar case was the ouster of Adm. Louis Denfeld as chief of naval operations in October, 1949. The four-star Admiral was removed by President Truman and offered a letter command following a quarrel with Army and Air Force leaders over the Navy's role in defense unification.

President Lincoln's removal of popular Gen. George B. McClellan as commander of the Army of the Potomac stirred a storm of protest. But McClellan's ouster was for alleged military inefficiency—his failure to pursue Confederate forces withdrawing from the battlefield of Antietam.

(Two years later, in 1864, McClelland ran against Lincoln for the presidency, on the Democratic ticket.)

Lincoln, who really ran the war, removed several other commanders. Gen. Burnside, who succeeded McClellan as commander of the Army of the Potomac, was ousted for Gen. Hooker, and later Gen. Grant superseded Gen. Halleck as top strategist for the Union forces.

During the war with Mexico, President Polk and his general in chief, Winfield Scott, engaged in a sizzling feud. Polk, however, never fired Scott and the old General came out of the war as a hero.

During their differences, Polk asked Congress to appoint a lieutenant general who would be superior to Scott.

When Scott heard of the plan, he assailed the President as "an enemy more to be dreaded than Santa Ana, the Mexican commander and all his hosts." Still Polk didn't make a direct move to fire Scott and the Senate came to Scott's aid by blocking the President's request for a lieutenant general.

One of the hottest military controversies revolved about the late Brig. Gen. William "Billy" Mitchell, famed advocate of the development of U. S. air power. When he met opposition from older military leaders, Mitchell made fierce attacks on them through the press, was court-martialed and convicted of bringing discredit upon the service.

He was sentenced to a five-year suspension from rank, duty and pay. He resigned from the Army. After President Coolidge sustained the court-martial verdict, Mitchell turned to farming and lecturing on the nation's need for air power.

Must Get Certificate

Employes on sick leave from the Department of Streets and Public Property for over three days will be required to submit a doctor's certificate certifying they are able to perform their duties before they are allowed to return.

Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder announced the ruling yesterday and said it is effective as of April 5.

The move is protection for the employes as well as the city, Mrs. Roeder said.

"Some employes resent it when others return before they are well and convalesce on the job," she added.

The order, as posted, notifies employes in streets and alleys, street cleaning, sewer, warehouse, City Hall, engineering, parks, Constitution Park and Recreation Departments.

Most Diabetics Can Have Happy Eating, Doctors Told

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Ninety per cent of diabetics can have happy eating, on almost normal diets, Dr. Henry J. John of Cleveland told the American College of Physicians.

They must cut out sugar, pastry and soft drinks. Otherwise they can eat like the rest of the family, he said.

Dr. John said his conclusion is based on five years of study with a large number of patients. Some of them, in mild cases, can get along without insulin, he added.

Diabetes brings too much sugar in the blood. Diet and insulin, the hormone from the pancreas gland, help control it.

The patients must eat moderately and watch their weight. Dr. John said. They can usually have plain ice cream once a week. They are limited to no more than two slices of bread, and omit the bread if they have potatoes.

The almost-normal diet "eliminates the bad psychological factor of their feeling that they are "different' from the rest of the family, that they are deprived of so much in life. All of this leads to self-pity and psychological disturbances which are most undesirable."

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Ninety per cent of diabetics can have happy eating, on almost normal diets, Dr. Henry J. John of Cleveland told the American College of Physicians.

They must cut out sugar, pastry and soft drinks. Otherwise they can eat like the rest of the family, he said.

Dr. John said his conclusion is based on five years of study with a large number of patients. Some of them, in mild cases, can get along without insulin, he added.

Diabetes brings too much sugar in the blood. Diet and insulin, the hormone from the pancreas gland, help control it.

The patients must eat moderately and watch their weight, Dr. John said. They can usually have plain ice cream once a week. They are limited to no more than two slices of bread, and omit the bread if they have potatoes.

The almost-normal diet "eliminates the bad psychological factor of their feeling that they are "different' from the rest of the family, that they are deprived of so much in life. All of this leads to self-pity and psychological disturbances which are most undesirable."

Road Signs And Markings To Be Changed In Area

Road signs and lines on district highways will soon be changed to conform with national standards, according to information received by G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for State Roads Commission.

Russell H. McCain, chairman of the SRC, has ordered Maryland's road markings in conformity with those of more up-to-date states.

All signs to be erected in the future will be made to stand out vividly in the darkness by being surfaced with either glass buttons or reflective sheeting.

Chaires said the signs will be constructed in conformity with the Manual of Uniform Traffic Control Devices.

He said a representative from the Traffic Department of the State Roads Commission will visit the district office to give specific instructions on immediate steps.

McCain has stated that the size of some of the signs, notably of route and speed limit markers, is being increased in conformity with the manual.

McCain believes that the installation of modern signs will sharply cut down the number of deaths and injuries on Maryland highways.

The manual advocates white and black paint with reflective beads on obstructions in roads and on bridge abutments.

Chaires said lining of railroad crossings, three-lane highways, school zones, etc., also will be changed to conform with the manual's suggestions.

The President's conference on highway safety recommended use of the uniform manual as a convenience to motorists and to eliminate confusion in the interest of reducing loss of life on the nation's roads.

Sweeper Schedule Posted On Streets

The city is making an effort to post all streets denoting nights they will be cleaned by the sweeper, Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, said yesterday.

Corrigan said half the streets in South End have been posted and work has begun on the West Side.

The signs will name the night on which the sweeper will be in operation.

To insure success of the operation, residents are asked to keep cars off the street scheduled to enable a complete job.

Parked cars have been a major handicap in cleaning streets at the curbs. Weather determines the regularity of the sweeper schedule.

Repp Manslaughter Trial Postponed

BERKELEY SPRINGS W. Va.— The trial of Richard Repp, of Clear Spring, charged with manslaughter after a woman was killed in an auto wreck, has been postponed until the September term of Morgan County Circuit Court.

Repp was indicted by the grand jury of the January term following the accident on November 3 on U. S. Route 522 north of here.

The auto driven by Repp collided headon with another machine in which Ruth Burnett, of Hancock, was a passenger. She was killed.

The trial previously continued from the January term was carried over again upon motion of Repp's counsel as a material witness was unable to appear.

The material witness unable to appear is Mrs. Mary Cohill, proprietor of a tavern, who is in a hospital as a result of injuries received in another accident March 8.

In old times, the servant of the wine cellar was called the "bottler"; from this comes the word, "butler."

Don't suffer restless nights with these discomforts if reduced kidney function is getting you down—due to such common causes as stress and strain, over-exertion or exposure to cold. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Motor Accidents Killed 18 In 1950

Traffic accidents in Allegany county during 1950 claimed 18 lives and resulted in the injury of 171 persons, according to the Maryland State Police Statistical Division.

Garrett county had ten highway fatalities and 61 persons hurt last year. For the entire State of Maryland 497 were killed and 12,566 sustained injuries.

Information released yesterday shows one person was killed every 18 hours. One injury occurred every 42 minutes with the hours 5-6 p.m. the most dangerous for motorists.

In 1878 yellow fever hit 100,000 persons in the Mississippi valley.

Biologists Will Study Savage River Fish

The Savage River fisherman and his catch will be studied again this year by Maryland's biologists. The Department of Research and Education in conjunction with the Maryland Department of Game and Inland Fish Commission will observe and analyze the catch of trout and other species from the river on April 15 and 16. The fishermen are asked to cooperate by showing their catches to the investigators.

A similar survey last year showed that approximately 25 per cent of the trout which had been stocked in the river previously were removed in the first two days of the season. It also showed that of the total number of creeled trout, only 12 per cent were native fish, the balance having been placed in the river from Maryland's hatcheries.

One of the important facts expected to come out of this year's survey is the percentage of carryover of last year's stocked fish. The trout placed in the Savage River in 1950 were marked by fin clipping and the biologists will be on the lookout for these fish.

Motor Accidents Killed 18 In 1950

Traffic accidents in Allegany county during 1950 claimed 18 lives and resulted in the injury of 171 persons, according to the Maryland State Police Statistical Division.

Garrett county had ten highway fatalities and 61 persons hurt last year. For the entire State of Maryland 497 were killed and 12,566 sustained injuries.

Information released yesterday shows one person was killed every 18 hours. One injury occurred every 42 minutes with the hours 5-6 p.m. the most dangerous for motorists.

In 1878 yellow fever hit 100,000 persons in the Mississippi valley.

Biologists Will Study Savage River Fish

The Savage River fisherman and his catch will be studied again this year by Maryland's biologists. The Department of Research and Education in conjunction with the Maryland Department of Game and Inland Fish Commission will observe and analyze the catch of trout and other species from the river on April 15 and 16. The fishermen are asked to cooperate by showing their catches to the investigators.

A similar survey last year showed that approximately 25 per cent of the trout which had been stocked in the river previously were removed in the first two days of the season. It also showed that of the total number of creeled trout, only 12 per cent were native fish, the balance having been placed in the river from Maryland's hatcheries.

One of the important facts expected to come out of this year's survey is the percentage of carryover of last year's stocked fish. The trout placed in the Savage River in 1950 were marked by fin clipping and the biologists will be on the lookout for these fish.

Road Signs And Markings To Be Changed In Area

Road signs and lines on district highways will soon be changed to conform with national standards, according to information received by G. Bates Chaires, district engineer for State Roads Commission.

Russell H. McCain, chairman of the SRC, has ordered Maryland's road markings in conformity with those of more up-to-date states.

All signs to be erected in the future will be made to stand out vividly in the darkness by being surfaced with either glass buttons or reflective sheeting.

Chaires said the signs will be constructed in conformity with the Manual of Uniform Traffic Control Devices.

He said a representative from the Traffic Department of the State Roads Commission will visit the district office to give specific instructions on immediate steps.

McCain has stated that the size of some of the signs, notably of route and speed limit markers, is being increased in conformity with the manual.

McCain believes that the installation of modern signs will sharply cut down the number of deaths and injuries on Maryland highways.

The manual advocates white and black paint with reflective beads on obstructions in roads and on bridge abutments.

Chaires said lining of railroad crossings, three-lane highways, school zones, etc., also will be changed to conform with the manual's suggestions.

The President's conference on highway safety recommended use of the uniform manual as a convenience to motorists and to eliminate confusion in the interest of reducing loss of life on the nation's roads.

Sweeper Schedule Posted On Streets

The city is making an effort to post all streets denoting nights they will be cleaned by the sweeper, Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, said yesterday.

Corrigan said half the streets in South End have been posted and work has begun on the West Side.

The signs will name the night on which the sweeper will be in operation.

To insure success of the operation, residents are asked to keep cars off the street scheduled to enable a complete job.

Parked cars have been a major handicap in cleaning streets at the curbs. Weather determines the regularity of the sweeper schedule.

The first commercial synthetic dye was produced in 1856.

Repp Manslaughter Trial Postponed

BERKELEY SPRINGS W. Va.—The trial of Richard Repp, of Clear Spring, charged with manslaughter after a woman was killed in an auto wreck, has been postponed until the September term of Morgan County Circuit Court.

Repp was indicted by the grand jury of the January term following the accident on November 3 on U. S. Route 522 north of here.

The auto driven by Repp collided headon with another machine in which Ruth Burnett, of Hancock, was a passenger. She was killed.

The trial previously continued from the January term was carried over again upon motion of Repp's counsel as a material witness was unable to appear.

The material witness unable to appear is Mrs. Mary Cohill, proprietor of a tavern, who is in a hospital as a result of injuries received in another accident March 8.

In old times, the servant of the wine cellar was called the "bottler"; from this comes the word, "butler."

Area Firemen Plan Defense Against A-Bombs

Area firemen mapping civil defense plans against an A-bomb attack in the Tri-State section met Wednesday at Westernport to assign volunteer companies to various industries and communities.

Joseph G. Wenrich, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Cresaptown Fire Department, said 33 companies from Allegany and Garrett counties are expected to participate in the program. Others will come from nearby towns in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Taken under consideration at the meeting was the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company. In case of bombing the Tri-Towns Fire Company of Piedmont, W. Va., Potomac Fire Company of Westernport, Luke and Bloomington firemen will be dispatched to the plant.

Wenrich said the Beryl, W. Va., Fire Company would be sent to nearby Bloomington, and Barton firemen would go to Westernport in the event of an emergency. Midland Fire Company would be alerted for Barton, Oakland and Keyser, W. Va.

Assigned to protect the B. and O. shops in Keyser were companies from Westernport, McCoole, Piedmont, Keyser and Fort Ashby, W. Va. Short Gap, W. Va., firemen are scheduled to protect Fort Ashby residents. McCoole and Westernport will get aid from the Bloomington Fire Department.

If radio stations are knocked out of commission, Wenrich said, batteries and a messenger system will be used to dispatch information. A suggestion to detail Boy Scouts to contact officials in case of attack is under consideration.

During an alert, all fire fighting equipment will be moved from the immediate communities as a safety precaution. Two maps, including one for Cumberland, are being prepared for speedier action.

Wenrich submitted a survey on available water from rivers, wells, cisterns, fire hydrants and reservoirs. Trial runs will be staged this summer, he added.

Officers for the civil defense program will be elected April 25 in the Public Safety Building here.

Divorces, Annulment Are Granted Here

The marriage of Edith L. (Wood) Riggleman, this city, to Register Riggleman, said to be a resident of Keyser, W. Va., was annulled by the court. The wife was granted the right to her former name, Edith Wood.

Edith F. Sirbaugh, this city, was granted a divorce from William R. Sirbaugh and the right to her maiden name, Edith F. Burley.

4th District Democrats Elect New Officers

The Old Second

Nothing ever came of it, but I still think it was a good idea.

One day I played golf with three distinguished gents, stopping at Deepdale on the way to Easthampton. It is a stylish club where the attendant unpacks your bag as soon as you come in and hides all your clean clothes. You have to pay a dollar to get them back, or at least it is customary. After we finished, we sampled some sauce from the lockers of various friends as it was during prohibition. Finally we were ready to start, but decided one pal would be hurt if he heard we had been there and skipped his bottled goods. To avoid being inhospitable or giving any offense, we had a stirrup cup.

In Smithtown, we stopped at a stand alongside the road, and our most important companion lost his balance on the brink of a bank and fell down it to the edge of a creek where Archie followed, fished him out, got him right side up, brushed him off and helped him back to the car. There had been some talk this gentleman might be a candidate for the Presidency which evidently had been overheard by our driver although he sometimes dozed while steering. About six months later he asked me,

"Do you think Mr. B. is going to be President?"

"I don't know," I answered. "Why?"

"Do you remember that day I pulled him out of the brook in Smithtown?" he said.

When I next saw my friend, I told him if he had any White House aspirations, he had better square it with Archie first. His question sounded ominous to me.

(More about this fantastic character next time, and how he finally got fired.)

Area Firemen Plan Defense Against A-Bombs

Area firemen mapping civil defense plans against an A-bomb attack in the Tri-State section met Wednesday at Westernport to assign volunteer companies to various industries and communities.

Joseph G. Wenrich, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Cresaptown Fire Department, said 33 companies from Allegany and Garrett counties are expected to participate in the program. Others will come from nearby towns in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Taken under consideration at the meeting was the Luke plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company. In case of bombing the Tri-Towns Fire Company of Piedmont, W. Va., Potomac Fire Company of Westernport, Luke and Bloomington firemen will be dispatched to the plant.

Wenrich said the Beryl, W. Va., Fire Company would be sent to nearby Bloomington, and Barton firemen would go to Westernport in the event of an emergency. Midland Fire Company would be alerted for Barton, Oakland and Keyser, W. Va.

Assigned to protect the B. and O. shops in Keyser were companies from Westernport, McCoole, Piedmont, Keyser and Fort Ashby, W. Va. Short Gap, W. Va., firemen are scheduled to protect Fort Ashby residents. McCoole and Westernport will get aid from the Bloomington Fire Department.

If radio stations are knocked out of commission, Wenrich said, batteries and a messenger system will be used to dispatch information. A suggestion to detail Boy Scouts to contact officials in case of attack is under consideration.

During an alert, all fire fighting equipment will be moved from the immediate communities as a safety precaution. Two maps, including one for Cumberland, are being prepared for speedier action.

Wenrich submitted a survey on available water from rivers, wells, cisterns, fire hydrants and reservoirs. Trial runs will be staged this summer, he added.

Officers for the civil defense program will be elected April 25 in the Public Safety Building here.

Nothing ever came of it, but I still think it was a good idea.

One day I played golf with three distinguished gents, stopping at Deepdale on the way to Easthampton. It is a stylish club where the attendant unpacks your bag as soon as you come in and hides all your clean clothes. You have to pay a dollar to get them back, or at least it is customary. After we finished, we sampled some sauce from the lockers of various friends as it was during prohibition. Finally we were ready to start, but decided one pal would be hurt if he heard we had been there and skipped his bottled goods. To avoid being inhospitable or giving any offense, we had a stirrup cup.

In Smithtown, we stopped at a stand alongside the road, and our most important companion lost his balance on the brink of a bank and fell down it to the edge of a creek where Archie followed, fished him out, got him right side up, brushed him off and helped him back to the car. There had been some talk this gentleman might be a candidate for the Presidency which evidently had been overheard by our driver although he sometimes dozed while steering. About six months later he asked me,

"Do you think Mr. B. is going to be President?"

"I don't know," I answered. "Why?"

"Do you remember that day I pulled him out of the brook in Smithtown?" he said.

When I next saw my friend, I told him if he had any White House aspirations, he had better square it with Archie first. His question sounded ominous to me.

(More about this fantastic character next time, and how he finally got fired.)

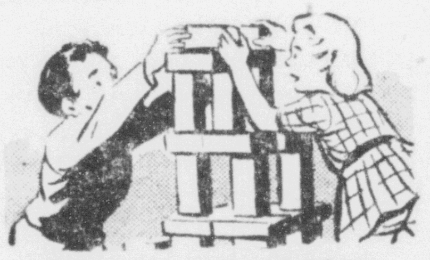
By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

May illness be a form of cruelty?

Answer: Yes I knew a mother who invariably produced a "heart attack" when she wanted to punish her grown children for conduct she disapproved of, such as planning marriage to a person she did not like. Her sufferings were quite real, though despite her "bad heart," she lived to be over ninety. But the device has to be unconscious. If you consciously set out to hurt someone else by hurting yourself, common sense would tell you that it was not worth while and you could not go through with it.

Does psychiatry make hypochondriacs?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. Melitta Schmideberg in the Journal of Child Psychiatry. Just as the original discovery of the relation between germs and disease gave many people a neurotic horror of infection, so today we are plagued by a "hypochondria of complexes, frustrations, fixations, neuroses, etc." If studying child psychology only makes you anxious and self-conscious with your children, you are better off without it. Love them and act naturally and spontaneously with them, and you won't go far wrong.



Do blocks help children to learn?

Answer: Yes, says Adele Franklin of the All-Day Neighborhood Schools, New York. In nursery schools, building blocks have proved invaluable in encouraging a child to express himself, and in helping to relax tensions and suspicions, develop an idea of numbers and reveal his personal characteristics to the teachers. Next after dolls and toy animals, a set of blocks may be an active-minded child's most prized possessions because of the many things he can do with them. For a toy that can be used is much to be preferred to one that can only be looked at.

Sen. Neely Introduces Mine Safety Measure

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP) — Sen. Neely (D-WVa) has introduced a bill to set up safety standards for coal mines and provide penalties for failure to cooperate in the miners welfare program.

The measure, identified to one approved last year by the Senate Labor Committee, would authorize the Bureau of Mines to draft regulations embodying principles set forth only in broad terms in the legislation.

Frostburg Little League Try-Outs Set Saturday

Boys To Report At State College Field

FROSTBURG — The selection committee of the Frostburg Little League has announced that the site for tryouts Saturday, April 14, has been changed from the Frostburg Baseball Park to the State Teachers College field.

Youths in the 11 to 12 years age group are to report at 10 a. m., and those under 11 years are to report at 2 p. m.

Members of the selection committee will begin judging the more than 225 boys who have made application for playing positions for the coming season. The committee includes Rev. John Bayley Jones, Rev. Regis Larkin, Kenneth Babcock and Francis Carrington.

Boys not selected to play on one of the four teams comprising the league, will be given an opportunity to play on a farm team, the idea being to have a farm club for each of the regular teams.

Managers and their assistants will be named at the next meeting of the league Monday, April 16, at 8 p. m., in the City Hall.

An effort will be made by league officials to see that each boy on a farm team be given an opportunity to play ball, and it may also be possible to supply each boy with a cap and a "Little League Shirt" for player identification. This plan will be discussed at the next meeting.

Finance Chairman Donald Jeffries has announced that more than 150 tickets have been sold to boosters of the Little League. Tkciets may be purchased from any league official.

Frostburg Little League Try-Outs Set Saturday

Boys To Report At State College Field

FROSTBURG — The selection committee of the Frostburg Little League has announced that the site for tryouts Saturday, April 14, has been changed from the Frostburg Baseball Park to the State Teachers College field.

Youths in the 11 to 12 years age group are to report at 10 a. m., and those under 11 years are to report at 2 p. m.

Members of the selection committee will begin judging the more than 225 boys who have made application for playing positions for the coming season. The committee includes Rev. John Bayley Jones, Rev. Regis Larkin, Kenneth Babcock and Francis Carrington.

Boys not selected to play on one of the four teams comprising the league, will be given an opportunity to play on a farm team, the idea being to have a farm club for each of the regular teams.

Managers and their assistants will be named at the next meeting of the league Monday, April 16, at 8 p. m., in the City Hall.

An effort will be made by league officials to see that each boy on a farm team be given an opportunity to play ball, and it may also be possible to supply each boy with a cap and a "Little League Shirt" for player identification. This plan will be discussed at the next meeting.

Finance Chairman Donald Jeffries has announced that more than 150 tickets have been sold to boosters of the Little League. Tkciets may be purchased from any league official.

Frostburg Little League Try-Outs Set Saturday

Boys To Report At State College Field

FROSTBURG — The selection committee of the Frostburg Little League has announced that the site for tryouts Saturday, April 14, has been changed from the Frostburg Baseball Park to the State Teachers College field.

Youths in the 11 to 12 years age group are to report at 10 a. m., and those under 11 years are to report at 2 p. m.

Members of the selection committee will begin judging the more than 225 boys who have made application for playing positions for the coming season. The committee includes Rev. John Bayley Jones, Rev. Regis Larkin, Kenneth Babcock and Francis Carrington.

Boys not selected to play on one of the four teams comprising the league, will be given an opportunity to play on a farm team, the idea being to have a farm club for each of the regular teams.

Managers and their assistants will be named at the next meeting of the league Monday, April 16, at 8 p. m., in the City Hall.

An effort will be made by league officials to see that each boy on a farm team be given an opportunity to play ball, and it may also be possible to supply each boy with a cap and a "Little League Shirt" for player identification. This plan will be discussed at the next meeting.

Finance Chairman Donald Jeffries has announced that more than 150 tickets have been sold to boosters of the Little League. Tkciets may be purchased from any league official.

Fast Time Stirs Talk In Keyser

City Will Not Make Any Change

KEYSER, W. Va. — The problem of Daylight Savings Time in Keyser is again a topic of conversation that is stirring the cititzens.

As in the past, the City of Keyser will not make any change, and the B&O railroad Company shops and departments here will continue to operate on Standard Time. However, some merchants favor changing their store opening and closing hours to Daylight time to conform with the policy in Cumberland.

The Retail Merchants Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce has made no arrangements, but W. C. Clements, president of that organization said, when asked about the matter, that a special meeting will be Wednesday evening, and he expects the committee to make a decision then.

The Osgood Bus Lines faces more difficulties with Cumberland at one end of its service route, on daylight time and Morgantown at the other end on Standard Time there will be difficulties for Keyser which is in the middle of the division. The Celanese employes are expected to work on daylight time, and buses for those passengers who are employed there, will be dispatched an hour earlier. Ray Cupp, superintendent of the bus line in Keyser, says it will be another headache, probably having daylight schedules between here and Cumberland and standard time for the Morgantown runs.

1,223 Get X-Rays In Keyser Clinic

The unit will move to Fort Ashby on Monday and will be at Ridgeley on Tuesday from 1 to 4 p. m.

Fast Time Stirs Talk In Keyser

City Will Not Make Any Change

KEYSER, W. Va. — The problem of Daylight Savings Time in Keyser is again a topic of conversation that is stirring the cititzens.

As in the past, the City of Keyser will not make any change, and the B&O railroad Company shops and departments here will continue to operate on Standard Time. However, some merchants favor changing their store opening and closing hours to Daylight time to conform with the policy in Cumberland.

The Retail Merchants Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce has made no arrangements, but W. C. Clements, president of that organization said, when asked about the matter, that a special meeting will be Wednesday evening, and he expects the committee to make a decision then.

The Osgood Bus Lines faces more difficulties with Cumberland at one end of its service route, on daylight time and Morgantown at the other end on Standard Time there will be difficulties for Keyser which is in the middle of the division. The Celanese employes are expected to work on daylight time, and buses for those passengers who are employed there, will be dispatched an hour earlier. Ray Cupp, superintendent of the bus line in Keyser, says it will be another headache, probably having daylight schedules between here and Cumberland and standard time for the Morgantown runs.

1,223 Get X-Rays In Keyser Clinic

KEYSER, W. Va. — The Mobile x-ray unit that has operated in Keyser for two days and a half, made chest surveys of 1,223 persons, with the largest day's activity being Wednesday.

In the day and a half that the unit was on the campus at Potomac State, 471 students and citizens of the city, had x-rays taken and the remainder appeared Wednesday, the final day for their checking.

The unit will move to Fort Ashby on Monday and will be at Ridgeley on Tuesday from 1 to 4 p. m.

Mountain District Leaders To Confer

FROSTBURG — Dr. Adam Baer, chairman of Mountain District, Boy Scouts of America, has announced that the deputy of Region 3 will be in Frostburg May 14 to meet with civic groups and to hold a conference with Scouters of the district. This announcement was made at a recent meeting of district leaders at Hill Street School.

At this meeting, Walter Mackay, chairman of the finance committee, reported that the district had fallen short of their goal of $1,700 in the annual drive for funds which was recently held in various towns of the district. He reported that $300 was needed to put the drive over the top, and stated that both Grantsville and Friendsville in Garrett County over-subscribed their quotas.

James Hugglestone, chairman of camping and activities committee, disclosed that two troops have already made reservations for the Council Camp in July. It is the goal of the district to have at least 75 per cent of registered boys in camp for at least a week this summer, Hugglestone said. He also announced that the district will co-operate with the Mayor and Council in a movement to clean up Percy Cemetery, a city owned property, by Memorial Day.

City Will Not Make Any Change

KEYSER, W. Va. — The problem of Daylight Savings Time in Keyser is again a topic of conversation that is stirring the cititzens.

As in the past, the City of Keyser will not make any change, and the B&O railroad Company shops and departments here will continue to operate on Standard Time. However, some merchants favor changing their store opening and closing hours to Daylight time to conform with the policy in Cumberland.

The Retail Merchants Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce has made no arrangements, but W. C. Clements, president of that organization said, when asked about the matter, that a special meeting will be Wednesday evening, and he expects the committee to make a decision then.

The Osgood Bus Lines faces more difficulties with Cumberland at one end of its service route, on daylight time and Morgantown at the other end on Standard Time there will be difficulties for Keyser which is in the middle of the division. The Celanese employes are expected to work on daylight time, and buses for those passengers who are employed there, will be dispatched an hour earlier. Ray Cupp, superintendent of the bus line in Keyser, says it will be another headache, probably having daylight schedules between here and Cumberland and standard time for the Morgantown runs.

1,223 Get X-Rays In Keyser Clinic

KEYSER, W. Va. — The Mobile x-ray unit that has operated in Keyser for two days and a half, made chest surveys of 1,223 persons, with the largest day's activity being Wednesday.

In the day and a half that the unit was on the campus at Potomac State, 471 students and citizens of the city, had x-rays taken and the remainder appeared Wednesday, the final day for their checking.

The unit will move to Fort Ashby on Monday and will be at Ridgeley on Tuesday from 1 to 4 p. m.

Region Deputy Boy Scouts To Visit Frostburg May 14

Mountain District Leaders To Confer

FROSTBURG — Dr. Adam Baer, chairman of Mountain District, Boy Scouts of America, has announced that the deputy of Region 3 will be in Frostburg May 14 to meet with civic groups and to hold a conference with Scouters of the district. This announcement was made at a recent meeting of district leaders at Hill Street School.

At this meeting, Walter Mackay, chairman of the finance committee, reported that the district had fallen short of their goal of $1,700 in the annual drive for funds which was recently held in various towns of the district. He reported that $300 was needed to put the drive over the top, and stated that both Grantsville and Friendsville in Garrett County over-subscribed their quotas.

James Hugglestone, chairman of camping and activities committee, disclosed that two troops have already made reservations for the Council Camp in July. It is the goal of the district to have at least 75 per cent of registered boys in camp for at least a week this summer, Hugglestone said. He also announced that the district will co-operate with the Mayor and Council in a movement to clean up Percy Cemetery, a city owned property, by Memorial Day.

Howard F. Ward, chairman of the advancement committee, reported that 23 boys attained the rank of second class at the court of honor in March, and three boys were awarded first class badges.

Bradley Writes:

Service Friction Persisted During Most Critical Hours Of Invasion Of Normandy

NEW YORK (AP)—The jealousies of generals, spectacular inefficiency, and friction between the fighting services persisted even during the most critical hours of the Normandy invasion, Gen. Omar N. Bradley reports in his book about World War II.

A condensed version is being serialized by Life magazine.

Bradley says the Navy was "reluctant" to beach its LSTs (landing ship, tank) although the ships were designed for beaching. Valuable hours were lost in unloading the tanks, he writes.

"The Navy objected to running them ashore for fear enemy artillery would pick them off. They preferred instead to anchor them in deep water.

"Once the beaches were cleared of fire we urged the Navy to stomach its compunctions, beach its LSTs and halve the time spent in unloading. The appeal, however, fell on deaf ears, for while our tanks were expendable, ships—in the eyes of some skippers—presumably were not."

The tragic mistake-bombing of the American 9th and 30th Divisions—in which Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair was killed—resulted from an Air Force change of plan, about which Bradley was not even consulted, he asserts.

The two divisions were deployed along the Periers Road. In preparations for the breakout, Bradley says he deliberately picked this road, so that it could serve as an unmistakable bomb-line for the big bombers when they came over to soften up the Germans.

Without his knowledge, the route of the bombers was changed. American planes twice made short drops, hitting the 30th Division one day, and the 30th and the 9th on another.

"Two days later, Brereton (Lt. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of the Ninth Air Force) was to declare that the breakout plan owed its slow start to the sluggish getaway of our troops on the ground.

"He neglected to add that the delay had been caused by the removal of those American dead and wounded the air had strewn in our way."

Bradley says the armies on the beach "starved for the want of a few critical items such as artillery ammunition" as a result of "inefficiency in the service commands."

Despite repeated pleas, Bradley writes, the manifests of ship's cargoes were not delivered. As a result, a priority-system for unloading at Omaha Beach could not be used. "Soon thousands of tons of unneeded supplies were kicking about. They (the service commands) replied with promises but the manifests did not come in time."

Bradley blames Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery for failure to close the Falaise Gap, through which 17 nearly-trapped German divisions were able to escape. "After having been rebuffed on the Falaise Road, he might better have shifted his weight and closed the trap at Chambois—as he was to do one week later."

He criticizes both Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and Montgomery for silence during the uproar, in Britain, when Montgomery relinquished his temporary command as ground commander of the Allied forces. British papers, Bradley says, called it a "demotion" for Montgomery.

"Had he (Eisenhower) met the issue head-on with an announcement of his plan to provide equality for both the British and American field commands, he might have avoided this ridiculous fission.

"Although we remained aloof from this British press fracas, I was disappointed that Monty did not squelch it. He could have easily enlightened the British newspapermen of our overlord plans. At the risk of being unjust to Monty, I could only conclude that he did not wish to.

Merry-Go-Round

What General MacArthur wants, as stated quite clearly in his letter to Joe Martin, is that China be the center of attack against communism, not Europe. This is the old debate which occurred all during World War II, when Eisenhower needed troops for the European theatre and MacArthur wanted more troops in the Pacific. Even the same two military leaders were involved—Eisenhower and MacArthur.

Only this time, any Far Eastern war would not be against a small chain of islands easily isolated by the naval and air blockades; but rather against two great land masses—China and Russia—with 600,000,000 people plus the greatest supply of raw materials in the world.

And having visited China I can think of nothing Moscow would relish more than to have American troops get bogged down in a long, drawn-out, bloody war on the Chinese mainland.

Of course, I may be wrong about this. But at any rate it is a decision which the American people ought to have a right to pass on. And the only way they can do this is through you, their elected representatives in Congress.

The Really Great Debate

You senators should debate, therefore—and the American people should have a chance to listen—the actual strength of Chiang Kai-Shek's troops. How many troops does he really have? Are they loyal? Would they desert to the Communists as they have in the past? Do they actually have the strength to defend Formosa, let alone fight on the Chinese mainland?

You should also investigate the amount of arms Chiang Kai-Shek permitted to be sold to the Communists; also what became of the great quantities of arms we sent him during the past war?

These are just a few of the questions the American public is entitled to know about before adopting such an important policy as General MacArthur poses.

And if you, two of the strongest Republican leaders in the Senate, really believe in MacArthur's policy, then you should not merely issue statements about it. You should introduce it in the form of a resolution so the Congress can discuss it and the American people can evaluate it. After you have voted on this one way or the other, then let it become the established foreign policy of the United States.

Respectfully Yours,

Bradley Writes:

Service Friction Persisted During Most Critical Hours Of Invasion Of Normandy

NEW YORK (AP)—The jealousies of generals, spectacular inefficiency, and friction between the fighting services persisted even during the most critical hours of the Normandy invasion, Gen. Omar N. Bradley reports in his book about World War II.

A condensed version is being serialized by Life magazine.

Bradley says the Navy was "reluctant" to beach its LSTs (landing ship, tank) although the ships were designed for beaching. Valuable hours were lost in unloading the tanks, he writes.

"The Navy objected to running them ashore for fear enemy artillery would pick them off. They preferred instead to anchor them in deep water.

"Once the beaches were cleared of fire we urged the Navy to stomach its compunctions, beach its LSTs and halve the time spent in unloading. The appeal, however, fell on deaf ears, for while our tanks were expendable, ships—in the eyes of some skippers—presumably were not."

The tragic mistake-bombing of the American 9th and 30th Divisions—in which Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair was killed—resulted from an Air Force change of plan, about which Bradley was not even consulted, he asserts.

The two divisions were deployed along the Periers Road. In preparations for the breakout, Bradley says he deliberately picked this road, so that it could serve as an unmistakable bomb-line for the big bombers when they came over to soften up the Germans.

Without his knowledge, the route of the bombers was changed. American planes twice made short drops, hitting the 30th Division one day, and the 30th and the 9th on another.

"Two days later, Brereton (Lt. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of the Ninth Air Force) was to declare that the breakout plan owed its slow start to the sluggish getaway of our troops on the ground.

"He neglected to add that the delay had been caused by the removal of those American dead and wounded the air had strewn in our way."

Bradley says the armies on the beach "starved for the want of a few critical items such as artillery ammunition" as a result of "inefficiency in the service commands."

Despite repeated pleas, Bradley writes, the manifests of ship's cargoes were not delivered. As a result, a priority-system for unloading at Omaha Beach could not be used. "Soon thousands of tons of unneeded supplies were kicking about. They (the service commands) replied with promises but the manifests did not come in time."

Bradley blames Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery for failure to close the Falaise Gap, through which 17 nearly-trapped German divisions were able to escape. "After having been rebuffed on the Falaise Road, he might better have shifted his weight and closed the trap at Chambois—as he was to do one week later."

He criticizes both Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and Montgomery for silence during the uproar, in Britain, when Montgomery relinquished his temporary command as ground commander of the Allied forces. British papers, Bradley says, called it a "demotion" for Montgomery.

"Had he (Eisenhower) met the issue head-on with an announcement of his plan to provide equality for both the British and American field commands, he might have avoided this ridiculous fission.

"Although we remained aloof from this British press fracas, I was disappointed that Monty did not squelch it. He could have easily enlightened the British newspapermen of our overlord plans. At the risk of being unjust to Monty, I could only conclude that he did not wish to.

Stadium Inn of Frostburg advanced a step closer to the second half championship of the Men's National Shuffleboard League of Allegany County by scoring a 2-1 decision over the Frostburg American Legion while the runner-up Cumberland Knights of Columbus were dropping two games to the Cumberland Veterans of Foreign Wars.

There were two other homers in the game, by Larry Doby and Orestes Minoso of the Indians. Minoso's was a grand slammer off pitcher Larry Jansen in the fifth inning.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 12 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox scored three times without a hit in the seventh inning today as they downed the Springfield Cubs of the International League 5-2.

An overflow audience of 10,376 saw the American Leaguers end their barnstorming northward tour. Tomorrow the Sox will play the Boston Braves in the first game of a three-set intracity series.

An error, four consecutive bases on balls and a flyout accounted for the American Leaguers' winning margin in the seventh.

Ted Williams and Walt Dropo each rapped a pair of hits for the winners who were outhit 10-8 by the losing Cubs.

The victory was the eighth in succession for the American Leaguers who now have won 18 of 29 exhibitions this spring. Score:

Bob Baker Faces Elkins Brothers In New York Ring

Heavies To Tangle In 10-Round Match

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP)—Bob Baker, touted as a potential heavyweight champ, makes his New York bow tomorrow night against Elkins Brothers at St. Nicholas Arena.

Unbeaten in 19 pro fights, the Pittsburgh negro will be shooting for national recognition in his first appearance before network television cameras. The 10 p. m. EST 10-rounder will be broadcast by ABC and televised by NBC.

Baker, at 24, is being groomed carefully. He has knocked out 14 of 19 opponents on his way up the ladder. He still is a year away from fighters like Ezzard Charles, the champ, and Jersey Joe Walcott. But he wants to fight any of the others.

Brothers figures to be a rugged test for Baker. A swarming busy fighter who seldom takes a backward step, Brothers is at his best against big men. He is only 5-foot 9½ to Baker's 6-foot 1½ inches.

They are comparing Baker with the early Joe Louis on the speed of his fists and his ability to combine and sock and boxing ability. Sidelined by a hand injury for several months, Baker returned to action earlier this month to stop Levi Bryant at Pittsburgh.

Baker was unusually heavy at 224 but plans to come in around 218 for Brothers who was giving Bob Satterfield a rough night until he ran smack into a left hook.

"I'm only a baby," said Baker. "But I'll fight Rex Layne, Rocky Marciano, Roland La Starza or any of the others. I'm still growing and my hands no longer are a worry."

Baker worked in a foundry to toughen his hands during his layoff.

Louis' Manager Got 50 Per Cent

Roxborough Sues Former Champion

NEW YORK, April 12—(AP)—Joe Louis contracted to pay his manager 50 per cent of his gross earnings from 1935 to 1945 it was learned today from papers filed in Supreme Court.

Details of the contract were disclosed in an answer filed by Sol Strauss, Louis' attorney, to a suit by John Roxborough who asked an accounting of Louis' earnings in the Ezzard Charles fight last September.

According to Strauss' answer, Roxborough induced Louis to make a written agreement with Julian Black of Chicago whereby Black was engaged as his manager for 10 years from May 14, 1935. Louis agreed to pay Black 50 per cent of his gross receipts from boxing contests, exhibitions, movies and radio, Strauss said in his reply.

Louis was to pay his own training expenses, railroad fares and other expenses out of the remaining 50 per cent, the papers said.

Strauss' answer claimed the contract was "unconscionable and upon information and belief was brought about by the plaintiff (Roxborough) for his personal gain and profit." The answer further claimed the plaintiff "does not come into the court with clean hands."

The connection between Roxborough and the 10-year contract between Louis and Black was not clarified. Roxborough claims to have a contract with Louis calling for 25 per cent of his gross earnings for an indefinite period.

Roxborough's suit was filed last September. The last amended answer was filed Feb. 12, 1951. There is no indication when the court will take any action on the suit.

According to New York law it is illegal for a fighter to pay a manager more than 33⅓ per cent of his ring earnings after expenses have been deducted.

Dr. Robinson's Quint Beats Calvary Methodist, 34 To 29

Goals By Wartzack, Andrews Decide Game Before Packed House

Field goals by Fred Wartzack and Eddie Andrews in the last minute of play enabled Emmanuel Episcopal, coached by Dr. Thomas Robinson, to nose out Calvary Methodist of Ridgeley by the score of 34-29 last night in the finals of the playoffs for the Central YMCA-Sunday School Basketball League championship before a packed house of approximately 600 spectators at the "Y" court.

The score was tied four times in that exciting final stanza before the boys from the Washington street church pulled the ball game out of the fire.

Episcopal led at the quarter, 9-2, and at the half, 16-10, but the close of the third period found Calvary on top by a single point, 24-23.

Bob Brant meshed a foul to knot the score at 24-all as the final stanza got under way. Goals by Don Phillips and Brant tied it up at 26-26. Andrews' free throw made it 27-26 in favor of Emmanuel then Showers' fielder sent Calvary to the fore at 28-27. A foul by Andrews tied it at 28-28 and double-deckers by Johnson and Bradley knotted it for the last time at 30-30. Then buckets by Wartzack and Andrews settled the issue.

Win First Title

Emmanuel Episcopal, charter member of the league since it started in 1929, won its first championship last night as the circuit lowered the curtain on its 23rd consecutive season. Twenty-four teams competed this year.

Coach Robinson's passers finished the regular campaign deadlocked for first place with Centre Street Methodist, winning 21 and losing 2. In the playoffs, Episcopal defeated First Baptist, Central Methodist and Calvary Methodist.

The same quints opened the league season on November 18 and Episcopal was returned the winner, 35-24.

The Ridgeley quint won 18 and lost 5 during the regular season, and in the playoffs in which eight teams participated, beat Centre Street Methodist and Grace Methodist's defending champions and lost out to Episcopal.

Bob Brant Stands Out

Bob Brant's rebound work highlighted play in last night's championship battle. Eddie Andrews was top scorer for the winners with five field goals and 14 points. Eddie Powelson played a nice floor game for Calvary while Don Phillips paced the scorers with 10 markers.

The game was officiated in a most satisfactory manner by Jimmy Eckard and Joe Wolfe.

Bob Baker Faces Elkins Brothers In New York Ring

Heavies To Tangle In 10-Round Match

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP)—Bob Baker, touted as a potential heavyweight champ, makes his New York bow tomorrow night against Elkins Brothers at St. Nicholas Arena.

Unbeaten in 19 pro fights, the Pittsburgh negro will be shooting for national recognition in his first appearance before network television cameras. The 10 p. m. EST 10-rounder will be broadcast by ABC and televised by NBC.

Baker, at 24, is being groomed carefully. He has knocked out 14 of 19 opponents on his way up the ladder. He still is a year away from fighters like Ezzard Charles, the champ, and Jersey Joe Walcott. But he wants to fight any of the others.

Brothers figures to be a rugged test for Baker. A swarming busy fighter who seldom takes a backward step, Brothers is at his best against big men. He is only 5-foot 9½ to Baker's 6-foot 1½ inches.

They are comparing Baker with the early Joe Louis on the speed of his fists and his ability to combine and sock and boxing ability. Sidelined by a hand injury for several months, Baker returned to action earlier this month to stop Levi Bryant at Pittsburgh.

Baker was unusually heavy at 224 but plans to come in around 218 for Brothers who was giving Bob Satterfield a rough night until he ran smack into a left hook.

"I'm only a baby," said Baker. "But I'll fight Rex Layne, Rocky Marciano, Roland La Starza or any of the others. I'm still growing and my hands no longer are a worry."

Baker worked in a foundry to toughen his hands during his layoff.

Louis' Manager Got 50 Per Cent

Roxborough Sues Former Champion

NEW YORK, April 12—(AP)—Joe Louis contracted to pay his manager 50 per cent of his gross earnings from 1935 to 1945 it was learned today from papers filed in Supreme Court.

Details of the contract were disclosed in an answer filed by Sol Strauss, Louis' attorney, to a suit by John Roxborough who asked an accounting of Louis' earnings in the Ezzard Charles fight last September.

According to Strauss' answer, Roxborough induced Louis to make a written agreement with Julian Black of Chicago whereby Black was engaged as his manager for 10 years from May 14, 1935. Louis agreed to pay Black 50 per cent of his gross receipts from boxing contests, exhibitions, movies and radio, Strauss said in his reply.

Louis was to pay his own training expenses, railroad fares and other expenses out of the remaining 50 per cent, the papers said.

Strauss' answer claimed the contract was "unconscionable and upon information and belief was brought about by the plaintiff (Roxborough) for his personal gain and profit." The answer further claimed the plaintiff "does not come into the court with clean hands."

The connection between Roxborough and the 10-year contract between Louis and Black was not clarified. Roxborough claims to have a contract with Louis calling for 25 per cent of his gross earnings for an indefinite period.

Roxborough's suit was filed last September. The last amended answer was filed Feb. 12, 1951. There is no indication when the court will take any action on the suit.

According to New York law it is illegal for a fighter to pay a manager more than 33⅓ per cent of his ring earnings after expenses have been deducted.

Feurtado Got $4,000, According To Hogan

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP) — Another former college basketball player was arrested today, the 18th accused of helping to fix big-time games in Madison Square Garden.

He is Richard Fuertado,, 24, a Santa Cruz, Cal., gas station attendant and former Long Island University player.

Only today he arrived in New York from California voluntarily to talk to District Attorney Frank S. Hogan about the big cage scandal. In a matter of hours, he was under arrest.

Hogan said Fuertado was paid $4,000 for helping to fix four games in the 1948-49 and 1949-50 seasons, including a game in the 1950 National Invitation Tournament.

The games were between Long Island University and Duquesne, North Carolina State, Cincinnati and Syracuse. Liu lost all four of them.

The Duquesne game was played Jan. 1, 1949, and Duquesne won, 64-55. Liu lost to N. C. State, 55-52; to Cincinnati, 85-63, and to Syracuse, 80-52, in the first round of the Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden, all early in 1950.

Hogan said the fixer in each case was Salvatore T. Sollazzo, a New York jeweler, how awaiting trial on 13 counts of bribery.

Sollazzo is one of five alleged fixers under arrest. Hogan said they paid tens of thousands of dollars to rig the scores of 20 big-time Garden games. Besides Liu, the schools involved are Manhattan, City College of New York, and New York University.

18th Person Arrested On Charge Of Helping Fix Games In Garden

Feurtado Got $4,000, According To Hogan

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP) — Another former college basketball player was arrested today, the 18th accused of helping to fix big-time games in Madison Square Garden.

He is Richard Fuertado,, 24, a Santa Cruz, Cal., gas station attendant and former Long Island University player.

Only today he arrived in New York from California voluntarily to talk to District Attorney Frank S. Hogan about the big cage scandal. In a matter of hours, he was under arrest.

Hogan said Fuertado was paid $4,000 for helping to fix four games in the 1948-49 and 1949-50 seasons, including a game in the 1950 National Invitation Tournament.

The games were between Long Island University and Duquesne, North Carolina State, Cincinnati and Syracuse. Liu lost all four of them.

The Duquesne game was played Jan. 1, 1949, and Duquesne won, 64-55. Liu lost to N. C. State, 55-52; to Cincinnati, 85-63, and to Syracuse, 80-52, in the first round of the Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden, all early in 1950.

Hogan said the fixer in each case was Salvatore T. Sollazzo, a New York jeweler, now awaiting trial on 13 counts of bribery.

Sollazzo is one of five alleged fixers under arrest. Hogan said they paid tens of thousands of dollars to rig the scores of 20 big-time Garden games. Besides Liu, the schools involved are Manhattan, City College of New York, and New York University.

18th Person Arrested On Charge Of Helping Fix Games In Garden

Feurtado Got $4,000, According To Hogan

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP) — Another former college basketball player was arrested today, the 18th accused of helping to fix big-time games in Madison Square Garden.

He is Richard Fuertado,, 24, a Santa Cruz, Cal., gas station attendant and former Long Island University player.

Only today he arrived in New York from California voluntarily to talk to District Attorney Frank S. Hogan about the big cage scandal. In a matter of hours, he was under arrest.

Hogan said Fuertado was paid $4,000 for helping to fix four games in the 1948-49 and 1949-50 seasons, including a game in the 1950 National Invitation Tournament.

The games were between Long Island University and Duquesne, North Carolina State, Cincinnati and Syracuse. Liu lost all four of them.

The Duquesne game was played Jan. 1, 1949, and Duquesne won, 64-55. Liu lost to N. C. State, 55-52; to Cincinnati, 85-63, and to Syracuse, 80-52, in the first round of the Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden, all early in 1950.

Hogan said the fixer in each case was Salvatore T. Sollazzo, a New York jeweler, now awaiting trial on 13 counts of bribery.

Sollazzo is one of five alleged fixers under arrest. Hogan said they paid tens of thousands of dollars to rig the scores of 20 big-time Garden games. Besides Liu, the schools involved are Manhattan, City College of New York, and New York University.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, April 12 (INS)—The Oscar that Edward and Edna Anhalt won for "Panic In The Streets," the best original script, has paid off fast and big!

Stanley Kramer is launching the writers as the first husband-wife associate producer team in movie history and is turning over to them as their first production for him, "My Six Convicts," Donald Powell Wilson's best seller.

This is Kramer's first project since he, himself, recently signed with Columbia. Stanley considers the Anhalts so movie-wise that he wants them to concentrate exclusively on producing—so he is having the script written by Eve Odell.

The second production plum to go to the Anhalts is "Death Of A Salesman"—also under the Kramer-Columbia banner. The two writers have come a long way since hitting Hollywood. Just a few years ago they were magazine writers.

• — • — •

Irene Selznick, who is getting ready to go to London to put on her play, "Bell, Book and Candle," sends me word that she was able to get Joan Greenwood for Lilli Palmer's role of the modern witch for the New York production.

Sexy Rexy and Lilli depart for England June 1, and since Irene's play is doing standing room only business, she's delighted that she was able to persuade Joan Greenwood to take the femme lead.

Miss Greenwood was in "Kind Hearts And Coronets," and "Tight Little Island." A California star will take sexy Rexy's part.

• — • — •

George Raft spent almost all of last year making a picture in Europe so he dons greasepaint in Hollywood again for the first time in 10 months when he starts "Deadline" for Fidelity Pictures.

This new company is snagging some of our big stars. Marlene Dietrich is making "Chuck-A-Luck" for them and Ann Sheridan and Ginger Rogers have also starred under their banner.

Pam Blumenthal and Howard Welch are producing the "Deadline" movie, a story of two policemen. George plays the one who goes bad.

There was a time when Raft insisted on being the hero. But now he settles for the best acting opportunity in the script..

Must be spring or something. All the character-type heroes are bustin' out in song, the latest being Paul Henreid, who returns to musical comedy after 15 years in "The Merry Widow" on the stage here and later in San Francisco.

Apparently, Paul's pretty good because Rodgers and Hammerstein have offered him his choice of either the London or the Broadway "South Pacific" job. If he accepts Henreid will probably settle for London, because that will be opposite Mary Martin.

George Sanders, who also cropped up with a surprisingly good voice, turned down the same offer. So did Walter Pidgeon.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Two gals but with a single thought. Kay Thompson cables me that Judy Garland took London by storm. Judy cables: "Kay took London by storm." Well, I'm glad for both girls, and especially for Judy.

Josephine Hull completely broken up over the death of the 86-year-old aunt who raised her, Mrs. Ellen S. Tewksbury. She had so wanted to take back the Oscar she won to her.

Elizabeth Taylor with Ralph Fields (he is with Greg Bautzer's law firm) at the Mocambo. They were with Ruth Roman and Mort Hall laughing at Joe E. Lewis.

Jennifer Holt, daughter of Jack, and her bridegroom, Hugh Davis, sail April 14 for a European honeymoon on the same boat taking Bob Hope and his troupe to London.

Gracie Allen and George Burns go to San Francisco tomorrow where Gracie sells tickets on the Golden Gate Bridge span for the Saints and Sinners milk fund. The City of San Francisco "gave" Gracie the bridge for the day—and she can keep it if she can "haul it away!"

Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, heading for a hot $42,000 for two weeks at the Paramount Theater in New York, had a goodly crowd to wave them off from the Los Angeles airport. Saying goodbye to the zanies who will be P.A.ing for five months were Janet Leigh and Tony Curtis, Joan Davis and Mack Gray.

Hal Wallis so pleased with Norman Taurog's handling of Martin and Lewis in "The Stooge" he'll probably turn over the direction of their next, "At Sea With The Navy," to him.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Piedmont Man Hurt In Fall At Luke Plant

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—An operator of a chalk tank was injured yesterday morning, when he fell from a 14 foot tank while at work at the Luke Plant of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company.

The injured man, Jose Prendes, 56, of 236 West Fairview Street, sustained a fractured pelvis and a small cut on the back of his head. He is recovering from shock. Attendants in Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, where he is a patient, report that his condition is satisfactory.

No Holds Barred

I DEPLORE the disappearance from the Ford Star Revue of Jack Haley, one of the most likeable, experienced and multi-talented entertainers in the business, but I must admit, with extreme reluctance, that his show never quite caught fire. It was always a pleasant show, never to my knowledge a bad one but, considering how much it cost, that wasn't enough.

John Crosby

Now the Ford people have come up with James Melton whose voice is as Irish as Third Avenue which is to say much more Irish than Ireland. The new Ford show is unabashed schmaltz, which isn't a bad thing and may conceivably be a very popular thing. Melton has been a very marketable commodity to a great many people for quite a few years. You should, by this time, have made up your mind about him. If you're a Perry Como man, Melton isn't for you.

• — • — •

The first program opened with a musical production number which contained only the time-tested ingredients, a sort of minstrel show. A lot of pretty babes in black stockings. Melton and a chorus singing "Are You From Dixie," "Dixie," "Down in Nashville, Tennessee" and that wonderful song "Waiting For The Robert E Lee" in front of a succession of backdrops and with an amazing profusion of costume. It was a very pretty and exciting number and one which will remind you of the sort of thing they do at Radio City Music Hall. In fact the whole show strongly resembles a stage show at the Music Hall if you're partial to that sort of entertainment.

Later, Melton sang "My Wild Irish Rose," a tune that I seem to have heard somewhere before, mostly late at night in Third Avenue saloons. Still later, he and Nadine Conner sang a love duet from "Madame Butterfly," an aria practically never heard on Third Avenue but pretty well known elsewhere. In other words, something for everybody.

• — • — •

Some instinct tells me Mr. Melton on subsequent shows will delve into all the paeans to motherhood from "Mother Machree" on down. All the songs about the South will be thoroughly canvassed and I should not be at all surprised if "California, Here I Come" gets a workout pretty soon. After these familiar themes are exhausted, Mr. Melton will still have the joys of childhood and love, love, love to look into. As I said earlier, the program is going to be schmaltz with no holds barred.

There were a couple of pretty good comedy spots. Vera Vague, a girl who has not always thrilled me to pieces, delivered a very tidy and funny lecture on the subject "Is Man Necessary," a subject she specializes in. Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy made their first live television appearance since 1946 and gave, I think, the best of their TV performances to date. For years, Mr. Bergen has had strong leanings toward filmed television on the grounds that film gave him and Charlie more elbow room and allowed Mr. Bergen to edit out their mistakes. However, editing is a two-edged sword and Mr. Bergen contrived also to edit out a good deal of the life and spontaneity of his comedy. This appearance seemed to me fairly conclusive evidence that he should stick to live TV and leave his scissors at home.

• — • — •

According to the trade press, the Ford Festival is entirely the brain child of Mr. Melton who is supposed to have sold it personally to Henry Ford 2d. Naturally, being general manager of this operation, Mr. Melton thrusts himself pretty well to the fore on the show. His is a personality that will hardly set the back woods ablaze, but it won't irritate you much either. And his ideas on showmanship certainly ought to work well. They always have.

"The Authority on Authorities"

LENGTH JUST AS GOOD

GREAT LENGTH in your suit is just as useful for trick-taking purposes as high cards, when you have found a satisfactory fit with your partner. That is a lesson which many players take unduly long to learn. They start out in most cases by filling their minds full of honor-trick and point-count methods for measuring their high cards, without first being taught anything particular about the way that tricks are actually taken in the play. If they learned play first, then got around to the bidding, they might be able to put the proper emphasis, but not too much, on having minimum high card strength when they made certain bids. And at the same time they might have a better chance to evaluate good distribution or the lack of it.

North: ♠ K J 10 8 ♥ A Q J ♦ A 8 ♣ K 10 7 5

West: ♠ A Q 9 7 6 4 ♥ K 10 9 ♦ J 9 6 ♣ 4

East: ♠ 5 3 2 ♥ 7 6 5 3 2 ♦ 5 3 2 ♣ Q 9

South: ♠ None ♥ 8 4 ♦ K Q 10 7 4 ♣ A J 8 6 3 2

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	1 ♠	Dbl	Pass
2 ♦	Pass	4 ♣

A superfine bidder, at that stage, would make the highly informative bid of 4-Diamonds to tell his partner he had a 6-5 distribution of the two suits. Simple logic tells that such a bid shows the diamonds to be of at least five cards, since they were rebid, but that the clubs were still longer because they were bid first. Any fine bidder opposite such bids could read that South had tremendous distributive values that would justify his shading the top-card strength somewhat.

But this particular chap, not very experienced, became afraid when North made his club jump, intended to be forcing to at least game, fearing his original bid had misled his partner. So he passed at 4-Clubs and was horribly chagrined when he took all thirteen tricks.

It was only a short while before this game that a more experienced player had tried to show South the value of opening with great distribution even if his hand was a bit shy of the standard minimum honor strength. This was the first time he had tried that. It was so new to him that he lost his nerve later. He won't make that error again. The way he learned this is the surest of all instruction, but far from the most economical.

• • •

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ A K 5 ♥ K J 9 8 6 ♦ 7 6 ♣ K 9 5

West: ♠ 6 2 ♥ A 4 2 ♦ Q 9 5 3 2 ♣ 7 6 3

East: ♠ J 8 4 ♥ Q 10 7 5 3 ♦ A 10 ♣ A Q 2

South: ♠ Q 10 9 7 3 ♥ None ♦ K J 8 4 ♣ J 10 8 4

(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

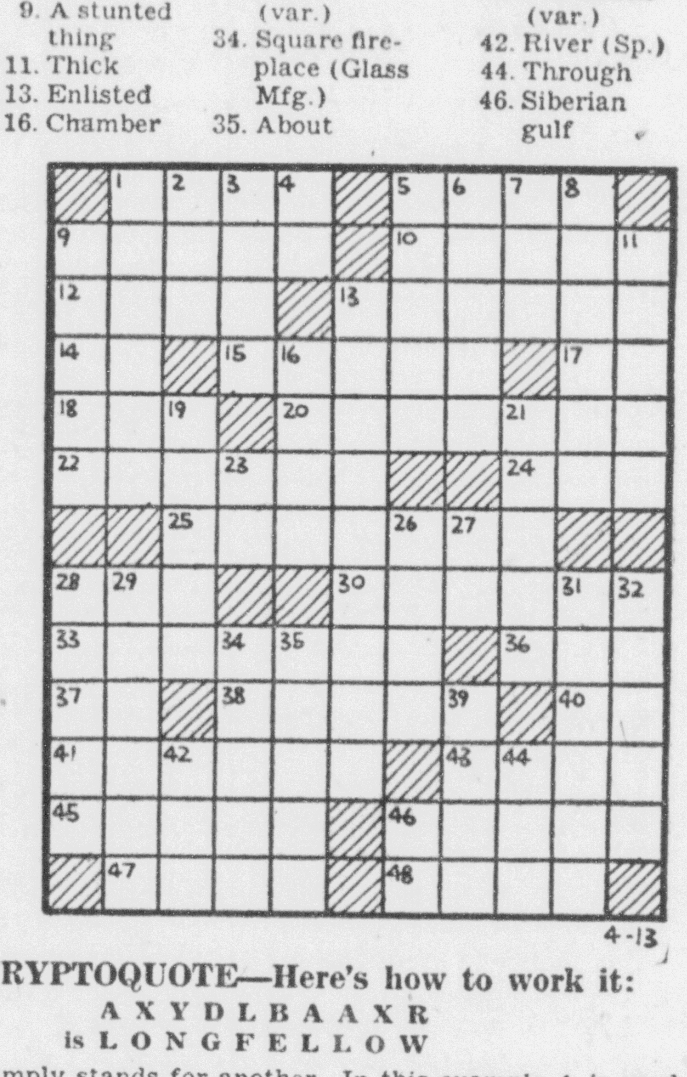
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

The first program opened with a musical production number which contained only the time-tested ingredients, a sort of minstrel show. A lot of pretty babes in black stockings. Melton and a chorus singing "Are You From Dixie," "Dixie," "Down in Nashville, Tennessee" and that wonderful song "Waiting For The Robert E Lee" in front of a succession of backdrops and with an amazing profusion of costume. It was a very pretty and exciting number and one which will remind you of the sort of thing they do at Radio City Music Hall. In fact the whole show strongly resembles a stage show at the Music Hall if you're partial to that sort of entertainment.

Later, Melton sang "My Wild Irish Rose," a tune that I seem to have heard somewhere before, mostly late at night in Third Avenue saloons. Still later, he and Nadine Conner sang a love duet from "Madame Butterfly," an aria practically never heard on Third Avenue but pretty well known elsewhere. In other words, something for everybody.

• — • — •

Some instinct tells me Mr. Melton on subsequent shows will delve into all the paeans to motherhood from "Mother Machree" on down. All the songs about the South will be thoroughly canvassed and I should not be at all surprised if "California, Here I Come" gets a workout pretty soon. After these familiar themes are exhausted, Mr. Melton will still have the joys of childhood and love, love, love to look into. As I said earlier, the program is going to be schmaltz with no holds barred.

There were a couple of pretty good comedy spots. Vera Vague, a girl who has not always thrilled me to pieces, delivered a very tidy and funny lecture on the subject "Is Man Necessary," a subject she specializes in. Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy made their first live television appearance since 1946 and gave, I think, the best of their TV performances to date. For years, Mr. Bergen has had strong leanings toward filmed television on the grounds that film gave him and Charlie more elbow room and allowed Mr. Bergen to edit out their mistakes. However, editing is a two-edged sword and Mr. Bergen contrived also to edit out a good deal of the life and spontaneity of his comedy. This appearance seemed to me fairly conclusive evidence that he should stick to live TV and leave his scissors at home.

• — • — •

According to the trade press, the Ford Festival is entirely the brain child of Mr. Melton who is supposed to have sold it personally to Henry Ford 2d. Naturally, being general manager of this operation, Mr. Melton thrusts himself pretty well to the fore on the show. His is a personality that will hardly set the back woods ablaze, but it won't irritate you much either. And his ideas on showmanship certainly ought to work well. They always have.

As a safety measure, motorists should depress headlight beams when approaching other vehicles at night.

High-grade popcorn, on being properly popped, should increase its volume at least 20 times.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

LENGTH JUST AS GOOD

GREAT LENGTH in your suit is just as useful for trick-taking purposes as high cards, when you have found a satisfactory fit with your partner. That is a lesson which many players take unduly long to learn. They start out in most cases by filling their minds full of honor-trick and point-count methods for measuring their high cards, without first being taught anything particular about the way that tricks are actually taken in the play. If they learned play first, then got around to the bidding, they might be able to put the proper emphasis, but not too much, on having minimum high card strength when they made certain bids. And at the same time they might have a better chance to evaluate good distribution or the lack of it.

♣ Q 9

South:

♣ A J 8 6 3 2

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	1 ♠	Dbl	Pass
2 ♦	Pass	4 ♣

A superfine bidder, at that stage, would make the highly informative bid of 4-Diamonds to tell his partner he had a 6-5 distribution of the two suits. Simple logic tells that such a bid shows the diamonds to be of at least five cards, since they were rebid, but that the clubs were still longer because they were bid first. Any fine bidder opposite such bids could read that South had tremendous distributive values that would justify his shading the top-card strength somewhat.

But this particular chap, not very experienced, became afraid when North made his club jump, intended to be forcing to at least game, fearing his original bid had misled his partner. So he passed at 4-Clubs and was horribly chagrined when he took all thirteen tricks.

It was only a short while before this game that a more experienced player had tried to show South the value of opening with great distribution even if his hand was a bit shy of the standard minimum honor strength. This was the first time he had tried that. It was so new to him that he lost his nerve later. He won't make that error again. The way he learned this is the surest of all instruction, but far from the most economical.

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

No Holds Barred

John Crosby

I DEPLORE the disappearance from the Ford Star Revue of Jack Haley, one of the most likeable, experienced and multi-talented entertainers in the business, but I must admit, with extreme reluctance, that his show never quite caught fire. It was always a pleasant show, never to my knowledge a bad one but, considering how much it cost, that wasn't enough.

Now the Ford people have come up with James Melton whose voice is as Irish as Third Avenue which is to say much more Irish than Ireland. The new Ford show is unabashed schmaltz, which isn't a bad thing and may conceivably be a very popular thing. Melton has been a very marketable commodity to a great many people for quite a few years. You should, by this time, have made up your mind about him. If you're a Perry Como man, Melton isn't for you.

The first program opened with a musical production number which contained only the time-tested ingredients, a sort of minstrel show. A lot of pretty babes in black stockings. Melton and a chorus singing "Are You From Dixie," "Dixie," "Down in Nashville, Tennessee" and that wonderful song "Waiting For The Robert E Lee" in front of a succession of backdrops and with an amazing profusion of costume. It was a very pretty and exciting number and one which will remind you of the sort of thing they do at Radio City Music Hall. In fact the whole show strongly resembles a stage show at the Music Hall if you're partial to that sort of entertainment.

Later, Melton sang "My Wild Irish Rose," a tune that I seem to have heard somewhere before, mostly late at night in Third Avenue saloons. Still later, he and Nadine Conner sang a love duet from "Madame Butterfly," an aria practically never heard on Third Avenue but pretty well known elsewhere. In other words, something for everybody.

Some instinct tells me Mr. Melton on subsequent shows will delve into all the paeans to motherhood from "Mother Machree" on down. All the songs about the South will be thoroughly canvassed and I should not be at all surprised if "California, Here I Come" gets a workout pretty soon. After these familiar themes are exhausted, Mr. Melton will still have the joys of childhood and love, love, love to look into. As I said earlier, the program is going to be schmaltz with no holds barred.

There were a couple of pretty good comedy spots. Vera Vague, a girl who has not always thrilled me to pieces, delivered a very tidy and funny lecture on the subject "Is Man Necessary," a subject she specializes in. Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy made their first live television appearance since 1946 and gave, I think, the best of their TV performances to date. For years, Mr. Bergen has had strong leanings toward filmed television on the grounds that film gave him and Charlie more elbow room and allowed Mr. Bergen to edit out their mistakes. However, editing is a two-edged sword and Mr. Bergen contrived also to edit out a good deal of the life and spontaneity of his comedy. This appearance seemed to me fairly conclusive evidence that he should stick to live TV and leave his scissors at home.

According to the trade press, the Ford Festival is entirely the brain child of Mr. Melton who is supposed to have sold it personally to Henry Ford 2d. Naturally, being general manager of this operation, Mr. Melton thrusts himself pretty well to the fore on the show. His is a personality that will hardly set the back woods ablaze, but it won't irritate you much either. And his ideas on showmanship certainly ought to work well. They always have.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

LENGTH JUST AS GOOD

GREAT LENGTH in your suit is just as useful for trick-taking purposes as high cards, when you have found a satisfactory fit with your partner. That is a lesson which many players take unduly long to learn. They start out in most cases by filling their minds full of honor-trick and point-count methods for measuring their high cards, without first being taught anything particular about the way that tricks are actually taken in the play. If they learned play first, then got around to the bidding, they might be able to put the proper emphasis, but not too much, on having minimum high card strength when they made certain bids. And at the same time they might have a better chance to evaluate good distribution or the lack of it.

West:

♦ 5 3 2
♣ Q 9

South:
♠ None
♥ 8 4
♦ K Q 10 7 4
♣ A J 8 6 3 2

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	1 ♠	Dbl	Pass
2 ♦	Pass	4 ♣

A superfine bidder, at that stage, would make the highly informative bid of 4-Diamonds to tell his partner he had a 6-5 distribution of the two suits. Simple logic tells that such a bid shows the diamonds to be of at least five cards, since they were rebid, but that the clubs were still longer because they were bid first. Any fine bidder opposite such bids could read that South had tremendous distributive values that would justify his shading the top-card strength somewhat.

But this particular chap, not very experienced, became afraid when North made his club jump, intended to be forcing to at least game, fearing his original bid had misled his partner. So he passed at 4-Clubs and was horribly chagrined when he took all thirteen tricks.

It was only a short while before this game that a more experienced player had tried to show South the value of opening with great distribution even if his hand was a bit shy of the standard minimum honor strength. This was the first time he had tried that. It was so new to him that he lost his nerve later. He won't make that error again. The way he learned this is the surest of all instruction, but far from the most economical.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of GEORGE KORNS GARVIN, who died on April 13, 1947.
Only the ones who loved can tell
The pain of parting without farewell,
And while you sleep the peaceful sleep,
Your memory we shall always keep.
Sadly missed by his Mother, MRS. R. D. SPEARS, & family.

Cards of Thanks

We take this means to thank our friends and neighbors who were so kind during the illness and recent death of our beloved husband and father, James E. Moats. We extend our thanks to the pallbearers, those who loaned cars and those who sent floral tributes. We extend our thanks to Rev. McDonald and Rev. Elliott for their comforting words.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of GEORGE KORNS GARVIN, who died on April 13, 1947.
Only the ones who loved can tell
The pain of parting without farewell,
And while you sleep the peaceful sleep,
Your memory we shall always keep.
Sadly missed by his Mother, MRS. R. D. SPEARS, & family.

Cards of Thanks

We take this means to thank our friends and neighbors who were so kind during the illness and recent death of our beloved husband and father, James E. Moats. We extend our thanks to the pallbearers, those who loaned cars and those who sent floral tributes. We extend our thanks to Rev. McDonald and Rev. Elliott for their comforting words. Mrs. Chloe Moats and daughters.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of GEORGE KORNS GARVIN, who died on April 13, 1947.
Only the ones who loved can tell
The pain of parting without farewell,
And while you sleep the peaceful sleep,
Your memory we shall always keep.
Sadly missed by his Mother, MRS. R. D. SPEARS, & family.

Cards of Thanks

We take this means to thank our friends and neighbors who were so kind during the illness and recent death of our beloved husband and father, James E. Moats. We extend our thanks to the pallbearers, those who loaned cars and those who sent floral tributes. We extend our thanks to Rev. McDonald and Rev. Elliott for their comforting words.
Mrs. Chloe Moats and daughters.

Oils Make Biggest Gains As Market Bounces Back

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP) — In a strong forward movement the stock market today made gains running to $3 a share among the leaders.

Oils topped the list with the biggest plus signs. Not far behind were radio-televisions, air lines, rubbers, railroads, steels, and some chemicals.

The bounce in the market more than recovered the loss yesterday in the slump following the dismissal of Gen. MacArthur by President Truman.

Avco Mfg. was traded so heavily that it became the day's most active issue up ⅛ at 8⅛. Avco's Crosley division announced a new converter for television sets to enable them to receive telecasts on the new UHF channels and continued good business was predicted at the annual meeting.

Pan American Air boosted itself to the second most active stock position and closed up ¼ at 11½. United Air Lines up 1½ at 30¾ was fifth most active. American Airlines up ¼ at 16¼ was in 13th place.

But it was in the oil division that the spectacular gains were made. Gulf gained 3 at 89¼, Standard Oil (NJ) 1⅞ at 106⅞, Cities Service 2¼ at 90¼, Shell 2 at 56½, and Seaboard 2½ at 82½.

Firestone was up 2¼ at 91½ and U. S. Rubber up 1¾ at 56⅛.

Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad was up 1⅝ at 25¾ and was sixth most active. Directors declared four 50-cent dividends for this year as compared with 50-cent dividends last year.

Other rails up included New York Central ½ at 20, Southern Pacific 1 at 65⅝, and Baltimore & Ohio 1 at 20¼.

Other good gainers were Bethlehem Steel up 1⅛ at 55½, Boeing 1⅝ at 49⅜, Chrysler ⅜ at 79⅜, Distillers Corp.-Seagrams 1 at 28¾, Lane Wells 1½ at 44, International Paper 2⅛ at 53⅞, Dow Chemical 1½ at 88¾, and Monsanto Chemical 3½ at 89.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 70 cents $94.50 with the industrial componet up $1.10, rails 60 cents, and utilities were unchanged.

The volume of business was 1,530,000 shares as against yesterday's total of 1,420,000 shares when the market was falling.

Oils Make Biggest Gains As Market Bounces Back

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP) — In a strong forward movement the stock market today made gains running to $3 a share among the leaders.

Oils topped the list with the biggest plus signs. Not far behind were radio-televisions, air lines, rubbers, railroads, steels, and some chemicals.

The bounce in the market more than recovered the loss yesterday in the slump following the dismissal of Gen. MacArthur by President Truman.

Avco Mfg. was traded so heavily that it became the day's most active issue up ⅛ at 8⅛. Avco's Crosley division announced a new converter for television sets to enable them to receive telecasts on the new UHF channels and continued good business was predicted at the annual meeting.

Pan American Air boosted itself to the second most active stock position and closed up ¼ at 11½. United Air Lines up 1½ at 30¾ was fifth most active. American Airlines up ¼ at 16¼ was in 13th place.

But it was in the oil division that the spectacular gains were made. Gulf gained 3 at 89¼, Standard Oil (NJ) 1⅞ at 106⅞, Cities Service 2¼ at 90¼, Shell 2 at 56½, and Seaboard 2½ at 82½.

Firestone was up 2¼ at 91½ and U. S. Rubber up 1¾ at 56⅛.

Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad was up 1⅝ at 25¾ and was sixth most active. Directors declared four 50-cent dividends for this year as compared with 50-cent dividends last year.

Other rails up included New York Central ½ at 20, Southern Pacific 1 at 65⅝, and Baltimore & Ohio 1 at 20¼.

Other good gainers were Bethlehem Steel up 1⅛ at 55½, Boeing 1⅝ at 49⅝, Chrysler ⅞ at 79⅝, Distillers Corp.-Seagrams 1 at 28¼, Lane Wells 1½ at 44, International Paper 2⅛ at 53⅞, Dow Chemical 1⅛ at 88¾, and Monsanto Chemical 3½ at 89.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 70 cents $94.50 with the industrial componet up $1.10, rails 60 cents, and utilities were unchanged.

The volume of business was 1,530,000 shares as against yesterday's total of 1,420,000 shares when the market was falling.

Oils Make Biggest Gains As Market Bounces Back

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP) — In a strong forward movement the stock market today made gains running to $3 a share among the leaders.

Oils topped the list with the biggest plus signs. Not far behind were radio-televisions, air lines, rubbers, railroads, steels, and some chemicals.

The bounce in the market more than recovered the loss yesterday in the slump following the dismissal of Gen. MacArthur by President Truman.

Avco Mfg. was traded so heavily that it became the day's most active issue up ⅛ at 8⅛. Avco's Crosley division announced a new converter for television sets to enable them to receive telecasts on the new UHF channels and continued good business was predicted at the annual meeting.

Pan American Air boosted itself to the second most active stock position and closed up ¼ at 11½. United Air Lines up 1½ at 30¾ was fifth most active. American Airlines up ¼ at 16¼ was in 13th place.

But it was in the oil division that the spectacular gains were made. Gulf gained 3 at 89¼, Standard Oil (NJ) 1⅞ at 106⅞, Cities Service 2¼ at 90¼, Shell 2 at 56½, and Seaboard 2½ at 82½.

Firestone was up 2¼ at 91½ and U. S. Rubber up 1¾ at 56⅛.

Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad was up 1⅝ at 25¾ and was sixth most active. Directors declared four 50-cent dividends for this year as compared with 50-cent dividends last year.

Other rails up included New York Central ½ at 20, Southern Pacific 1 at 65⅝, and Baltimore & Ohio 1 at 20¼.

Other good gainers were Bethlehem Steel up 1⅛ at 55½, Boeing 1⅝ at 49⅜, Chrysler ⅜ at 79⅜, Distillers Corp.-Seagrams 1 at 28¾, Lane Wells 1½ at 44, International Paper 2⅛ at 53⅞, Dow Chemical 1⅛ at 88¾, and Monsanto Chemical 3½ at 89.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 70 cents $94.50 with the industrial componet up $1.10, rails 60 cents, and utilities were unchanged.

The volume of business was 1,530,000 shares as against yesterday's total of 1,420,000 shares when the market was falling.

Two Hurt In Greene Street Fire

Three Engines Go To Scene Of $16,000 Blaze

Marshall Alexander Injured In Flames

Two persons were injured and an eight room Greene Street dwelling was badly damaged yesterday afternoon as the result of a fire of undetermined origin. Damage was estimated at $16,000.

Marshall J. Alexander, 676 Greene Street, was treated at Allegany Hospital for a cut over 'his eye, singeing of his hair and minor burns, after being taken from his burning house in a dazed condition.

William T. Shuck, a city fireman, was also treated at the hospital for back injuries suffered while handling ladders of one of the three fire trucks sent to the scene.

The house, a two story brick dwelling was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander and their daughter, Ruth, age seven. Neither Mrs. Alexander nor her daughter were at home at the time of the blaze.

Starts In Living Room

The fire seemed to start in the living room of the downstairs section of the house, firemen reported. It spread rapidly up the stairway to second floor bedrooms and throughout the lower part of the building.

Alexander, who told hospital authorities he is associated with the New Deal Optical Company, 13 South Centre Street, had been ill and was at home yesterday, according to his brother Harry I. Alexander. He said he had been lying on the front room sofa at the time of the fire.

Mrs. James T. Miller, a next door neighbor, said she had been on her front porch just before the fire started. She said she noticed windows of the Alexander home "steamed up."

She ran to the rear of the house and called for Alexander but there was no response. She said she returned to her home and watched from a side window.

Saw Flames Shoot Up

She again ran out and called to the Alexanders but received no answer. She said she returned to her home and looked out of the window to see flames shoot up through the front room. She declared, "I never saw anything go so fast in my life." It was Mrs. Miller who summoned firemen.

According to Acting Fire Chief J. T. Defibaugh, Central received the call at 3:29 p.m. and West Side Company was dispatched immediately. Captain Joseph T. Hoban of West Side called for help and Central's hook and ladder went to the Alexander home. On a third alarm, East Side Company was also dispatched.

In the meantime a fourth alarm came in from the neighborhood and Central's pumper truck answered this alarm to extinguish a fire in an automobile at 742 Greene Street.

Found In Cellarway

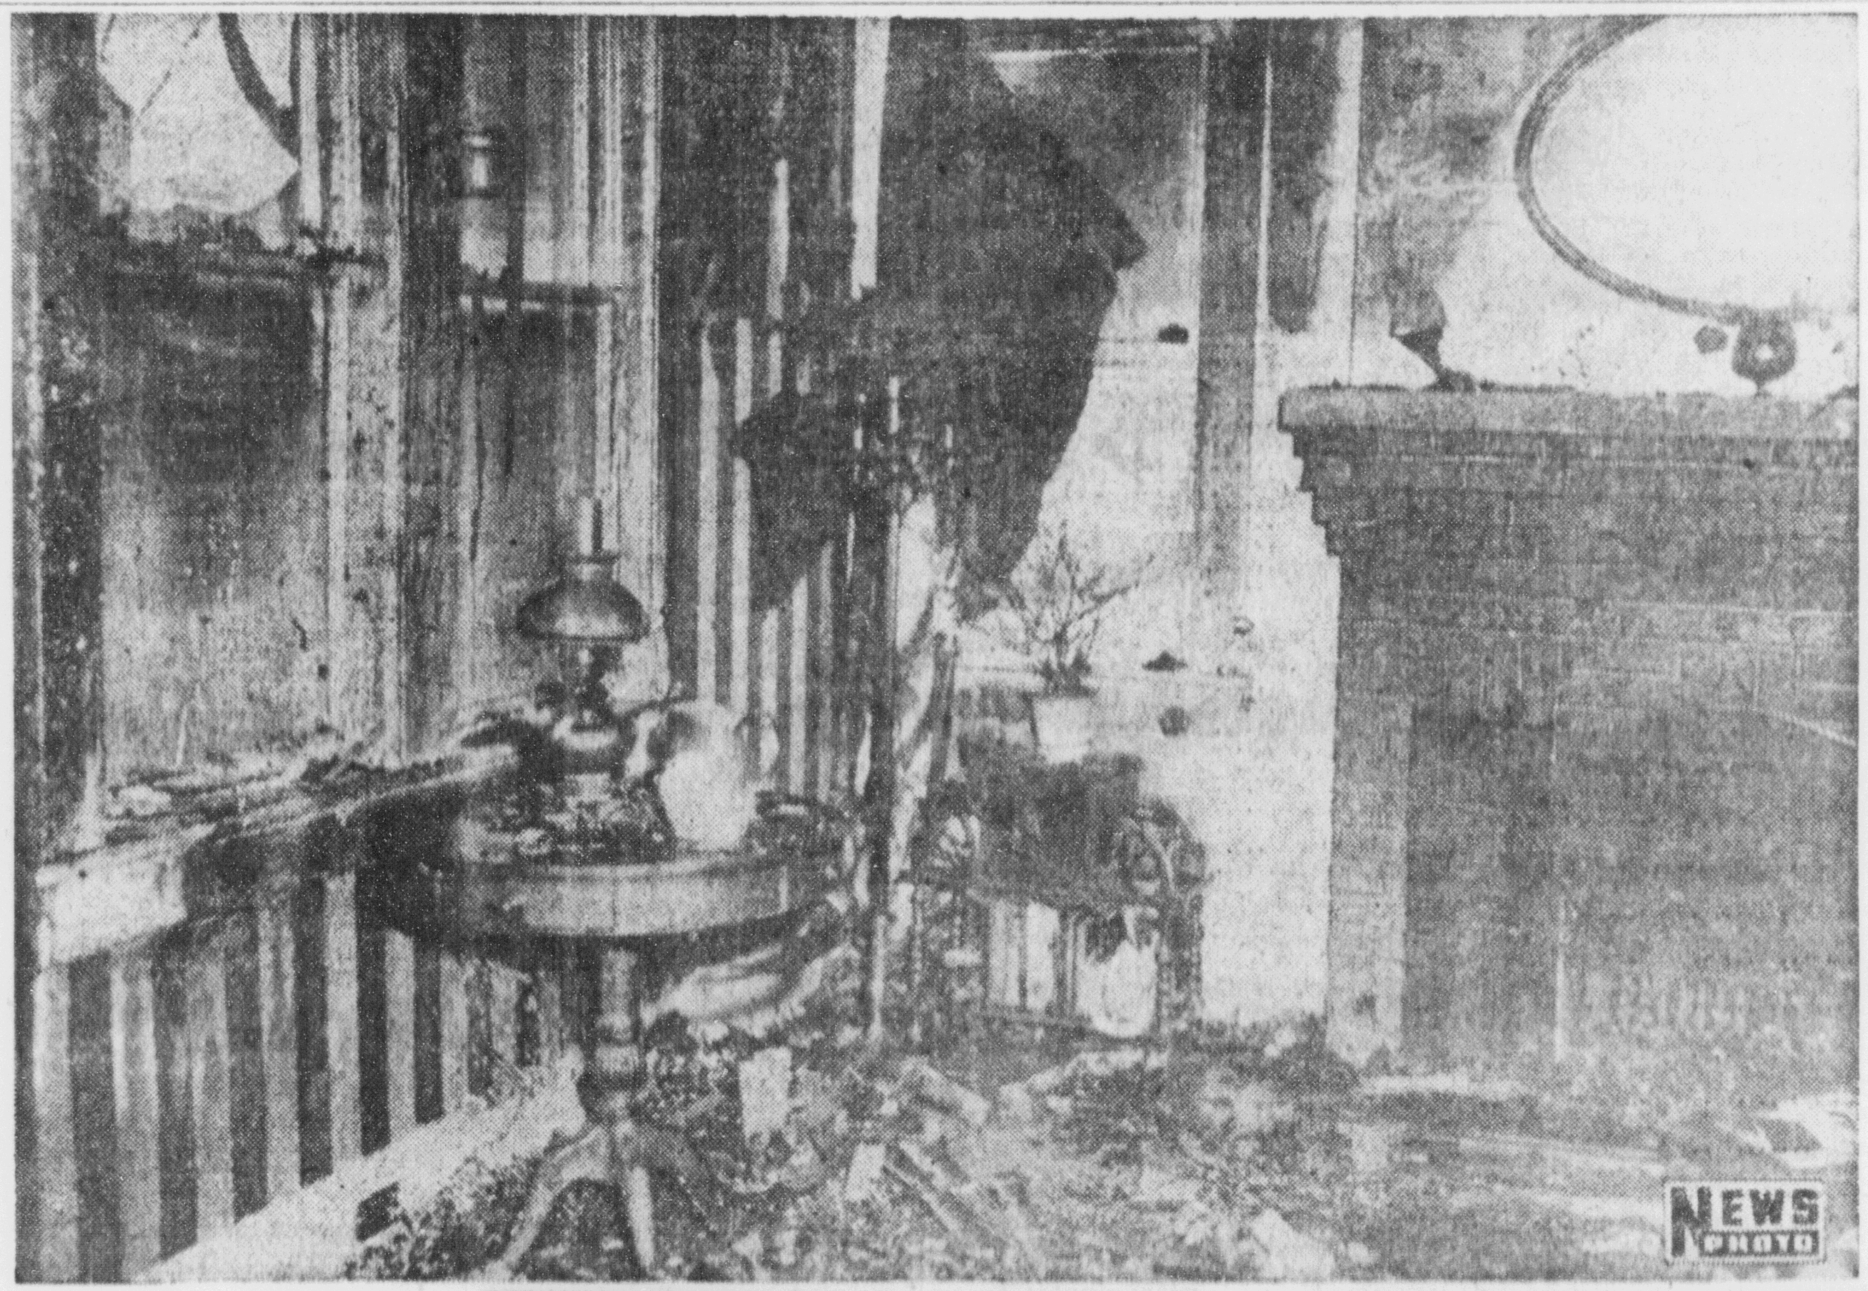
Firemen at Alexanders found Alexander in the cellarway of the house and helped him from the building. He was taken to the hospital in a City Police cruiser where he was treated and released.

Chief Defibaugh said the cause of the fire had not been determined and an investigation is being continued. There was no evidence of an explosion, although some sections of the building gave the appearance that there might have been. This could have been caused by the intense heat and rapid spread of the flames, firemen noted.

Furniture, woodwork, walls, wallpaper, draperies, clothing and almost everything else in the house was ruined.

The furniture from the front room of the house was carried outside, but most of it was ablaze, smouldering, or already damaged.

The loss to the house and contents was covered by insurance, and adjusters were on the scene before the firemen left the premises. They too, could not fix immediately, the cause of the blaze.



FIRE SCENES — Shown above is the interior of the living room of the residence of Marshall J. Alexander, 676 Greene Street, which was damaged by fire of an undetermined origin yesterday afternoon. The furnishings and walls can be seen to be scorched from intense heat of the blaze. Alexander was found in a dazed condition in the cellarway of the house, and taken to safety by city firemen. He later received treatment at Allegany Hospital for a cut over the right eye and singed hair. A city fireman, William T. Shuck, received injuries of the back while lifting ladders on one of the trucks at the scene. He, too, was taken to Allegany Hospital for treatment. Damages to the house were estimated at $16,000. The house and contents were covered by insurance. The picture below shows two city firemen extinguishing flames in the living room sofa. The furniture of the front room had to be carried outside, and was completely ruined.

Club Reviews Weight Law

Discussion of new weight limitation law for Maryland state roads was held at the regular meeting of the Tri-State Traffic Club Wednesday night.

A total gross weight of not more than 65,000 pounds is placed in the limitations and a schedule of fines for overloading which range for two cents per pound to 5,000 pounds and six cents per pound for loads in excess of 5,000 pounds.

The committee of arrangements for the meeting included C. Eugene Howell, Clarence E. Gehr, Thomas E. Kearney, and John L. Carnochan.

Park Police On Canal Hike Spend Night At Orleans

The two members of the U. S. Park Police, Washington, D. C. are "on schedule" in their 160 mile trek along the old C. and O. Canal and plan to be in Hancock tomorrow.

Sgt. T. C. Tingle, who complains of a blister on his foot and Pvt. Samuel H. Hower, with no physical handicaps, arrived yesterday at a cabin at Little Orleans owned by James G. "Scotty" Stevenson, Clerk of the County Commissioners.

The two men had conversed with "Scotty" prior to their departure from Cumberland and Stevenson went to his cabin yesterday afternoon and prepared supper for the anticipated visitors. Carrying along enough supplies for breakfast this morning, Scotty "bedded the boys down" for the night.

The hikers told Stevenson that the towpath is in excellent condition and with the exception of a tunnel, travel thus far could have been accomplished in a jeep. They said they are sorry they did not bring their horses.

They also noted that the journey thus far has indicated many historical landmarks and spots which could be developed and they are amazed that the proposed parkway project has not been started before this.

They plan to remain at the cabin for a few hours this morning to prepare maps and get their notes together.

On Wednesday at noon the two police arrived at Oldtown and while there spent an hour talking with Ross Shaw. They visited the Cresap Monument and the old Cresap residence. Late Wednesday evening they arrived at Paw Paw, W. Va. They plan to be at the Woodmont Rod and Gun Club this afternoon and in Hancock tomorrow evening.

Residents Seek To Give Opinion On Truman Action

The Cumberland NEWS has received numerous requests from residents in the area for information in contacting Maryland Senators John Marshall Butler and Herbert R. O'Conor, Representative J. Glenn Beall and President Harry S. Truman.

Most persons seeking the information indicated they wished to express opinions either pro or con on President Truman's ouster of General Douglas MacArthur as supreme commander in the Far East.

Listener Aids Preacher Who Misses On Quiz

A Frostburg minister wasn't very successful on a give-away quiz program broadcast yesterday from New York City but a sympathetic listener gave him $100 to give to a destitute family on Big Savage Mountain.

The clergyman, Rev. Karl Kauffman, pastor of the Welsh Baptist Memorial Church, had been visiting with relatives in Union City, N. J., this week. When he went to New York and happened to be called from the audience to appear on the quiz program, carried on a nation-wide network, he offered to give his winnings to a needy family on Big Savage Mountain.

However, Rev. Kauffman was stumped after his earnings got only to $15. A sympathetic listener, a New Yorker also named Kauffman, telephoned the Frostburg man and offered to give him $100 for the family in need. The listener explained that he was not of the clergyman's faith but lauded his good intentions.

Trial Ends But Hughes' Fate Remains In Doubt

Judges Will Write Opinion In Case

Although the two-day manslaughter trial of William J. Hughes, 25, Midland, ended late yesterday afternoon in Allegany County Circuit, the young defendant is uncertain of his fate.

Hughes was charged with manslaughter in the death last May 3 of Thomas Robertson, 43, Lonaconing, a mine picket, who was struck by Hughes' truck along the Old Cemetery Road near Knapp's Meadow.

Under Advisement

Chief Judge Joseph D. Mish informed the defendant and the many spectators in the courtroom about 4 p. m. yesterday that he and Associate Judge George Henderson, who must decide the case, that they were taking the case under alvisement.

The jurists retired to chambers shortly after 3:20 p. m. yesterday after State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher concluded the final argument in the much-disputed case. When the judges returned to the courtroom about 35 minutes later the spectators were expecting a verdict.

However, Judge Mish said that he and his associate on the bench had decided that in view of the seriousness of the charge they would file written opinion in the case. He explained they thought a written opinion would explain the case more thoroughly than an oral verdict.

In the meantime Hughes is allowed to continue his freedom under the $5,000 bond which served him before the trial.

Although Judge Mish said the opinion would be filed "promptly" it is doubted that the document will be filed before another week.

Testimony in the trial ended at noon yesterday. Concluding arguments took more than two hours in the afternoon.

Two Hurt In Greene Street Fire

Three Engines Go To Scene Of $16,000 Blaze

Marshall Alexander Injured In Flames

Two persons were injured and an eight room Greene Street dwelling was badly damaged yesterday afternoon as the result of a fire of undetermined origin. Damage was estimated at $16,000.

Marshall J. Alexander, 676 Greene Street, was treated at Allegany Hospital for a cut over his eye, singeing of his hair and minor burns, after being taken from his burning house in a dazed condition.

William T. Shuck, a city fireman, was also treated at the hospital for back injuries suffered while handling ladders of one of the three fire trucks sent to the scene.

The house, a two story brick dwelling was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander and their daughter, Ruth, age seven. Neither Mrs. Alexander nor her daughter were at home at the time of the blaze.

Starts In Living Room

The fire seemed to start in the living room of the downstairs section of the house, firemen reported. It spread rapidly up the stairway to second floor bedrooms and throughout the lower part of the building.

Alexander, who told hospital authorities he is associated with the New Deal Optical Company, 13 South Centre Street, had been ill and was at home yesterday, according to his brother Harry I. Alexander. He said he had been lying on the front room sofa at the time of the fire.

Mrs. James T. Miller, a next door neighbor, said she had been on her front porch just before the fire started. She said she noticed windows of the Alexander home "steamed up."

She ran to the rear of the house and called for Alexander but there was no response. She said she returned to her home and watched from a side window.

Saw Flames Shoot Up

She again ran out and called to the Alexanders but received no answer. She said she returned to her home and looked out of the window to see flames shoot up through the front room. She declared, "I never saw anything go so fast in my life." It was Mrs. Miller who summoned firemen.

According to Acting Fire Chief J. T. Defibaugh, Central received the call at 3:29 p.m. and West Side Company was dispatched immediately. Captain Joseph T. Hoban of West Side called for help and Central's hook and ladder went to the Alexander home. On a third alarm, East Side Company was also dispatched.

In the meantime a fourth alarm came in from the neighborhood and Central's pumper truck answered this alarm to extinguish a fire in an automobile at 742 Greene Street.

Found In Cellarway

Firemen at Alexanders found Alexander in the cellarway of the house and helped him from the building. He was taken to the hospital in a City Police cruiser where he was treated and released.

Chief Defibaugh said the cause of the fire had not been determined and an investigation is being continued. There was no evidence of an explosion, although some sections of the building gave the appearance that there might have been. This could have been caused by the intense heat and rapid spread of the flames, firemen noted.

Furniture, woodwork, walls, wallpaper, draperies, clothing and almost everything else in the house was ruined.

The furniture from the front room of the house was carried outside, but most of it was ablaze, smouldering, or already damaged.

The loss to the house and contents was covered by insurance, and adjusters were on the scene before the firemen left the premises. They too, could not fix immediately, the cause of the blaze.

He later received treatment at Allegany Hospital for a cut over the right eye and singed hair. A city fireman, William T. Shuck, received injuries of the back while lifting ladders on one of the trucks at the scene. He, too, was taken to Allegany Hospital for treatment. Damages to the house were estimated at $16,000. Park Police On Canal Hike Spend Night At Orleans

The two members of the U. S. Park Police, Washington, D. C. are "on schedule" in their 160 mile trek along the old C. and O. Canal and plan to be in Hancock tomorrow.

Sgt. T. C. Tingle, who complains of a blister on his foot and Pvt. Samuel H. Hower, with no physical handicaps, arrived yesterday at a cabin at Little Orleans owned by James G. "Scotty" Stevenson, Clerk of the County Commissioners.

The two men had conversed with "Scotty" prior to their departure from Cumberland and Stevenson went to his cabin yesterday afternoon and prepared supper for the anticipated visitors. Carrying along enough supplies for breakfast this morning, Scotty "bedded the boys down" for the night.

The hikers told Stevenson that the towpath is in excellent condition and with the exception of a tunnel, travel thus far could have been accomplished in a jeep. They said they are sorry they did not bring their horses.

They also noted that the journey thus far has indicated many historical landmarks and spots which could be developed and they are amazed that the proposed parkway project has not been started before this.

They plan to remain at the cabin for a few hours this morning to prepare maps and get their notes together.

On Wednesday at noon the two police arrived at Oldtown and while there spent an hour talking with Ross Shaw. They visited the Cresap Monument and the old Cresap residence. Late Wednesday evening they arrived at Paw Paw, W. Va. They plan to be at the Woodmont Rod and Gun Club this afternoon and in Hancock tomorrow evening.

Park Police On Canal Hike Spend Night At Orleans

The two members of the U. S. Park Police, Washington, D. C. are "on schedule" in their 160 mile trek along the old C. and O. Canal and plan to be in Hancock tomorrow.

Sgt. T. C. Tingle, who complains of a blister on his foot and Pvt. Samuel H. Hower, with no physical handicaps, arrived yesterday at a cabin at Little Orleans owned by James G. "Scotty" Stevenson, Clerk of the County Commissioners.

The two men had conversed with "Scotty" prior to their departure from Cumberland and Stevenson went to his cabin yesterday afternoon and prepared supper for the anticipated visitors. Carrying along enough supplies for breakfast this morning, Scotty "bedded the boys down" for the night.

The hikers told Stevenson that the towpath is in excellent condition and with the exception of a tunnel, travel thus far could have been accomplished in a jeep. They said they are sorry they did not bring their horses.

They also noted that the journey thus far has indicated many historical landmarks and spots which could be developed and they are amazed that the proposed parkway project has not been started before this.

They plan to remain at the cabin for a few hours this morning to prepare maps and get their notes together.

On Wednesday at noon the two police arrived at Oldtown and while there spent an hour talking with Ross Shaw. They visited the Cresap Monument and the old Cresap residence. Late Wednesday evening they arrived at Paw Paw, W. Va. They plan to be at the Woodmont Rod and Gun Club this afternoon and in Hancock tomorrow evening.

Listener Aids Preacher Who Misses On Quiz

The clergyman, Rev. Karl Kauffman, pastor of the Welsh Baptist Memorial Church, had been visiting with relatives in Union City, N. J., this week. When he went to New York and happened to be called from the audience to appear on the quiz program, carried on a nation-wide network, he offered to give his winnings to a needy family on Big Savage Mountain.

However, Rev. Kauffman was stumped after his earnings got only to $15. A sympathetic listener, a New Yorker also named Kauffman, telephoned the Frostburg man and offered to give him $100 for the family in need. Trial Ends But Hughes' Fate Remains In Doubt

Judges Will Write Opinion In Case

Although the two-day manslaughter trial of William J. Hughes, 25, Midland, ended late yesterday afternoon in Allegany County Circuit, the young defendant is uncertain of his fate.

Hughes was charged with manslaughter in the death last May 3 of Thomas Robertson, 43, Lonaconing, a mine picket, who was struck by Hughes' truck along the Old Cemetery Road near Knapp's Meadow.

Under Advisement

Chief Judge Joseph D. Mish informed the defendant and the many spectators in the courtroom about 4 p. m. yesterday that he and Associate Judge George Henderson, who must decide the case, that they were taking the case under alvisement.

The jurists retired to chambers shortly after 3:20 p. m. yesterday after State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher concluded the final argument in the much-disputed case. When the judges returned to the courtroom about 35 minutes later the spectators were expecting a verdict.

However, Judge Mish said that he and his associate on the bench had decided that in view of the seriousness of the charge they would file written opinion in the case. He explained they thought a written opinion would explain the case more thoroughly than an oral verdict.

In the meantime Hughes is allowed to continue his freedom under the $5,000 bond which served him before the trial.

Although Judge Mish said the opinion would be filed "promptly" it is doubted that the document will be filed before another week.

Testimony in the trial ended at noon yesterday. Concluding arguments took more than two hours in the afternoon.
